Two mayors linked to bookmaking activities

RIVERSIDE (AP) — The mayors of Lake Elsinore and Perris in Riverside County have been named in connection with alleged bookmaking activities in three establishments in the two cities.

A total of four spots in the county have been closed this week for alleged bookmaking offenses.

District Attorney Byron C. Morton received three separate injunctions in Superior Court Tuesday and Wednesday closing the Kool Kove bar in Perris and the Sands Casino and the Sahara Dunes Casino in Lake Elsinore, Morton's office reported Thursday.

Dan's Seed and Feed, an agricultural supply firm in Perris, was closed on Tuesday but allowed to reopen Wednesday after its owner agreed to a permanent injunction against illegal bookmaking or any other form of gambling.

The Sands and Dunes are legalized card gambling casinos. Lake Elsinore Mayor Frank dePasquale was named in the injunction as the owner of the property on which the two casinos are located.

Perris Mayor Robert D. Perry, an employe of Dan's Seed and Feed, was named as a defendant in the injunction against that establishment.

The bar and the two casinos will remain closed for at least 15 days under injunctions served by sheriff's deputies.

Between 200 and 300 employes at the casinos were at least temporarily out of work because of the closings.

Spokesmen for the district attorney's office said the closures were the result of several months investigation.

A hearing on the injunctions was set for July 27 in Riverside County Superior Court.

Man-eating piranha mistakenly sold to pet shops

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Five man-eating piranha — outlawed in Florida — are swimming around in some home fish tanks today. They were mistakenly sold as docile little red pacus to four pet shops.

"I've got three people out now knocking on doors trying to get them back," Jack Lynch, manager of Sunset Aquarium in Clearwater, said Thursday. "I had eight, but I have no idea who bought five of them. I think I remember the other three. I'm doing my damnedest."

Piranha, a vicious flesh-eater known for mass attacks on large animals — including man — are native to tropic South America. They're outlawed in Florida because of the potential danger if they happened to be released in the state's subtropical fresh waters.

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission sent inspectors to the pet stores to warn operators that 23 two-inch piranhas were accidentally delivered in the last couple of weeks.

"They're outlawed here so you really don't look for piranhas," said Lynch. He said young piranha and the pacus are similar in appearance, except for the lower jaw. And the teeth. And the taste for flesh.

No clues as search continues for 26 children, bus driver

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — Twenty-six children and the driver of their school bus who vanished on their way home from a swimming outing apparently are the victims of a mass kidnaping, the Madera County sheriff said today.

Deputies and police searched the San Joaquin Valley farmland through a windy, rainy night split by lightning and thunder for some clue to the whereabouts of the children, who ranged in age from 5 to 15.

The bus in which the children had been riding was found in a dry canal Thursday night.

"It appears to be an abduction," At 6:05 a.m., a state highway patrol plane and two Civil Air Patrol planes took off under gray skies.

The sheriff told reporters he felt "something should break today." He said he had a "hunch."

"I find it difficult to see how any one person can abscond with 26 children and one adult bus driver and get away with it," he said.

Bates said his investigators found two sets of tracks superimposed on the bus tracks, suggesting that an abduction "would have to be planned, it seems to me." The tracks showed that "somebody left the area after the bus was parked."

The bus, which was to have returned the children from the Chowchilla fairgrounds, was found abandoned in a dry canal during a search from the air. It was hidden in a heavy stand of bamboo in the flat farmland about 35 miles northwest of Fresno.

The sheriff said he couldn't "think of any other possibility" but a kidnaping. "There's no blood, no evidence of foul play at the bus. I'm at a loss for words about this one. I absolutely can't figure it. We can't find anybody who has a motive."

Bates said the FBI has been called in.

She said the bus driver, 55-year-old Frank Edward Ray Jr., was "very reliable" and had been driving for the school for 28 years.

"You couldn't ask for a nicer guy," Mrs. Hansen said. "He was born and raised here."

Sheriff Bates, who set up a command post at the Chowchilla Police Department, speculated that there were five possibilities: a "deranged guy" who had kidnaped the entire group; a "personal revenge, somebody who wants to make the parents suffer;" a kidnaping "for money;" a "terrorist" plot; or "some older kid on the bus took command by force."

Shortly before dawn Bates discarded as a clue reports that a white van seen the last two days near where the bus lets children off might be involved in the disappearance. The vehicle turned out to be a "dental van" which has been assigned to the area, he said.

The sheriff's office said it received calls from anxious parents beginning about 4:15 p.m. Thursday. At that time, the bus was two hours overdue.

Investigators towed the bus out of the canal and began a search, roping off the area around the bus. At one point, 30 officers from several jurisdictions were assigned, including a force detailed to a door-to-door search south of the town.

Officers recovered two towels and items connected with a childrens' ceramics project, Bates said. The key was missing from the bus's ignition, he said.

The bus had made three stops, letting off three groups of children, but it never made its fourth and last stop, Bates said.

Prior to Bates' announcement that he suspected an abduction, Sam Baretta, the father of Lisa Baretta, 12, one of the missing children, said:

"It seems so damn strange. There must be a logical explanation. I haven't faced reality yet."

Man, woman held in city bank holdup

A Pomona bank was robbed by a lone gunman Thursday afternoon and police booked two suspects in connection with the holdup a couple of hours later.

The robbery was at the United California Bank branch at 321 E. Holt Ave., where the bandit entered shortly before 2 p.m. carrying a camera bag. He handed a note to a teller in which he warned it was a holdup and demanded money. The cash, almost $1,000, was given him and he walked from the bank to a white Cadillac operated by a young woman and was driven away.

Police were given a license number by a witness which was traced to a Pomona man living on Douglas Drive. Investigation disclosed that his car had been loaned to his brother, who recently arrived in Pomona from San Francisco.

Officers waited in the neighborhood and when the brother, William James Broussard, 33, and his female companion, Terri Lynn Randall, 20, arrived, they were arrested by Detectives Elias Valdez and Jerry Western.

A search of the car turned up no weapons or cash, but officers reported that when Broussard was searched in the lockup later they found the loot in his possession.

The two suspects were booked both on state and federal robbery charges. Bank robbery is a federal offense. and the FBI entered the case shortly after the holdup.

TRAGIC SCENE Neighbors look over the charred frame of a Pomona home where two small boys died Thursday morning. Fire officials blamed the tragedy on the children's play with matches.

The bodies of the two children were found near each other in one of the bedrooms of the home at 1331 Cornelia St. Both were pronounced dead at the scene.

They were identified as Mario Dion Gilliam, 3, and Shawn Lamar Gilliam, 4. They were cousins.

The 3-year-old's mother, Kim Gilliam, 19, was home at the time of the blaze, but was unable to reach the children before being forced from the home by smoke and heat.

Pomona Fire Chief John Fowlkes said the woman told firemen she was awakened at about 10:30 a.m. by the screaming of the children, although unaware the 4-year-old was in the house.

Smoke and heat prevented her from leaving the bedroom she was in, however, and she climbed out the window.

Fowlkes said the woman, plus neighbors and passersby, attempted to enter the home, but were forced back by the rapidly spreading flames.

When the first fire units arrived at the scene, said Fowlkes, the home was almost fully involved in flames and the windows had been blown out by the heat.

He said the firemen extinguished the flames in three or four minutes, and entered the structure to find the children.

Fireman Jerry Nessmith was the first to battle his way into the structure to search for the children, although he expected to find only one boy at the time.

He found the two small boys almost immediately, which was only minutes after arriving at the scene, but he could detect no vital signs of life.

Evidence found at the scene, said Fowlkes, indicated the fire began in the dining area of the four-bedroom, wood and stucco home.

"A large number of matches, both book matches and wooden matches, were scattered in the vicinity of where the fire started," said Fowlkes.

In addition, matches were found on and near the bodies of the children in the bedroom.

Fowlkes said it appeared the children were playing with the matches in the dining area, igniting some unknown material or furniture. The dining area had a high-beamed ceiling which allowed the fire to develop and spread rapidly in the roof toward other parts of the house.

He said the boys probably sought refuge from the flames in the bedroom where their bodies were found.

The mother of the 4-year-old, Perry Lynn Gilliam, 20, was only a block from the home when the fire occurred. She collapsed at the scene from shock and was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Fowlkes said that Fire Capt. William Beck, 51, and Albert Winn, 17, a passerby, suffered cuts from trying to gain access to the home through shattered windows. Neither required hospitalization.

Puzzled parents waiting, hoping

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — "There must be a logical explanation," said Sam Barletta as he sat in the police station while the hours dragged by.

His 12-year-old daughter, Lisa, is one of 26 students who mysteriously disappeared with their bus driver Thursday on the way back from a summer school outing.

Parents, expecting their children home for supper after a day of swimming and playing, started calling authorities late Thursday afternoon. As the evening wore on, they gathered in the police station lounge, sipping coffee as they waited for some word about their sons and daughters.

The mother of a missing 7-year-old girl spent the night at the police station waiting for the search to resume at 6 a.m. She looked repeatedly at the clock and said, "Come on 6 o'clock, hurry and get here.

"I know my daughter. I know she is self reliant," the woman said, asking that her name be withheld. "I know she can take care of herself as long as she doesn't panic."

Bill Parker, a retired forester whose 8-year-old daughter Barbara is missing, came to the police station today in hope of more news.

"It's really kind of getting to my wife. We were up all night waiting for word," Parker said.

Principal Lee Roy Tatom said today was to have been the last day of the session.

"We had a school picnic and talent program in the auditorium planned, and just a whole lot of festivities," Tatom said in an interview. "There was quite a lot of activity planned for today, but now I expect a lot of long faces. We are all dumbfounded."

Carter urges big push by fund raisers for November 'victory'

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter told party fund raisers today that his drive to wrest the White House from Republican control and keep his promises depends on a continued strong effort by them during the campaign.

Carter promised to campaign "flat out" and said, "I don't intend to lose a state."

But Carter, headed home to southwest Georgia after his triumph at the Democratic National Convention, warned the fund raisers that the glow of success the party feels now must be fanned continuously.

He urged members of the party's finance committee to contact 100 persons each to finance voter registration and get-out-the-vote campaigns in the fall.

"I can't keep the promises I've made to the American people or will make this fall — and I intend to keep everyone of them — unless I have a solid base of support in both houses of Congress, unless I get a good mandate in the fall, unless we're able to keep a substantial portion of the unity and common purpose that was exhibited last night in a moment of high tension and high emotion and high commitment," he told the fund raisers at a breakfast meeting.

10 MSAC buildings are unsafe?

A Mt. San Antonio College trustee wants 10 buildings containing more than 50 classrooms demolished because he claims they are "unsafe."

College officials say the replacement cost of the buildings would run well in excess of $10 million.

Trustee Robert Hutchinson says he has been informed that there is considerable dry rot and termite damage in the college's one-story buildings — some nearly 30 years old — and he thinks they ought to be torn down.

The rest of the college trustees have approved his request for a feasibility study on how safe the buildings are and what can be done with them.

But unless the report finds the buildings totally unsafe, Hutchinson's proposal is bound to be rejected.

Trustee Clifford Booth said that if any of those buildings can be used "I personally hate to see them go."

And Trustee William B. Temple declared that he felt tearing down the building would be most unwise.

"There was a time when we needed a building we just went out and bought it," he explained. "Money was rolling in. But times have changed. Construction costs have sky rocketed."

He said that if the buildings had not met standards of the state Division of Architecture, they would have been torn down long ago.

But Hutchinson recalled that there was an agreement 20 years ago that called for the replacement of those buildings with more modern ones as needed.

He reacted sharply to a proposal that the board provide air conditioning in two rooms of those buildings next fall.

"I don't want to spend any more money on these buildings," he declared. "The architect already has said the air conditioning systems in these buildings are not as efficient as the one in the new units."

He asked that the core of the feasibility report include a survey by the college's building inspector as to the condition of the buildings, and a recommendation on how to proceed.

Robbery turns into a great big nothing

LOS ANGELES — The mood was tense. Almost as if something were happening. More than 30 Los Angeles bullet-proofed policemen and a throng of reporters and gawkers thought so too.

It just went to show how something can happen if you think it is.

The police officers, some clad in bulletproof vests and toting shotguns, converged Thursday on a downtown printing firm after a report of an armed robbery, possibly with hostages taken.

"There's two guys holed up in there with some hostages," said a bystander.

But there weren't. But everybody thought so.

Tensed and crouching, dozens of officers from the Special Weapons and Tactics team pressed against the one-story brick walls of the Commercial and Stationery Printing Co., peering cautiously around the corners in anticipation of gunfire. Finally, three policemen burst inside.

"I found him in an aisle in the store, lying face down," said officer Larry McKinley. "He had no gun that I know of."

With one alleged holdup man in custody, police discovered that the two "hostages" were just stationary store employes who had gotten themselves temporarily lost in the confusion. But another intruder remained in the building, they said.

An attempt would be made to flush him out.

The crowd grew. The gaggle of newsmen and photographers swelled to two or three dozen. Helicopters churned overhead as police poised for another run through the building.

After a few tense moments, the officers emerged empty handed, and began to search the grounds for signs of the missing gunman. Suddenly, three or four of the officers whirled away from the building, guns drawn. Again, nothing.

"It was just a tack of wood falling over," someone said.

After searching the building three times, Lt. George Bennett announced that the so-called gunman, whose identity was not available, apparently acted alone. The confusion had arisen from conflicting reports from witnesses and the entire incident was over, he said.

"There was a robbery at a liquor store and at one point they thought there were hostages, then there weren't. What it amounted to was a great big nothing."

Liquor store?

"I thought it was a liquor store," Sgt. Morgan said, "maybe it wasn't."

UC regents propose hike of student fees

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — University of California regents are ignoring Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s objections and preparing to raise student fees throughout the nine-campus system.

A proposal endorsed by a regents' commitee Thursday would raise the fees from the current $600 to $648 in the fall of 1977, and allow each campus to raise them another $45 in the next three years.

The Finance Committee recommended the action to the full board despite a letter from a top Brown aide, Preble Stolz, urging them to limit the increase to campuses that need it.

The same regents' committee approved a proposed conflict-of-interest code for the university after UC President David Saxon said he'd try to drop a provision that would limit the authority of teachers to assign textbooks they'd written.

That provision would have required teachers to forego any profits from using their own books in their classes. The president of a teachers' academic freedom committee said the subject was none of the state's business.

The conflict-of-interest code was criticized on other grounds by the American Federation of Teachers. It said the code wouldn't require the predominantly wealthy regents to disclose their stock holdings or corporate ties.

The $48 increase would meet a deficit in UC's registration fee, which hasn't risen since 1968. The fee supports such student services as health centers, counseling and intramural sports.

A UC official said Stolz, Brown's assistant for programs and policies, wrote that any fee increase "should be on a campus-by-campus basis."

The Brown aide also said campus fee increases should be subject to a regents' vote so students have input, reported UC Vice President Chester McCorkle.

Saxon supported the uniform increase, and also said he was negotiating with Brown for $9 million in additional state aid to avert a further fee increase in the next three years.

Alleged SLA kidnap victims

Two more stories told

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William Harris dangled a pair of broken handcuffs in front of a witness and asked, "Tom, do you remember these?"

"Yes, I see the place where I cut them," young Tom Matthews answered, recalling the night Patricia Hearst held a flashlight while he sawed the cuff off Harris' wrist.

Then Harris, acting as his own attorney, elicited an important admission from the star prosecution witness.

"Tom, did you ever feel you had been kidnaped?" Harris asked.

"No," Matthews said firmly.

"And did you say afterwards that you wouldn't press charges if it was up to you?" asked Harris.

"Yes," said the witness.

At that, the prosecutor who had called Matthews to the stand objected angrily and the answer was stricken from the court record.

But the jurors were allowed to hear the amiable college student tell of his night on the run with the Symbionese Liberation Army — Harris, his wife, Emily, and the famous fugitive Miss Hearst.

He told how a gun-toting Harris commandered his van on May 16, 1974 and took him along, commanding, "Don't do anything flaky."

The 20-year-old Matthews was excited when Harris introduced Miss Hearst.

"I said, 'My friends will never believe me.'"

Matthews' congenial remembrances of the SLA were in sharp contrast to those of a second alleged kidnap victim, Frank Sutter, a middle-aged contractor.

Sutter, the final witness before court recessed for the weekend, told of being forced to lie under a blanket on the back floor of his car while the SLA trio drove around for seven hours.

San Quentin Six trial finally reaches the jury

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — After five years of legal maneuvers and a record-breaking trial that spanned two summers, the murder-conspiracy trial of the San Quentin Six has reached the jury.

The eight-woman, four-man panel began deliberations today as six defendants, five of them already sentenced to life in prison, await the verdict.

The jury is charged with sorting out conflicting, confusing and often gory testimony about the events of Aug. 21, 1971, when black revolutionary George Jackson, three guards and two inmates died in Jackson's abortive bid for freedom.

Demo team huddles with fund raisers

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale, declaring "I've never felt better with less sleep," opened his first full day as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate by huddling with party organizers and top fund raisers.

Mondale, at the side of standard-bearer Jimmy Carter, told a breakfast gathering of the national Democratic Finance Committee that "I've never been through a meeting that was more thrilling and more hopeful, not just for the Democrats, but for the whole country, than I went through last night."

Mondale, 48, confessed that when he stood on Madison Square Garden's podium to give his acceptance speech, he was "just plain scared."

"But I looked out on those faces, and they said, 'You're going to succeed, Mondale, whether you like it or not,'" he said.

Mondale and Carter also stopped briefly at a meeting of the Democratic National Committee, shaking hands and receiving congratulations.

The Carter and Mondale families planned lunch together before Carter headed for Plains, Ga., and Mondale to the nation's capital and thence to his home in Minnesota.

"Nineteen seventy-six will not be a year of politics as usual," Carter told the convention. "It is a year of concern, and of quiet and sober reassessment of our nation's character and purpose — a year when voters have already confounded the political experts.

"It can be a year of inspiration and hope. And I guarantee you it will be the year when we give the government of this country back to the people of this country.

"There is a new mood in America."

Carter said Mondale and his staff would be asked "to put forward their own proposal about what areas of the nation he should visit most, what particular states he would find most compatible with his own campaigning, and to share responsibilities for major events."

Carter said there would be staff meetings following up today's meeting between the two candidates. Presumably, the bulk of the planning will be done in Plains, where Carter is expected to spend most of his time until the campaign against the Republican nominee begins in early September.

The Carter campaign headquarters will remain in Atlanta in keeping with his non-Washington approach to the election. Washington operations will center on the Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Aides said party chairman Robert Strauss, the man generally credited with patching up the party after divisive conventions and campaigns torn by the Vietnam war in 1968 and internal party changes in 1972, would coordinate national connections.

The staff which helped Carter's miraculous climb from political oblivion to 19 presidential primary victories and a nomination sewed up a month ahead of the convention will remain. But it will be expanded to include political specialists who are expert in building national campaigns as opposed to the state-by-state nomination process.

Carter, who was applauded 48 times during the 38-minute speech, said the country and party are suffering a time of trouble but would come through stronger for the experience and "tempered by the fire."

"Guided by lasting and simple moral values, we have emerged idealists without illusions, realists who still know the old dreams of justice and liberty — of country and community," he said.

The speech was perhaps the most comprehensive display yet of Carter's stands on the major political issues, although it generally reflected the party platform which his delegates were instrumental in writing.

Carter said he wanted jobs for all who were able to work, comprehensive tax reform, universal voter registration, a national health program, an end to racial and sex discrimination, firm law enforcement and an end to "the double standard of justice in America.

"I see no reason why big shot crooks should go free while the poor ones go to jail," Carter said.

Carter told reporters later he could accomplish his goals within four years of moving into the White House.

While Carter denounced "the disgrace of Watergate," he did not mention personalities. But Mondale went further by bringing up President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon for Watergate offenses.

On foreign policy, Carter's speech was reminiscent of John F. Kennedy's inaugural address 15 years ago. He called for "a sustained architectural effort to shape an international framework of peace within which our own ideals gradually can become a global reality.

"To our friends and allies I say that what unites us through our common dedication to democracy is more important than that which occasionally divides us on economics or politics.

"To the nations that seek to lift themselves from poverty I say that America shares your aspiration and extends its hand to you.

"To those nation-states which wish to compete with us I say that we neither fear competition nor see it as an obstacle to wider cooperation," Carter said. But the major thrust of the speech came from the Carter themes of compassion and public confidence in government. He said the Democratic party has made mistakes "but ours is a tradition of leadership and compassion and progress.

"In times of need the Democrats have been there. But in recent years, our nation has seen a failure of leadership.

"We have been a nation adrift too long. We have been without leadership too long. We have had divided, deadlocked government too long. We have been governed by veto too long.

"We have suffered enough at the hands of a tired, worn out administration without new ideas, without youth or vitality, without vision, and without the confidence of the American people.

"Our country has lived through a time of torment. It is now a time for healing."

Mondale said the secret of the Carter campaign has been that it addressed "the underlying, intangible issue that is central to this year's campaign — the demand of the people of this nation to once more restore honesty and decency and openness to our government, the demand of our people to once more have a government they can take pride in."

Economy better in '76 —Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration said today that the economy will perform better than originally expected during 1976, providing Americans with about 379,000 more jobs and diminishing the erosion of inflation on peoples' buying power.

"The President believes his economic policies are the major reasons for this improvement," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

Revised administration projections on the nation's unemployment, inflation and production capacity must be sent to Congress later this month under the new budget-making procedures.

The President's top economic and budget advisers released their projections at a briefing. They attributed the estimates of the stronger-than-expected economic performance to developments which already have taken place.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said a crucial factor in the improved economic picture has been greater confidence by consumers and businessmen. Greenspan said the confidence has been gaining even faster than expected and has been translated into faster economic growth.

Nessen said the President is determined to stick to his economic program and get the budget back into balance by 1979, if possible.

The latest projections, released by the Council of Economic Advisers and the Office of Management and Budget, were the first solid economy projection figures since the administration's initial forecast in January.

Europe newspapers see shrewd Carter, but question views

LONDON (AP) — European newspapers today classed Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter as a shrewd politician and campaigner but questioned his position on major issues. Carter's choice of Sen. Walter F. Mondale as his running mate was generally considered a unifying move for the party.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, said the former Georgia governor was a realist who favors detente. But it said his policies are influenced by militarists, reactionary trade unionists and Zionists.

The Times of London said Carter's "economic policies may turn out to be overexpansionist. His foreign policies ... could suffer from his inexperience. His personality could run him into confrontations with Congress, with advisers, or even with foreign countries."

Britain's liberal Guardian praised Mondale as "one of the most decent men in the American Senate" but accused Carter of lack of vision.

"Ambition by itself is not enough," said the Guardian. "For a man to be so dedicated and determined to win power while having no clear conception of what to do when this is achieved, is disturbing."

Amsterdam's De Volksrant said Mondale "has an impeccable reputation as a reasonably progressive senator" and is very well liked within the Washington establishment that Carter has often attacked. It said Carter's choice "confirms that behind his broad smile looms a 'political animal' that thus far has been operating very efficiently."

Norway's biggest newspaper Aftenposten said Carter was strong because he "is not related to the Watergate affair and the whole series of Washington exposures which over the last 12 months shocked and upset the American people" but weak "because his lack of experience and vague election platform may create uncertainity and unease, both in the United States and among the American allies."

Stockholm's Dagens Nyheter said a general wish for party unity had prevented Carter's adversaries and rivals from "exposing his weaknesses and trying to make a real effort to stop him. In spite of all his words about mistrust in Washington and its politicians, Jimmy Carter really is much of a traditional politician and a traditional Democrat himself."

Marshals came before Christ; vigil is over

GRANNIS, Ark. (AP) — For nearly 10 months, they waited for God and the end of the world. Instead, the marshals came today, quitely and quickly evicting them and ending their vigil.

The 30 persons waiting for the Second Coming of Christ were escorted this morning from the three-bedroom house in this tiny southwest Arkansas community where they had waited since last September.

"Everything is all right, everything is all right," said Elizabeth Nance Bard, one of the vigil members. She was trembling, however, as she and 15 other vigil members climbed in a pickup truck and left the house on the outskirts of the town of 177 persons.

Spotlight on area crime

Gas station robbed; man held

A 28-year-old man was arrested by Pomona police in the robbery of the Economy self-service station, 1044 W. Mission Blvd. in Ontario of a small amount of money Thursday night.

Leon James Gibson of 1020 Muir St., Pomona, was being held in Pomona jail this morning for Ontario police investigating the robbery. Pomona police are questioning Gibson about another robbery.

Police said the suspect, wearing a Jacket with "Camel" written on it walked into the Ontario service station and simulated holding a gun in his jacket pocket. The suspect ordered attendant Charles Grossey to hand over the cash from the register and his wallet, police said.

Grossey was ordered to the back of the station and the robber fled.

Grossey called Ontario police at 11:50 p.m. to report the robbery.

At 2:30 a.m. a Pomona police officer saw a man wearing a jacket with the word "Camel" on it riding a motorcycle. The officer stopped the man as he was trying to change some quarters at a store.

Man in car robbed

A 64-year-old man complained to ONTARIO police that as he was sleeping in his car, a man got inside and shoved a gun in his side demanding his money Thursday night.

Charles M. Stabe told officers that the gunman took his wallet containing a small amount of cash and then struck him in the chest. The gunman fled on foot.

Stabe said he had fallen asleep in his car at Mira Monte Avenue and Holt Boulevard and the doors were unlocked.

The gunman was described as a black, in his 20's, 6 feet 1, of medium build. He was wearing a gray baseball cap.

3 girls held in assault

Three teenage Ontario girls were arrested Thursday night after allegedly throwing a flattened jagged beer can at an ONTARIO police officer at Maitland Street and Sultana Avenue.

Officer Don McGready said the three girls began yelling at him in Spanish on the street outside of the McGowen Co. as he was questioning a company official about some thefts. He said he broke off his interview with the McGowen official when he heard what sounded like something hitting his police car parked outside.

McGready said as he steped out the door of the company a jagged-edged flattened beer can sailed past his head and hit the brick wall. The three girls turned and fled. McGready called for assistance. A few minutes later the three girls were arrested by Officer Lloyd Sharf and charged with assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

Police said the girls were released to their mothers pending disposition on the charge in juvenile court.

House burglarized

Frank Micastro, 859 N. Mountain Ave., UPLAND, reported to police that burglars broke into his home and stole jewelry, two stereos, a camera, hunting knife, and a pair of skis with a total value of $2,094 Thursday night.

Police said the burglar entered Micastro's home by prying open a balcony screened window.

Mr. Jacobson, 31, was one of seven persons shot to death Monday morning at Cal State Fullerton, where he was employed.

Following the memorial service, entombment was made at the mausoleum of Forest Lawn Cypress.

In addition to his widow, Sondra, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Julia Jacobson of Hawaii; his father, Clifford E. Tuttle of Lakeview, Mich.; and his step-father, Walter A. Jacobson of La Habra.

Memorial contributions may be made to City of Hope, Tribute Dept., 208 W. Eighth St., Los Angeles, 90214.

500 county cars cut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five hundred county cars are being eliminated in the budget crunch, ending free rides to work for 500 county employes.

The cars, among 1,600 autos assigned to county workers, will be called in over the next six months, officials said Thursday. First to feel the pinch will be the staff of Chief Administrative Officer Harry L. Hufford, which often has brought bad news of budget belt-tightening to other county departments.

SAN PEDRO (AP) — A San Pedro Municipal Court judge has dismissed a misdemeanor drunken driving charge against Los Angeles Harbor General Manager Fred B. Crawford.

Crawford was originally due in court Thursday for a hearing on one count of drunk driving filed last April 12 after his arrest in San Pedro four days earlier.

But the case had earlier been advanced to June 29, when Crawford, 48, asked for dismissal after Judge Glenn Wymore granted a motion to suppress the results of a blood alcohol test as prosecution evidence because of a flaw in the method police used to arrest Crawford.

WRONG WAY — Jan Bond, 22, of Denver figured the one-way street sign doesn't apply to kayaks when she went for a ride on a flooded street. A record-equalling three-fourths inch of rain put the city of Alamalosa, Colo., under water. Normally the city only receives 10 inches of precipitation annually.

Despite pleas from three property owners that their land had been reassessed 71 per cent or higher, the Claremont City Council has refused to allow them to retain multiple-family 2,000-square-foot zoning on their land.

With the updating of the Historical Claremont ordinance, the council Tuesday night rezoned all property in the area to RM-4,000.

That means that the lots of William R. Webb, George and Margaret Gibbs, and Oliver Batcheller can be developed at only half the density they have been zoned at for 28 years.

The boundaries of the Historical Claremont District are the properties south of the Foothill Boulevard frontage, then south on College Avenue, west on Seventh Street, south on Harvard Avenue, west on Harrison Avenue, north on Berkeley Avenue, east on Eighth Street, and north on Indian Hill Boulevard to Foothill.

"We are asking for no favors, nor have we been granted any," Gibbs told the council. "All we have asked is to be left alone with our rights of RM 2,000 (the old R3) zoning which we have had the past 28 years."

Gibbs complained that his 71-year-old house has been reassessed 185 per cent, and the property over-all 71 per cent.

Mayor Bertye Smith told Gibbs that rights do not become vested unless used.

"I sympathize with you," she said.

Batcheller, 137 W. Seventh St., complained that his 91-year-old house had gone up 100 per cent in reassessment.

"Our properties account for less than two per cent of the lots in Historical Claremont. Why can't RM 2,000 be grandfathered into the new ordinance?" he asked.

He said that it had been rumored that leaving the property as it is would be spot zoning.

"Under the new law, more than 150 homes are not in compliance as to zoning," Batcheller said.

Ray Fowler told the council that the City Atty. William Bergman should be directed to resolve the issue. "We're faced with serious discrimination against those three property owners."

Mrs. Gibbs said that her property has been reassessed four times in the past 12 years. "The area north of Foothill Boulevard has not been done in 15 years," she said.

Calling the ordinance a compromise, Councilwoman Claire McDonald moved for adoption of the new ordinance, and it passed for first reading.

The ordinance as amended does the following:

— Requires a minimum lot size of 7,500 square feet for all new lots.

— Permits two dwellings on any lots meeting the minimum requirement providing all other standards are met.

— Imposes a height limit of two stories or 30 feet.

— Requires review and approval by the Architectural Commission of plans for any new development or remodeling.

— Requires an outdoor living area as a function of the total square footage of the dwelling rather than on bedrooms.

— Permits multiple family uses as a right on all lots or combinations of lots of 16,000 or more square feet under common ownership when ordinance is adopted.

— Accepted a bid of $9,300 from James Booth

Cal Poly, Pacific State Hospital

Street project opposed

A move to condemn property along Pomona Boulevard between Valley Boulevard and Roselawn Avenue for a street improvement project has run into an unexpected snag because of protests from Cal Poly and Pacific State Hospital to the Pomona City Council.

Marilyn Moffitt, an attorney for Cal Poly and Pacific State Hospital, told the council Monday night that neither institution was opposed to the street widening project, but that assessments for the improvements would be protested.

In addition, she said that both institutions were upset over the manner in which the city's Department of Public Works had handled the matter — specifically citing the short notice given administrators at both institutions.

She said the project was only learned about in recent weeks.

Mayor Ray Lepire said there was obviously a breakdown in communications, and urged that consideration of the condemnation action be delayed so that meetings could be held to resolve the issue.

The council approved the delay unanimously.

The project will include widening the unimproved portions of the street, plus the construction of curbs, gutters and street lighting.

Other landowners in the area instituted the project last year by petition.

for purchase of 16,005 square feet of city land between the Thompson Creek channel and the northerly end of Indian Hill Boulevard.

— Confirmed Claremont's commitment of $1,474.48 to finance the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project the coming year.

— Awarded a $26,950 contract to Meisch Bros. Inc. Pomona, for the second phase of the remodeling of city hall, including the accounting, planning and engineering departments.

— Set a public hearing on a Planning Commission recommendation that single-family houses in a residential unit development be allowed to have exterior television antennae. The city code now bans outdoor antennae in RUD districts.

Skeletons are found

PRAGUE (AP) — A rae discovery of graves containing the skeletons of ancient Moravian men has been reported in the town of Nechvalin.

Swords were found with the skeletons, indicating they are the remains of nobility. Another indication that the dead were members of the Great Moravian Empire's upper class were the "Charon coins" found in the mouths of the skeletons. In Greek mythology, Charon was the man who ferried the souls of the dead over the Styx and Acheron rivers. The graves also include a number of gold and silver earrings.

The Great Moravian Empire was a large kingdom that flourished during the 9th century, in what now is south-central Czechoslovakia.

O-M board dips into reserves to aid budget

The Ontario-Montclair school board Thursday night adopted a publication budget of $19,561,159 for the 1976-77 school year, projecting a tax increase of five cents per $100 assessed valuation. This will bring the district tax rate to $2.93.

The proposed budget presented to the board originally called for a tax increase of 33 cents, but after lengthy discussion the trustees voted to dip into the general reserve fund of $1,723,000 to meet the budget demands rather than accept the 33-cent increase.

Deputy Supt. George Duerr, in presenting the budget, pointed out that the District income is estimated to be higher and the expense lower than noted in the tentative budget adopted last month. Senate Bill 1641 will increase income by some $580,000; assessed valuation of the district has increased 8.57 per cent, instead of the previously estimated 6.95 per cent, and estimated expenditures for 1975-76 are down by $228,035. Expenses in the 1976-77 budget show a $42,490 increase.

As is his custom, board member Sam Di Giovanni was the watchdog on the expenditures.

"I think we should question this 33-cent tax increase," he said. "We still have enough money in the reserves fund to get by another year without increasing taxes. I'd like to try a budget with a no-tax raise."

Supt. Jack Jones warned the trustees that the budget as presented made no allowance for salary increase for teachers and other employes.

The California School Employes Association (for classified employes) and the Ontario-Montclair Teachers Association have presented proposals to the board that total more than $7 million. The only increase included in the publication budget is the annual 2.29 per cent increment.

"Within the budget there is no room for salary increases," Jones said. "Taking funds from the reserves would bring the reserves down to $1 million."

The mention of salary increases brough the board close to the area of wage negotiations, a subject for executive (closed) session.

Referring to the public and press, Di Giovanni said, "Should we be talking in front of the children? Is this family hour, or is it past 9 o'clock?"

Member Rose Kelber insisted that the district pass the five-cent tax increase to pay for earthquake safety, an item which the District is obligated to pay each year. She moved the adoption of the publication budget slashed by $576,556, the amount the 33-cent increase would have generated. The measure was approved, 4-1, with Di Giovanni voting no.

"The cut in the tax increase was not large enough," he said.

Departing city manager projects Chino's future

Chino officials will not allow "anything dire" to happen as a result of the city's burgeoning growth, says City Manager Herman R. "Bob" Fast.

Fast, who is leaving his job today after four years to accept the city manager's position in West Covina, was cautious in an interview before his departure about predicting Chino's future.

He indicated the city will somehow be able to provide enough services to handle an increasing population. "Anything dire could happen if you let it happen, but I don't see how that would occur here."

City and county officials have been working to coordinate proper planning in the area, and the growth hasn't reached a critical point yet, declared Fast.

Financial problems have kept the city from providing certain services to residents, but they are being worked on, he noted. "We really haven't gotten flood control off the ground here, and our regional approach to water and sewage is still in the infancy stage."

Overall, Fast is pleased with his four years in Chino. He is leaving for "personal and professional" reasons.

A former assistant city manager in West Covina, Fast lived there for 18 years. West Covina is a larger city than Chino and may provide some new challenges, he indicated.

His salary at West Covina will be $36,000 a year, plus wages for prior service there. He will also receive moving expenses and a city car. Fast would be making $37,500 if he stayed in Chino.

He will be missed by Chino Mayor Bob McLeod and the City Council. They praise him for his work in obtaining a new Civic Center.

Fast said the Civic Center was "good and fine" but he was also proud of other accomplishments.

"We mobilized capital improvements, such as in our water system. And the council supported the concept of a professional management team."

Looking again to the future, Fast said Chino has a "good opportunity" to balance its residential growth with industrial and commercial development. "This already has begun. I don't feel there will be a tax burden on the residential property owner."

Geographically, the city with its open areas, can avoid the "urbanized megalopolis," noted Fast.

He indicated the state must institute reform legislation for agricultural preserves and open space. "We really need that."

Chino's housing boom should slow down in the next 18 months, he predicted, due to possible legislation and a "lack of raw land." As for growth, the city should "take all it can" in industrial and commercial areas.

Fast said it is "inevitable" that agricultural land in the Chino area -- much of it outside the city limits -- will not remain in its present state. "Traditional land planning has showed that agricultural land has to move and move and move. It can't compete economically with development."

The many dairies in the area will be forced to relocate, he added. "Nothing at the moment is stopping this from happening. They are at the mercy of the state legislature."

Because most dairies are outside the city limits, "there is not much the city can do about it," he noted.

City land is rapidly filling up with development, but with planned industrial and commercial additions, Chino should end up as a well-balanced community, said Fast.

Three valley officials will confront RTD

Officials from Pomona, Claremont and La Verne will confront the Southern California Rapid Transit District's board of directors next Wednesday with a demand that the voters in the three cities be allowed to decide whether to withdraw from the district.

The meeting with the RTD board will be the latest in a lengthy series of maneuvers by local officials, aimed at withdrawal over local charges that RTD spends much of the valley's transportation monies on services elsewhere in the district — principally in downtown Los Angeles.

Lepire met Thursday with RTD manager Jack Gilstrap to set up Wednesday's meeting.

"I told Mr. Gilstrap that an election would be the best thing for the cities and the district. If the people vote to remain in the district it would be like a vote of confidence for RTD, and if they voted to get out we could find new ways to satisfy our own transportation needs," said Lepire.

The presumption has always been that, at least in Pomona and Claremont's case, the cities would probably link up with the transit system now operating in the West End communities.

Lepire, however, was unwilling to predict that the RTD board would allow the election to be held.

"If the board denies the election request then we will be in a stronger position when legislation is again introduced in Sacramento to allow us to vote on issue," said Lepire.

The cities have already had one bill introduced in the state legislature on their behalf, sponsored by Assemblyman William McVittie, D-65th Dist.

The bill failed early this year, but McVittie, said Lepire, has expressed a willingness to continue the fight for the cities.

The two main points of conflict between the RTD and the cities have historically been the levels of local bus service and control of local bus service.

Information gathered by city staffs has tended to indicate that state transportation funds, which RTD collects in the name of the local cities on a per capita basis, is not always spent in the local area.

RTD has always denied the charge, but never with enough convincing data to end the claim.

Consequently the local cities have generally felt RTD did not provide an adequate level of service.

A HELPING HAND

Paul Lukather, one of the founders of The Brass Ring in Ontario, helps Dorothy Ciecone adjust the reins to control a horse. The Brass Ring, a horsemanship center for the handicapped, will hold its third annual benefit training show July 31, at the Jubilee Stables, beginning at 7 a.m. The show will feature both able-bodied and handicapped riders.

Ontario dial-a-ride service in a month

The West Valley Transit Service Authority approved the expansion of dial-a-ride taxi service in Ontario Thursday, and within a month Ontario residents will enjoy full-city cab service.

Roger Hughbanks, Ontario city manager, presented the recommendation from the WVTSA technical committee to the board Thursday at the Montclair City Council Chambers.

Ontario is currently served by dial-a-ride — less costly than regular taxi service — in the area from Benson Avenue to Mission Boulevard, west of the Ontario International Airport to Grove Avenue, Holt Boulevard to Vineyard Avenue and north to the city limits. Gene Stalians, owner of Paul's Yellow Cab, provides the drivers and dispatch for the 2½ vehicles covering this area on a contract basis with WVTSA.

Stalians reported that two 1975 Plymouth sedans would be purchased to move the service south of Mission and pick up the remainder of the developed areas in the city.

The additional costs total $24,666 which includes $17,503 in actual operating costs for the two new vehicles through January 1977, $7,163 in preparation for purchase and painting the cars in the Omnitrans logo and colors, and a fixed fee of $1,591.

The City of Upland was allowed to expand full dial-a-ride service several weeks ago. The two cities are the pilots for possible extension of the dial-a-ride throughout the West End.

Dial-a-ride remains supplementary to the fixed routes of the Omnitrans mini-buses which still enjoy higher ridership than the cab service.

The regular fare for dial-a-ride is 50 cents and is a quarter for senior citizens and handicapped persons with an Omnitrans pass. Operating hours are Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. There is no weekend service.

The fixed routes run Mondays through Saturdays from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Brass Ring holds horse training show

The show will feature able-bodied entries and a demonstration of riding by some of the handicapped riders from the center. The show will begin at 7 a.m. at the Jubilee Stables where the center is located, 12805 S. Euclid Ave., Ontario.

The horses which will be ridden by handicapped participants are specially trained for voice command since some of the riders are blind or partially paralyzed.

Anna Collard will be The Brass Ring's Bicentennial cover girl for the event. She is 97.

Proceeds will be donated to the center.

Gasoline use sets May mark

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Motorists in California bought more gasoline in May than in any previous May, and almost set a record for any month in history, the state Board of Equalization says.

The 920 million gallons sold during May was second only to the 935 million sold in August, 1973, before the Arab oil embargo, the board said.

This was the sixth consecutive month that California motorists have set monthly records for gasoline use.

Pomona couple granted separate trials

A Pomona couple, accused of murdering a Pomona man in the desert near Blythe last December, have been granted separate trials with the woman's scheduled to begin Monday.

The defendants are Richard Ray Taylor, 23, of 1400 S. Reservoir St., and Marie Elaine Matzka, 22, of 2409 Chanslor St.

The pair are charged with murdering Ronald Lee Hunziker, 25, Dec. 5 about 10 miles from Blythe after the victim, of 1175 E. Grand Ave., had agreed to give them and an unidentified 15-year-old Pomona youth a ride to Oklahoma during the Christmas holidays.

Hunziker's dismembered body was discovered in the desert April 10 after inquiries were made to Pomona police about his failure to arrive at his destination in Wisconsin. He had been shot several times with a .22-caliber rifle.

The youth is being held by Riverside County juvenile authorities and is expected to testify during both trials.

The trials are scheduled for Riverside County Superior Court in Indio. Taylor's is to begin Aug. 6. Both defendants were being held in lieu of $250,000 bail each.

Upland okays its budget

A publication budget of $7,849,295, calling for a tax rate of $2.734 per $100 of assessed valuation, was approved Thursday night by the Upland Elementary School District.

The rate is 2.7 cents higher than the levy set in the tentative budget. Acting Dist. Supt. Glenn Hardy told the school board that the increase is in a permissive levy for summer school.

The budget is about $440,000 higher than the tentative budget submitted last month. Hardy said the new state school aid bill, approved July 2, will raise Upland's allowance by about $350,000. He said that money will go into unallocated reserves.

The superintendent estimated that average daily attendance next fall will reach 6,000, compared with 5,945 last year.

The amnesty lobby

The U.S. public hasn't heard much from the amnesty lobby for some time, but it is likely to hear a great deal as the presidential election campaign begins in earnest.

U.S. Rep. John Ashbrook reports that the American Left is "revving up for an all-out drive to bring unconditional amnesty into the 1976 political campaign."

According to Congressman Ashbrook, Amnesty Update, the leading pro-amnesty organization, recently outlined a political action plan for unconditional amnesty and reconstruction aid for Communist Vietnam.

In a speech in Congress June 2, Rep. Ashbrook called the roll of organizations involved in the amnesty drive. These included the American Civil Liberties Union, American Friends Service Committee, Episcopal Peace Fellowship, National Lawyers Guild, War Resisters League, American Deserters Committee, Sweden, and Toronto American Exile Group.

Unquestionably, the amnesty lobby will try to put across the notion that the U.S. government should be "generous." It should be understood, therefore, that the United States always has been very generous with authentic pacifists who base their actions on religious grounds. For decades, the United States has made provision for conscientious objectors. But the war resisters and deserters of the Vietnam era weren't authentic pacifists. They simply opposed fighting the communist regime in Hanoi.

The amnesty lobby wants the next President of the United States to grant blanket amnesty to anyone who refused to serve in the armed forces during the Vietnam War, or who deserted.

The United States already has been extraordinarily generous in its clemency offer to those who refused to perform their military duties. It would be unconscionable to extend blanket amnesty to those who refused to fight for their country, who fled abroad, or who deserted from the armed services. Amnesty, in other words, is an insult to every citizen who served his country in Vietnam.

Congressman Ashbrook rightly said that "While some compromise is always a part of the legislative and executive decision process, some matters of principle should never be the subject of any compromise, and the concept of total amnesty is one of those which should be categorically rejected."

Nothing could be more true. The future security of this country depends on a citizenry aware of its obligation to defend the nation, and ready to do so. A nation that does not impose such a requirement on its citizenry, and that does not uphold the principle of service, is unworthy of nationhood. Indeed, a country that doesn't hold its citizenry to this duty is unlikely to last very long.

Congressman Ashbrook said in his speech that all Americans should find out where the presidential and congressional candidates stand on this vital issue. This is, indeed, an issue on which it is tremendously important for the voters to be fully informed.

Just in jest

Had it not been that my car conked out, thus rendering me temporarily immobile — in other words, an unhappy pedestrian — you probably wouldn't be reading these words of doubtful wisdom. In fact, had not a certain Pomona auto dealership's service manager, who shall remain nameless, reneged on his repair time date and added another half day to my immobilization miseries, this little gem you are now reading certainly wouldn't have been polished to the degree you now find it.

For, as an astute literary critic once pointed out, "The trouble with today's writers is that when they can find nothing better to do, they write." And so, be assured, what you are now about to read is all the fault of that nameless auto dealer's nameless service department manager. For in my role of unhappy pedestrian, I found myself ambling down the street to watch a yard sale in progress.

As a result, I now know that a yard sale is a place where otherwise sane and supposedly intelligent individuals invariably end up paying twice what they are worth for other people's mistakes and castoffs.

The public forum

This is not Rome

Dear Editor:

I hope that your readers can tolerate at least one more comment regarding Bilingual/Bicultural Education, because after reading the July 13th letter by Edla Becker, entitled, "When You Are in Rome," I felt an overwhelming compulsion to speak.

Before I moved to this area a short while ago, I worked as a Curriculum Consultant for the Michigan Education Association's Minority Affairs Division, specializing in Black Studies, so I am very well acquainted with the enormous benefits which can be derived from the effective implementation of a viable multi-ethnic/multi-cultural curriculum in the public schools. I am also quite familiar with the many forms of resistance which often accompany any school district's efforts to institute such equitable reforms — particularly in the area of bilingual education.

Having had the experience of presenting numerous conferences and workshops on multi-ethnic curriculum development for Michigan's educators, I am no longer surprised by remarks and attitudes such as those expressed by Mrs. Becker. They are merely the offspring of misinformation, and should be patiently corrected.

Mrs. Becker's interpretation of the "American Dream" certainly has merit since it is a product of her own experiences, but it cannot be applied to all of the groups which comprise this country, and definitely not to Third World Americans, (Blacks, Latinos, Native Americans and Asian Americans) who, because of our high visibility, have not been able to be assimilated into the majority power structure as easily as the white immigrants, and have become easy victims of racism and discrimination.

Our experiences here are also different in terms of our origins. This is supposedly a nation of immigrants; however, with the exception of the Asian American, Third World Americans did not voluntarily migrate to this country as did the white ethnic groups. It is no historical secret how the Native American and Black became U.S. citizens, (the former had his land stolen and the latter was stolen from his land) but there seems to be some confusion concerning how the Chicano got here. Mrs. Becker's emphatic question, "My God, why do these people live in the U.S. in the first place!" attests to her need for information.

If our history textbooks were not generally so biased, we could clearly see that Chicano "roots" lie right here along with those of the Native American, since what we now know as the United States southwest, was once the Mexican north, inhabited by Mexican citizens who didn't just disappear after their defeat in the Mexican War with the U.S. In fact, under the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, signed by Mexican and U.S. representatives in 1848, those Mexicans who were captured behind the newly established boundary lines were offered full U.S. citizenship and guaranteed the rights to their culture, language, religion, property and other civil rights.

Unfortunately, as was the case with the U.S. treaties with Native American tribes, the terms of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo have also been sorely unfulfilled by the U.S. government. Consequently, in their demands for a bilingual/bicultural education and even "special teachers and special foods in the cafeteria" for their children. Chicano parents are not seeking anything which is not already rightfully theirs. Furthermore, contrary to Becker's belief that "surely you will not experience this being done in any other country," bilingual and even multi-lingual educational programs have been operating in numerous countries for years — Mexico being one of them!

As for the Spanish/English ballots, I can think of no reason other than bigotry or a misplaced sense of self-importance for any person being "insulted" by their use. Bilingual ballots serve a very necessary purpose and are printed according to a regional ethnic makeup. Thus, if there is a large concentration of Spanish-speaking, but not of German-Italian-French, etc.-speaking people in a particular area, there is no need to include those other non-English languages on the ballot, as Mrs. Becker suggests. Of course, not all Chicanos or other Latinos will need or choose to vote in Spanish, but those who do, should have that right.

It may be true, Mrs. Becker, that "when in Rome, you should do as the Romans do," but this is not Rome, nor is this a homogeneous "melting pot." The United States is supposedly a nation which prides itself on the diversity of its racial and cultural groups. To demand, then, that these diverse groups relinquish their uniqueness and conform to a single cultural standard, is presumptuous, to say the least.

Let's educate the educators

Oh, that was funny! But it sure shows you the kind of people who have moved into certain echelons of state government. The California State Board of Education conducted a survey of seventh graders — then berated the youngsters for not knowing better.

But the youngsters proved smarter than the educators who were asking the questions. California State Board of Education sample-surveyed 12,656 seventh graders. One of the multiple-choice questions on the survey was:

"Is the United States a representative democracy, a parliamentary democracy, a direct democracy or a dictatorship?" Now the board published, with a proclamation of chagrin, the results of the survey.

The state educators say they are distressed to learn that "only 43 percent answered correctly that our country is a representative democracy."

Twenty-eight percent has said a "parliamentary democracy." Sixteen percent had said a "direct democracy," and nine percent had said a "dictatorship."

But California State Schools Superintendent Wilson Riles expressed official embarrassment that only 43 per cent had "answered correctly" that "ours is a representative democracy."

Superintendent Riles and his board will be further distressed to learn that the 43 percent were wrong — and the California State Board of Education is wrong.

Ours is not a "representative democracy"; never was. Ours is a "representative republic." You'll not find the word "democracy" in any of our nation's cornerstone documents; not once. Nor is it included in any of our several states' constitutions.

Ours is a "representative republic." ". . . and to the Republic for which it stands . . ."

What's happened is that the California State Board of Education allowed its survey to be prepared by some people who grew up believing anything F.D.R. said.

And it was he, with the willing compliance of his partisan compatriots, who adopted the designation "democracy" hoping that it would thereafter be equated with the "Democratic" party.

It was a political embarrassment to F.D.R. to be reminded that our nation is a "republic." This tended to endow the Republican Party with a prior claim which F.D.R. envied.

There are several versions of how he set about to redesignate our country. One version credits Jim Farley with suggesting it but, whoever had the idea first, it was President Roosevelt who carefully included the word "democracy" in most every public utterance.

Webster never did go along withe the fraudulent definition. The dictionary continues to identify "democracy" as what it truly is: "majority rule."

Majority rule, of course, is the same as mob rule. Ours is a "social democracy" perhaps. But politically, our carefully designed tripartite government is a "republic." Another significant inheritance which is being dissipated by disuse:

With the specific exception of the Constitution (which purposely confined itself to civil law) each of our nation's cornerstone documents called upon the guidance and blessing of Almighty God.

If, in the name of separating "Church and State," we also divorce "God and Country" we pervert our founders' most noble purpose.

Think on these things

You are a very special person, but you have to know it in a most unusual way. You must know that you didn't come to this place, at this time, to be just anybody — you came to be yourself — unique and single, the result of many things blended together. Many experiences, many feelings, and confrontations without number have carved you out of time and circumstance.

The past no longer matters, except that it has formed the present. You have the potential of so much that has never been used — fine, rare, qualities that no other person in the world possesses. If you can put down all the weights you believe are tied to you forever, there is a wide-open future where the sky is the limit. Nothing can stop you from being the good, honest, forward-looking person you were intended to be.

Thoughts

And he said to them, "The sabbath was made for man, not man for the sabbath; so the Son of man is lord even of the sabbath." — Mark 2:27,28.

"The longer I live the more highly do I estimate the Christian sabbath, and the more grateful do I feel to those who impress its importance on the community." — Daniel Webster, American orator.

With the loyal thou dost show thyself loyal; with the blameless man thou dost show theyself blameless; with the pure thou does show thyself pure; and with the crooked thou does show thyself perverse. — Psalm 18:25,26.

Senate leadership struggle

NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter, looking ahead to the possibility that he may become president in January, has expressed an intense interest in the Senate leadership struggle.

He has questioned a number of senators about the outcome, which is expected to narrow down a choice between Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D.-Minn., and Sen Robert Byrd, D.-W.Va.

Carter's private questions indicate concern that Humphrey, as a national leader with his own following, might use the leadership post to push his own policies.

The Democratic presidential candidate seems less concerned about Byrd who is a political mechanic more interested in running the Senate than in policymaking.

Carter satisfied himself after a 20-minute visit with Byrd that they could work together, our sources say. But at this writing, Carter hadn't spoken to Humphrey about the leadership race except for a brief reference to it on the telephone.

When the late Lyndon Johnson ran the Senate, he dominated its backrooms, wheeling and dealing, suffocating his supporters in his embrace, trampling down his opponents with the finesse of one of his prize bulls. As the Senate Democratic leader, he became almost as powerful as the President.

His successor, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D.-Mont., is as different from Johnson as ginger ale is from a martini. Mansfield relies on friendly persuasion to work his will. He never pressures, never pushes.

Humphrey, if he should now replace Mansfield, would be a more aggressive Senate leader. For that matter, Byrd has also shown an independent streak.

Of the 60 Democrats now in the Senate, Byrd told Carter that 33 had promised to vote for him. Byrd added that he expected to line up another half dozen by January. However, Humphrey has disputed Byrd's arithmetic, claiming that most senators are still uncommitted.

Meanwhile, another contender for the Senate leadership, Sen. Ed Muskie, D.-Me., offered privately to withdraw from the race in Humphrey's favor. Then Humphrey approached Sen. Ernest Hollings, D.-S.C., another contender, about withdrawing. Humphrey mentioned that Muskie had offered to pull out.

This got back to Muskie, who felt Humphrey had violated his confidence. Our sources say Muskie's nose was out of joint. We checked with Humphrey, who acknowledged that Muskie's nose "was bent slightly" over the incident. We couldn't reach Muskie for his comment.

CARTER AND KISSINGER: If the presidential election came down to a choice between Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger would pick the peanut farmer.

Sources close to Kissinger say he would stay out of the campaign if Reagan were nominated and would not speak out against the Republican candidate. Those who have heard Kissinger discuss the candidates privately, however, say he is the least enthusiastic about Reagan.

On the campaign trail, Carter has denounced Kissinger's secretive style and his "one-man policy of international adventure," calling him the "Lone Ranger." But Carter's foreign policy pronouncements don't really differ much from what Kissinger has been saying.

Carter appears to be more friendly toward the underdeveloped nations and more interested in Latin American affairs. But on most other basic issues, Carter and Kissinger seem to share similar opinions.

In speeches around the country and in leaks to selected newsmen, meanwhile, Kissinger has been hammering home his foreign policy views. "He's trying to engrave on stone everything he has ever done," one State Department source confided. "No matter who the next president is, Kissinger wants him locked on the present course."

The Secretary of State began making regular monthly foreign policy speeches across the country in 1974. We could find no evidence that he has stepped up the schedule in recent months.

Carter's foreign policy stands have been produced, under his direction, by an elite group of advisers drawn from an Eastern establishment of lawyers and academics.

The 30-man task force is now writing some 40 "position papers" on every issue from African policy to the world food crisis. Its members include such foreign policy stalwarts as former Deputy Defense Secretary Cyrus Vance, former State Undersecretary George Ball, former Deputy Assistant State Secretary Richard Gardner and Columbia University professor Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The professor heads the team. In the past, he has been more militant than the advisers under him who, for the most part, are noted for their moderate views.

Kissinger and Brzezinski, both foreign-born, both renowned in the academic world, have been rivals. But except for personalities, Kissinger and Carter appear to be of a like mind.

This was admitted by one of Carter's top advisers. "There are some differences in style and emphasis," he told us, "but they do share a number of common views."

Footnote: Kissinger has told friends that if he were to guess, he would expect Carter to choose Vance as his Secretary of State. But the Democrat who is best qualified, Kissinger said, is ex-Sen. William Fulbright D.-Ark.

CIA FOOTNOTE: A group of conservative leaders, led by Rep. Philip Crane, R.-Ill., were entertained and briefed on the wonders of the Thieu regime during a visit to Saigon in 1974. Now it turns out that their sponsors were secretly funded by the Central Intelligence Agency.

The trip was partially financed by the Vietnamese Council on Foreign Relations. The American guests came back parroting the council's line about the glories of South Vietnam. They also denied the existence of the vicious "tiger cages" where Thieu's prisoners were kept.

No mention was made that the council got $170,000 in 1974-75 from the CIA. Not even all the directors and patrons of the council knew about the secret CIA support.

Brass planter pole received

More than two months ago I ordered a brass planter pole and sent a check for $16.20 to Village Square in Emerson, N.J.

To date, I have received nothing, not even the courtesy of a reply to a letter of inquiry sent a month after the order was placed and a certified letter sent later on.

As a rule I shop locally whenever possible but in this instance I couldn't find a nice pole in brass so took my chances on a mail order, much to my distress.

The planter pole was to be a gift for my daughter-in-law. I would appreciate any help you could give me. — Mrs. J. O., Chino.

You hadn't enclosed a copy of your canceled check. At our request you sent it promptly. We wrote to Village Square, enclosing your letter and canceled check. You received your long awaited planter pole, equally promptly.

I had my house mortgaged with the Lincoln Savings and Loan Association in Los Angeles from 1966 through February 1975.

Lincoln transferred the account to the Majestic Savings and Loan Association in Denver.

Majestic increased my house payment from $129 to $148 effective in March 1975. It was explained that I had to pay another escrow on this transaction. Also, no life insurance is included.

When I had my mortgage with Lincoln Savings and Loan the $129 included hazard insurance and life insurance in case of death.

Could you help me to clarify this transaction? — E. A., Montclair.

Clarence M. Hughes, assistant vice president of Majestic, replied to your questions and ours with a different set of facts.

He said that Majestic solicited your business as a convenience, not a requirement, and that if you wish to continue coverage with your former insurance company, you must make your payment directly to that company.

In checking the history of your mortgage with both Lincoln and Majestic, he said, Majestic couldn't find any monthly payment to your account for $129 in two years."

"Perhaps Mr.A- made this payment some time in the past," he stated, "but at the time the loan was transferred in January 1975, his monthly payments were $144.35."

As to your reference regarding escrow, he said Majestic is required by the deed of trust on property to escrow one-twelfth of the taxes, insurance and FHA insurance per month and therefore analyzes each account every year to consider any increases or decreases in these escrowed items. Your account was analyzed in 1975 and 1976.

You were notified at the time the loan was transferred, he said, that Majestic is not equipped to disburse life insurance premiums to the various number of life insurance companies across the country.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be aware of your priorities. Look out for the family and those under your wing at work. You'll find more luck and appreciation in these quarters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Some pesky stumbling blocks can be thrown in your path today. They could deter you unless you keep a positive attitude and overcome them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Prospects for enhancing your well-being are excellent today, but only if you keep Johnny-come-latelys out of the action and your sympathy.

CANCER — (June 21-July 22) A rather unusual day is in store. Goals you thought to be important won't be. Others you thought were insignificant will be of real value.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Without being sneaky, keep your motives to yourself today. People seeking your confidence actually want to feather their own nests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Keep faith with one you're closely associated with. He has your best interest at heart. Another may try to lead you to believe otherwise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though conditions around you may be in a turmoil today, your innate sense of fair play will keep things on an even keel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The intestinal fortitude you display in standing up for co-workers will be remembered if you're ever in the same boat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Taking a flyer will appeal to you today, but don't expect all your long shots to pay off. However, a wisely-calculated risk might.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Though others try to pooh-pooh your innovative ideas, stick to your guns. Are they jealous because they didn't think of them first?

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This day should be a profitable one, but you must keep a close accounting. You could bargain overzealously.

Your Birthday, July 17, 1976

The lofty goals you set for yourself are attainable this coming year. Your only problem could be impatience at moving more slowly than you desire.

Ann Landers

Just have to change scenery

Dear Ann Landers: A few months ago I moved to Kalamazoo, Mich., from Grand Rapids. Although the cities are not far apart, it's like a different world.

I have always been involved with church and club work. In Grand Rapids, I was active in many groups and the women were lovely. I've met some fine women here in Kalamazoo, but they are older and seem to be preoccupied with their illnesses and operations. I attended a lunch meeting this afternoon and the conversation was a rehash of everyone's surgery. One woman told about her ovarian cyst, "the size of a lemon." Another woman described her uterine tumor as "big as a grapefruit." A third lady, not to be outdone, said her fibroid was the largest the doctor had ever seen — "as big as a watermelon."

Such topics are boring and unappetizing. I've tried without success to turn the conversations to more uplifting subjects. What do you suggest? — New In Town

Dear New: I've been to Kalamazoo and I can tell you there are many women there who can talk about something besides their operations.

If you are fed up with "organ recitals" (and who can blame you), find new friends. There are all kinds of women everywhere. People, like water, seek their own level.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the lady who asked if her unemployed husband has the right to ask for sex after 11 at night when she must be at work at 8 in the morning.

It seems to me the lady's problem isn't that her husband wants sex after 11 p.m., but that he is unemployed! How would she feel about his sex drive if he had a job? Would she still be too tired?

If so, she has a third problem — she doesn't want sex ANY time, under ANY conditions. When does she think other working couples make love?

If Mrs. Too Tired really objects to the time of night, she could solve the problem very easily by suggesting that they get cozy the minute she walks in the door after work — or the first thing in the morning. I'll bet he'd be delighted no matter what the hour. — No Timekeeper

Dear N.T.: "Getting cozy" the minute Mrs. Working Wife walks in the door is fine, provided (1) they have no kids, (2) someone has at least started the supper.

Morning makes better sense, assuming, of course, that she is a canary and he is a rooster.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman with a seven-year-old daughter. When she visits her father they sleep in the same bed. I don't like to make waves unless I am sure of my ground, because my ex has a very short temper. When he blows his top, he's like a crazy man.

Do you think this arrangement might be harmful to the child? I won't say anything till I hear from you. What do you say? — Midwestern Mama

Dear Mama: I've said it dozens of times, but I'll say it again. Children should not be permitted to sleep with their parents.

If your ex has an explosive temper, ask your pediatrician to write him a note stating the facts. If the sleeping together continues, see your lawyer about revising your husband's visiting privileges.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Who does what for whom?

Where do bankers bank? Where do bartenders drink? Where does the doctor turn when he feels ill? What does the lawyer do when his wife sues him for divorce?

It has always puzzled me about these members of our society who perform essential services to society — who performs the essential service for them? I mean, bankers, bartenders and barristers are human beings just like us. If you prick them, do they not bleed? If you tickle them, do they not laugh? If you poison them, do they not die? Who fixes the dentists's teeth? Who buries the mortician?

The popular image of a banker is a chubby chap sitting astride a mound of first mortgages and dabbling his fingers in small heaps of silver dollars piled about his desk. This image is inaccurate. Bankers are not all chubby.

What does the vice president of a bank do when he gets his monthly pay check? Does he tiptoe across the marble hall, press that secret buzzer, and dip into the casher's drawer, or does he have to stand in those long lines like the rest of us, waiting for that open teller's window? "Do you have an account with us?" says the shiney-faced dollybird at the counter. Then she goes to check the ledgers to be sure the bank has enough balance to cover the check.

What happens when the bank v-p overdraws his account? Do they bounce his checks, or do they call him aside and say "Er — Mr. Edwards. About this check for $285. You—uh—you only have $31 in your checking account. Would you like to, um, take out a small loan with us?"

Suppose he's in charge of auto loans and needs a loan to buy an automobile? What if he heads the escrow department and wants a new house? What if he is in charge of negotiable securities and has a home in Buenos Aires?

With bartenders it's a simpler matter. Like the bear in the woods, they drink wherever they want to. In the close fraternity of the mixologists, a brother is welcomed and well-treated at any lodge he happens upon.

In the medical profession it must be more complicated. Can a doctor listen to his own lungs with a stethoscope? Can he take his own blood pressure? Can he look in a mirror, depress his tongue with a tongue-depresser and say to himself, "Say 'Ah'?" Will he then scribble some cabalistic emblems on a prescription blank and say to himself, "Take eight of these three times a day, or three of them eight times a day, whichever comes first, and if I'm not better, call me in the morning."

The next day, seriously ill, he calls his office. The cheery voice of the recorded answering service greets him. "Good morning! Dr. Mal Practice's office. When you hear the bleep, give your symptoms. You have five seconds. Bleep. Sorry about that. Take two aspirin and call again tomorrow if you're still alive."

Where does the shoemaker buy his shoes? Who delivers mail to the home of the mailman? What does a policeman do when he's in an auto accident? Who does the plumber call when his toilet backs up on Sunday? (Toilets only back up on Sundays.)

Well, I for one salute these servants of society and applaud the services they are supplying to urban America. I just hope they are getting better satisfaction than the rest of the country.

Dr. Lamb

Avoid diet fad-frauds

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know something about the 4-in-1 vitamin, containing lecithin, kelp, vitamin B-6 and cider vinegar. Does this in anyway help in dieting? If so, how and how much should you take? I read that you should take two tablets after every meal. That's six a day or 42 tablets a week. Isn't that a lot to take?

DEAR READER — I wish people had as much interest in learning about a sensible diet that would give them a balanced diet and reverse or prevent obesity as they do in every new diet fraud — ooops fad — that comes along.

Lecithin contains choline which is important to your nutrition. You can get plenty of it from lean meat which should be part of your sensible diet. Lecithin that you take as tablets or in food serves no other useful purpose. The choline in a well balanced diet is used by your liver to manufacture your own lecithin.

You will get all the vitamin B-6 you need in a well balanced diet. Taking an excess amount will not cause your body to miraculously start shedding pounds of energy (fat is stored energy).

Kelp is a seaweed that contains iodine, which you can also get from iodized salt. It also provides some bulk in its natural state when used as a major component of the diet as it is in Japan. The additional iodine will not help. The excess will be eliminated. Those who are sensitive to iodine may develop an iodine reaction. Those who have small thyroid glands, because of surgical removal or because part of the thyroid has been destroyed by an infection, may have further damage to the thyroid and develop an advanced state of a low or absent thyroid function called Myxedema.

People lose weight because the body uses more calories than they consume. It is that simple. Your body uses energy to maintain itself, heat itslef and cool itself as well as in many complex chemical reactions. It also uses energy for physical activity at work or play. When this total exceeds the number of calories you are taking in you will lose weight. Sickness will cause you to lose fat because the illness causes the body to use far more calories. So the only benefit you get out of that diet you are talking about is an associated decrease in calorie intake that goes with the pills.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, to give you the basis for building your own balanced weight control diet. The trick is losing fat and staying slender is to learn how to eat properly. That is what a reducing diet should teach you. With that knowledge you can then stay on the kind of program that fits your life style and keeps you healthy as well as slim and beautiful.

People on crash diets end up failing, or slipping back to the old patterns that caused the obesity in the first place.

I'd like to emphasize again that crash diets may cause you to lose muscle mass. After the diet is over you will have to eat less every day than you should because you have lost vital muscle mass.

West's three-heart bid was correct because he trusted both his partner and his opponents. He trusted that his partner wouldn't suddenly decide to go on and bid four hearts. This wasn't too much trust. If East had any interest in playing four hearts, he would have bid three hearts over North's two spades.

As for trust in his opponents, West knew that they had stopped at two spades and neither one was going to decide to go to game after that first decision.

What other chance did West take? He might get doubled but who was going to double? He, West, had good trumps and his partner had bid the suit first.

What could West gain? He could get his opponents to three spades and maybe beat that contract one trick.

South really should have passed and watched three hearts get set, but he did bid three spades. He also might have made three spades, but he managed to lose one spade, two hearts, a club and a diamond so West's three-heart bid really paid off.

My dear, would you accept $25,000 to pose nude for a magazine centerfold? Nevermind, too personal. Merely ask preliminary to the report that Mae West,84, is said to have turned down such an offer from a publication called "Hustler." Claiming she hasn't changed since 1931, she offered instead a nude portrait of herself painted then.

Body's energy may power pacemaker

By John Hammarley
Associated Press Writer

Conventional cardiac pacemakers, which depend on batteries for their energy, someday may be replaced by a permanent model, powered by the body's own energy.

Scientists at the University of Missouri-Columbia and Massachusetts General Hospital say the new system, if perfected, would eliminate the need for repeated and often costly surgery to replace the standard artificial batteries.

The new device is expected to cost no more than a conventional pacemaker, about $1,500, and would weigh about half as much.

Allen Hahn, a biomedical engineer at Missouri, says although the model probably won't be ready for human experimentation for another five years, animal tests have proven successful.

"I would say probably another set of long-term animal experiments is needed before human transplantation can be considered," Hahn said in a recent interview.

About 300,000 persons in the world are being kept alive by artificial pacemakers attached to the walls of their hearts, statistics show. The vast majority of those using pacemakers require additional surgery to replace the worn out batteries.

The new device, called a hybrid biogalvanic cell, would eliminate the need for the second and sometimes third operation for battery replacement, Hahn said.

The principle behind the new pacemaker turns the body into a human battery. Two electrodes, one zinc and the other platinum, create a chemical reaction within the body.

The platinum reacts with the body's natural chemicals, which in turn causes oxygen to move from one electrode to the other. That movement creates electrical current.

Everyone has a natural pacemaker, an area of tissue in the upper right portion of the heart. When it fails to send impulses at consistent intervals and at sufficiently powerful levels, an artificial pacemaker is needed.

The current created by the chemical reaction in the new device imitates nature's pacemaker and sends new, regular impulses to the heart through tiny wires.

New developments in longerlasting batteries and the advent of nuclear pacemakers have taken some of the edge off the biogalvanic cell, Hahn said. However, the nuclear-driven pacemakers have the drawback of being expensive; they can cost up to $20,000.

Hahn believes the cost of his device and its weight, two ounces compared to the four of the conventional pacemaker, will help its acceptance.

"Two or four ounces isn't all that much, but when you're talking about a device hanging on the wall of your heart, everything counts," Hahn said.

New treatments for victims of psoriasis

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — New treatments hold hope of relief for six million Americans suffering the itchy and scaly psoriasis, a leading researcher says.

The treatments can bring relief for even the most seriously afflicted, said Dr. Eugene M. Farber, an psoriasis authority and head of the Second International Symposium on Psoriasis held this week at Stanford University.

But the relief is temporary and the new innovations in treatment must be continued — they are not cures, he said.

Thousands of psoriasis sufferers have the disease so extensively they must be hospitalized as the thick plates of dry skin spread over up to 90 per cent of their bodies, Farber said.

Psoriasis most commonly begins between the ages of 15 and 25, although it can begin at any time. The first signs are itching or scaling at elbows or scalp, but it can rapidly spread and become disfiguring, Farber said.

Most promising is the PUVA treatment, which combines long-wave ultraviolet light and a drug called 8-methoxypsoralen, a medication used by the ancient Egyptians, he said.

"Studies have shown that by using the treatment twice a week for 10 minutes for 15 to 20 treatments, 90 per cent of the patients clear up without the use of ointments," Farber said.

"Maintenance treatments are needed once a week or once every two weeks. About half the patients studied were controlled with just the minimum."

Another promising treatment, Farber said, involves swimming in Israel's Dead Sea and sunbathing for long periods. "The water is 38 per cent salt, and at 300 meters below sea level there is a lot of long-wave ultraviolet light while most of the burning rays are filtered out," Farber said.

"After three or four weeks the patients are remarkably improved, although about half relapse in three to four months. But for some European governments who are paying the cost of the patient's stay, (sending the patient to Israel) it is cheaper than hospitalizing the individual."

Construction era over

State highway plans stress maintenance

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $5.6 billion, six-year highway program placing more emphasis on maintenance, safety and congestion-cutting has been proposed by the state transportation department director.

The plan unveiled Wednesday by department director Adriana Gianturco marked another step by the state away from the era of massive highway construction of the 1950s and '60s.

A department spokesman said the proposal calls for construction of only about 100 miles of new roadway by the state during the fiscal years between 1977 and 1983, most of it in one Southern California project.

That compares with 700 miles built between 1971 and the current fiscal year.

Department officials planned to present the plan today to the State Highway Commission, which must approve the proposal before it can take effect.

Mrs. Gianturco called the program "realistic and workable" and said it followed four priorities she had established for an era of limited highway funds and changing transportation needs.

Those priorities call for maintaining existing roadways, developing projects designed to limit congestion and closing gaps in the system first and then building new roadways.

Department spokesman Jeff Rupp said the dollar total in the plan is about equal to what was spent during similar periods in the heyday of highway building.

But when an inflation is considered, "it's a smaller program," he added. "It buys much less."

There is "very little" new highway construction, he said. "The longest stretch I can think of is Interstate 15 in Southern California, which is 77 miles. The rest of it is small stuff."

The bulk of the $5.6 billion — 57 per cent — would go for maintenance, rehabilitation and new construction under the plan.

Sixteen per cent will be used to "make the system more safe and efficient," department officials said. And another 16 per cent will go to local governments for regional construction projects.

The remainder is earmarked for mass transit and administrative costs.

Major new projects in the proposal include:

— Construction of I-15 between Corona and Escondido.

— Closing the gaps on two other Southern California freeways, the Artesia and Simi.

— Converting 13 miles of two-lane road in Humboldt and Mendocino counties to expressway and freeway.

Rupp said that another major project, the completion of Interstate 5 between Sacramento and Stockton, has already been budgeted by the department.

Rupp said the department is looking at several possible ways that it feels congestion and air pollution can be cut on urban highways by encouraging motorists to use buses or car pools.

The first is construction of additional freeway bus lanes like the one now in use on the San Bernardino Freeway in Los Angeles. The second is the controversial diamond lanes used on the Santa Monica Freeway.

Third is the type of diamond lane program planned for Los Angeles' San Diego Freeway and the fourth is a freeway on-ramp stop light system that would give preferential treatment for car pools.

Critics contend that the Santa Monica diamond lane program, which limits traffic on the freeway's left lanes to buses and car pools during rush hours, has increased congestion.

The San Diego Freeway diamond lane will be a new lane carved out of the freeway center section.

Rupp said the department is studying the systems now. "Assuming that all or some of them turn out to be successful, there are plans to expand that," he said.

"I can't tell you what we'll do right now because we don't know what the results of the tests will be."

Other new major new highway programs include in the plan are:

— Closure of a gap on Route 4 just west of Route 680 in Concord.

— Construction of some projects to complete the routes 680-280-101 interchange in San Jose.

— Work on gaps in Route 580 near Hayward and the Grove-Shafter Freeway in Oakland.

— Work on the Century Freeway in Los Angeles.

— Widening Interstate 5 in San Clemente.

— Approaches to the Napa River Bridge on Route 29.

— Ramps to 4th Street and the Embarcadero from Route 280 in San Francisco.

— The Delhi Freeway on Route 99.

— Twelfth Avenue Interchange on Route 198 in Hanford.

Black nation in U.S. urged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Blacks who outnumber whites in five southern states should establish an independent Republic of New Africa based on the principal of "majority rule," says the president of the "provisional government" of the proposed country.

Imari Abubakari Obadele 1, formerly known as Richard B. Henry, told newsmen on Wednesday that Southern states Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississipi and South Carolina — where blacks collectively outnumber whites — would make up the RNA.

The socialist nation would be set up by the "massive transfer of capital to blacks, the transfer of billions of dollars. We want to uplift blacks. We do not want blacks on welfare," said Obadele.

The RNA is headquartered in Jackson, Miss. It was at the headquarters in August 1971 that FBI agents arrested Obadele and other RNA members after a gunfight which left one police lieutenant dead and other law enforcement officers injured.

Obadele is currently free on $25,000 bail pending appeal of his 12-year sentence in connection with the incident.

But even if his appeal is turned down by the U.S. Supreme Court, said Obadele, he would argue that the high court has no jurisdiction to convict him, since he is the head of a soon-to-be-sovereign nation.

The RNA chief said that blacks "have been brainwashed into thinking we're Americans."

He said he hopes to change that on Sept. 25, when the RNA will hold "municipal elections" in Mississippi to select a shadow government which will one day be the legal government in that area.

Mockingbird can sing constantly

WASHINGTON (AP)— A mockingbird can sing all day and all night if the mood strikes him, often to the dismay of those who must listen to his seemingly limitless repertoire, says the National Geographic Society.

According to one ornithologist, the bird — whose favorite season is spring — "borrows songs for no other purpose than to have something to sing. He weaves together and repeats song motifs of his own invention and others that he hears."

Mockingbirds can imitate other sounds too. A Dallas radio amateur traced odd messages to a mockingbird sending his own Morse code messages. A Washington mocker was known for his ability to sing along with the National Symphony Orchestra during outdoor concerts.

Brown to inspect Health Dept. thoroughly

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will personally inspect the troubled state Health Department and "go through every division and section and program," a top aide says.

One of the issues the Democratic governor will face is a recommendation by the Assembly Health Committee chairman to fire four Health Department officials.

Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, said Tuesday the officials should be fired for laxity in the investigation of a prepaid health plan, Omni-Rx Health Care, Inc., of Hawthorne. Keene called the investigation "a sham."

State Health and Welfare Secretary Mario Obledo made plans Tuesday for Brown's Health Department visit, his second since taking office. Obledo said it may take place next week after Brown returns from the Democratic Convention.

The department's problems cover not only prepaid health plans, but also Medi-Cal, nursing homes, state hospitals, and the question of whether the merger that created the huge department in Gov. Ronald Reagan's last years should be undone.

"He's going to learn all about it, question everybody," Obledo said. He said he'd told department staffers at a meeting Monday: "You'd better be prepared to answer his questions."

Keene, who headed a subcommittee investigating Omni-Rx, had harsher words for several Health Department officials, recommending the firing of:

—Dr. Raymond Goodman, chief of the health quality evaluations unit, who supervised a health quality audit of Omni-Rx. He earns $39,792 a year.

—Robert Ledbetter, program compliance chief of the division of alternative health systems, who supervised the investigation of Omni-Rx's complex finances. His salary is $26,000.

—James Harrell, chief auditor of prepaid health plans, who ran the Omni-Rx financial audit and testified he talked with a company official about a job before leaving the audit team. He earns $18,000.

—Evilio Ruiz, contract manager in charge of overseeing Omni-Rx's operations for the department. He makes $15,000.

In addition, Keene recommended the transfer of Victor Boisseree, the state's top prepaid health official, "for possible laxity in conducting the Omni-Rx investigation," and reprimanding of four auditors.

Prepaid health plans are paid by the state for providing care for Medi-Cal patients at a fixed monthly fee.

Omni-Rx has been accused of making excessive profits, violating subcontracting rules and providing poor care.

Keene contended department officials voluntarily limited their investigation to the dealings of the nonprofit health plan, even though the allegations involved affiliated profit-making companies. He said Omni-Rx was allowed to defy the department for months.

He was hardest on Ledbetter, saying the veteran official had caved in to Omni-Rx demands for limits on the department's audit. He said Ledbetter should have taken the first steps toward cancelling the state's contract when the company blocked the audit.

"The investigation of Omni-Rx was a sham and he was largely responsible," Keene said.

But Ledbetter denied that he'd ordered a limited audit. He said he'd demanded full access to the books, and told company officials, "If they didn't provide this information, I was going to take them to court."

He said current law blocks the state from inquiring fully into prepaid health plans' finances as long as health care is adequate.

But Keene disagreed, saying a court probably would have forced Omni-Rx to open its books.

He also said Harrell had "compromised" himself in discussing a job with an Omni-Rx official, and the action reflected on Ledbetter. But Ledbetter said he took Harrell off the audit as soon as he learned of the conversation. Keene said Goodman's study of Omni-Rx's health care relied on "selfserving information" from the company itself. He said the study listed the company's overall care as adequate, despite defects in dentistry and other fields.

Apricot growers awarded $140,000

MERCED (AP) — A jury has awarded $140,000 to 18 San Joaquin Valley apricot growers who contended their fruit was damaged by a fungicide sprayed on their orchards.

The Merced County Superior Court jury ruled that the plaintiffs were entitled to 90 per cent of the actual damage they claimed was caused by Benlate, manufactured by Dupont Chemical Co.

The growers themselves were to blame for the remaining 10 per cent of the damage, the jury ruled after a five-week trial.

The jurors denied $1 million punitive damages that had been sought for each grower.

Deaths of 50 wild horses laid to stress, lack of water

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Stress and subsequent shock, brought on by unknown factors and involving lack of water for an extended period, killed the 50 wild horses found dead earlier this month at Dugway Proving Ground, government investigators say.

They said they did not know what caused the stress and why the horses did not drink water when there was adequate supply. Some human activity, record heat and drought or a combination of factors may have put the animals under stress and caused them to stay away from their normal water sources, the investigators said.

They said their investigation is continuing.

Robert C. McCandless, a Washington, D.C., attorney who attended the news conference held by investigators recently, said that unless more complete answers are forthcoming the American Horse Protection Association, which he represents, will seek them in court.

"They've got to stop allowing this type of thing to happen, or they've got to explain it better than this," he fold reporters.

The government said the first dead horses were discovered July 4 during a routine overflight of the Western Utah military proving ground, known in the past for the testing of chemical warfare agents.

But the investigators emphasized at the news conference that tests showed no chemical poisoning in the horses and that there has been no open air chemical testing at Dugway since 1969. And they insisted there was no chance other military activity such as artillery maneuvers by the Wyoming National Guard last month played a role.

WHEN JIM DANDY took the stand to witness for "God and Jesus Christ, his only son" in the same southern preacher style he often uses to exhort his audiences as the lead singer for BLACK OAK ARKANSAS, you knew Brother J.D. Tedder was in for a long day in Boone County Circuit Court.

It was Tedder who tried to stop a BOA benefit concert in Harrison, Arkansas, last year, blasting BOA as a "mongrel group of satanic origins that is promoting drugs, sex and revolution." Dandy and company promptly sued the preacher, charging slander.

At the trial, Dandy tesified that it hurt him when the group's children asked him "if God is mad at us" after Tedder said Black Oak was "acting like devils." The group denied they were for revolution, guardedly admitted they weren't against sex, and played their radio and TV spots warning their fans away from hard drugs.

The middle-aged jurors were apparently impressed — they voted unanimously to clear the band's name, sticking Rev. Tedder with the $100 court costs. Later, Dandy sermonized, "Lies should not be hidden beneath the cloth."

STAN KENTON STARTED IT. In an editorial in last fall's Creative World, a quarterly he sends to his fans, the jazz great called country western music a "national disgrace . . . ignorant, perverted . . . full of self-righteousness and self-pity."

CHARLIE DANIELS took issue in an interview with writer AL COOLEY, portions of which were published in "Texas Music." Daniels said the reason Kenton and earlier critic BUDDY RICH slammed country music is that, "It's human-being music and they're not human beings . . . National disgrace? He's (Kenton's) a — national disgrace!" In the interview, Daniels bet either Kenton or Rich $10,000 that they couldn't cut one "decent" country record.

Daniels hadn't done his homework on Kenton. In 1962, Kenton recorded an album with Tex Ritter; the same year he cut a single called 'Mama Sang a Song' that BILL ANDERSON also recorded. Kenton sent Daniels a copy of the Kenton-Ritter album with a bill for $10,000.

In June, Daniels wrote back, telling Kenton: "I've just been too busy playing music to argue about music." He didn't mention the $10,000.

"I'm not satisfied (with his response)," Kenton told us. "I think he got in a little over his head."

JAN AND DEAN REUNITED for two songs at a surf oldies show at North Hollywood's Palamino recently. It was the first time in 10 years — since JAN BERRY was nearly killed in a car crash in 1966 — that the pair had performed together. For a man who had to learn to walk and talk again, Berry seemed in good shape as he and DEAN TORRENCE sang "Little Old Lady from Pasadena" and "Dead Man's Curve."

Later, Dean said he'd like to record and perform again (he's headed Kittyhawk Graphics, an album design firm, the last eight years), but it won't be with Jan. "We're still extremely good friends and we could have gotten together on a full-time basis again, but I'm afraid it wouldn't be as good as it should be," he said, adding that he's guiding a San Jose-based surf band called PAPA DOO RUN RUN.

Ferry celebrated by releasing his version of WILBERT HARRISON'S "Let's Work Together," in England. Rozhdestvensky is making his Hollywood Bowl debut after his highly successful appearances with the orchestra at the Los Angeles Music Center in February.

On Tuesday he will conduct an all-Prokofieff program consisting of the cantata "Alexander Nevsky," with the Los Angeles Master Chorale and mezzo-soprano Florence Quivar as soloist; Piano Concerto No. 1, with Viktoria Postnikova (Mrs. Rozhdestvensky) as soloist, and "Sycthian Suite."

The Thursday concert will be made up of Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3; Symphony No. 3 by Saint-Saens, and Bruch's Violin Concerto No. 1, with Sylvia Marcovici as soloist.

DYING MONARCH — Helen Ryan as Queen Alexandra watches at the bedside of King Edward VII (Timothy West) in the British-made television serial, "Edward VII," which has been bought by CBS-TV. It is one of the many British imports that threaten America's position as the world's leading exporter of television.

The British are coming!

A threat to U.S. TV

By Jeff Bradley

LONDON (AP) — The madcap antics of "Monty Python's Flying Circus" on American television screens is one of the more recent milestones in a spectacular British TV invasion.

America's Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) is even being called the "purely British service" because of the influx of British TV programs.

"Upstairs, Downstairs," "No Honestly," "The Goodies," "Coronation Street," and "The Pallisers" are just some of the shows making big profits for Britain on the small screen abroad.

"For once we're doing all right," said Denis Scuse, head of program sales at Yorkshire-Tyne Tees Television, one of the "big five" independent TV companies that together with the publicly-financed British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) are grossing an estimated 32 million pounds ($59 million) a year in sales around the world.

The British say they won't be satisfied until they surpass the $100 million in sales chalked up by U.S. TV makers annually.

The big British push began in 1969 when America's 250-station PBS network showed the BBC's gripping serial "The Forsyte Saga."

Since then Americans, Europeans, Australians, New Zealanders, Japanese, South Africans and Canadians have been entertained and informed by British programs such as Alastair Cooke's "America," Kenneth Clark's "Civilization," and Keith Mitchell in "The Six Wives of Henry VIII."

"The Forsyte Saga" has now been sold by the BBC to 90 countries, and BBC documentaries and dramas are a big hit with Russian viewers, one of the newest markets to open to the British TV invasion.

Sweden's most popular program is Granada TV's "Family at War," shown this year for the third time in that country.

The five big commercial TV companies in Britain are Yorkshire, Granada, Thames, London Weekend and Sir Lew Grade's ATV (Associated Television). ATV surpasses the others, including the BBC, in sales.

ATV hopes to earn 20 million pounds ($37 million) in overseas sales this year alone.

"Americans can beat us at making glossy action features such as 'Kojak,' 'Hawaii Five-O,' and 'Ironside,' but they can't match us at anything else," Sir Lew said in an interview.

The most adventurous inroads into the overseas market, however, come from Thames Television, which has announced that it is taking over WOR-TV in New York for a week in September.

The plan is to show New Yorkers what a typical night's viewing is like here, complete with commercials for British-made products available in the States. Viewers will see shows like "Sweeney," a tough police drama, and the recently introduced "Rock Follies," about a trio of girl singers, written by a 33-year-old expatriate New Yorker, Howard Schumann.

The BBC grossed over 5 million pounds ($9.25 million) in sales last year, selling about 9,000 hours of programs abroad. Shaun Sutton, a BBC executive, explained the success this way: "At the BBC we can experiment with drama, and we even fail occasionally. We also produce some dramas which we know won't appeal to big audience. The Americans could never do that. Everything is geared to profits."

As a means of getting profitable distribution rights to new series, U.S. film and TV companies have invested 1.5 million pounds ($2.5 million) in coproductions with the BBC. These include a 10-part serialization of Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina," and dramatizations of "Lorna Doone" and the Dickens novel "Nicholas Nickleby."

Granada TV has signed a coproduction deal with NBC for a series of plays under the banner "Salute to America," to be produced by Sir Laurence Olivier.

There's a final spin-off for British TV: shows not bought outright are being adapted. The Americans, for instance, bought rights to Britain's "Till Death Us Do Part" and turned it into the big hit "All in the Family." "Steptoe and Son" became "Sanford and Son," and most recently, the prison comedy series "Porridge" was screened in the states as "On the Rocks."

D'land slates Dorsey band

The Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, conducted by Murray McEachern, opens a week-long engagement at Disneyland Sunday. Also performing at the Anaheim amusement center will be The Four Tops.

Evening showings of "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks and twice daily performances of the Bicentennial pageant "America on Parade" are also featured.

Appearing on stage in front of Fantasyland's "It's a Small World" attraction, The Four Tops will offer their soulful sounds during 9:15 and 11:15 p.m. shows Sunday through next Friday.

For guests preferring the big band era of music, the Dorsey orchestra will entertain Sunday through July 24 at Main Street's Plaza Gardens from 8:15 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Offering still another brand of music, the All-American College Singers and the All-American College Marching Band will perform at various locations. Composed of talented college students from all over the United States, these musical groups will entertain Disneyland guests throughout the summer.

Tinker Bell's sparkle touches off "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks each evening at 9 p.m.

Park hours are 8 a.m. to 1 a.m. daily throughout the week.

TV shows win awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prizes totaling $50,000 have been awarded by the Human Family Institute to the television shows "Farewell to Manzanar," "MASH" and "Family."

The Humanitas Prizes, funded by the Lilly Endowment of Indianapolis, are presented to TV programs "which most fully communicate those values which enrich the human person."

"Farewell to Manzanar," written by Jeanne Wkatsuki, James D. Houston and John Korty, showed the closeness of a Japanese family during wartime internment. "Family," by Jay Presson Allen, explored contemporary living. Larry Gelbart of "MASH" was chosen for his show's indictment of war.

Film signups

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie castings:

'The Robber Bridegroom'

Forum offers bright comedy

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

If you think you would enjoy a noisy, fast-paced, hilarious musical, replete with country music and foot-stompin' square dances, in which a robber carries his brother's head around in a trunk and the blonde heroine strips to the buff and scampers around the stage for several minutes, don't miss "The Robber Bridegroom," which opened Thursday night at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center.

"The Robber Bridegroom" is a bawdy, boisterous comedy adapted from a novella of Eudora Welty, who in turn drew on Grimms' fairy tales and the history of the lower Mississippi during the early 1800's. The pungent book and lyrics are by Alfred Uhry, the hoe-down music and river ballads by Robert Waldman — now robust and rollicking, now bittersweet and introspective.

Rhonda Coullet is Rosamund, the nymphet enamored of the gentleman brigand, and she offers a persuasive portrayal of a loving daughter with only one thing on her mind, a wistful maid with the same thing on her mind and a frantically funny comedienne — with one thing on her mind. She is a pure delight. When the mysterious "forest bandit" takes her dress, petticoat, knickers and the rest of her clothes, she says plaintively, "Arent' you going to take anything else?" (He says, "Yeah — give me your gold hairpins.")

Barry Bostwick, twice nominated for Tony Awards, is the rough, romantic stud, a skilled actor who projects a virile character of limited aspirations — gold and the girl, in that order. Bostwick lacks the flavor of coarse humor that permeates the rest of the cast, but he does his Douglas Fairbanks thing with aplomb.

Also outstanding in the Hee-Haw cast are Stephen Vinovich as Rosamund's father and Barbara Lang as the Wicked Stepmother. They are comics of the first water, tight-roping the frail line between high comedy and caricature and never tripping. Miss Lang is especially notable for her malignant buffoonery — at one point she offers her wayward stepdaughter a shiny red apple.

Stealing most of the kudos for comedy is round-faced Trip Plymale as Goat, a simpleton. This young man is a superb comedian from pratfalls to witty subtlety, riotous and ingratiating.

Among the others who contribute richly to the pervading insanity are Lawrence Moss as Little Harp, a robber; bearded Ernie Sabella as Big Harp, the talkative head carried in a trunk; Susan Berger as Goat's mother; and Carolyn McCurry as a raven. (Don't ask me to explain it — go see the show.)

The production values of "The Robber Bridegroom" are excellent. The stage is all beams and timbers, kegs and barrels, plank floor and open frame attic, the tasteful work of Douglas Schmidt. Donald Saddler's choreography is vigorous and imaginative. (Who choreographed the constant movement and change of the furniture and stage props? A work of art.) Jeanne Button's costumes are inventive and spritely, and the lighting by David Segal is very effective.

The music, subtle or blasting as the occasion demands, is provided by the McVoutie River Volunteers, directed by Tony Trischka, a vital contribution to the performance.

"The Robber Bridegroom" is given smooth, fast-tempo direction by Gerald Freedman. The play is presented in association with John Houseman, Michael Kapon and Margot Harley, by arrangement with the Acting Company of New York City.

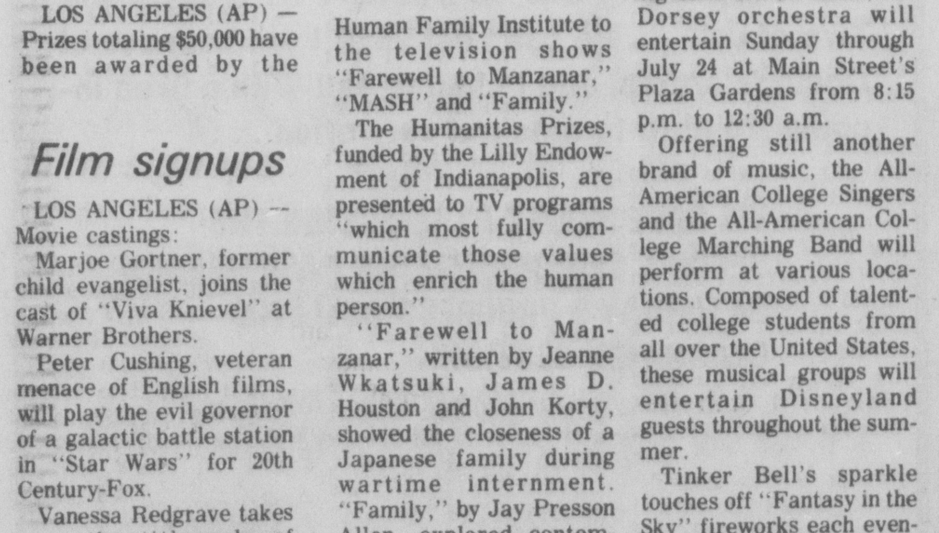
Folksinger set for Redlands

Guitarist Sam Hinton, internationally known folksinger and scientist, will present a program at the Redlands Bowl at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday. Admission is by free will donation.

Born in Oklahoma, Hinton grew up there and in Texas, singing folksongs with his sisters. He didn't start playing the guitar until college days, when he and his sisters formed a trio and eventually appeared on Major Bowes Amateur Hour.

Hinton has wide array of talents and interests, one of the earliest being natural history, specifically turtles, snakes and lizards, which he collected for museums while still in high school. This led to extracting and selling venom from water moccasins to pharmaceutical firms, and also to doing scientific illustration.

BIRD IN THE HAND — Bird trainer Barbara Firestone checks some of her performing cockatoos that are featured in "The Good Old Days Are Here" at Busch Gardens in Van Nuys. They appear at the new floating theater where they ride unicycles and merry-go-rounds and enact scenes from the turn-of-the-century. The amusement park is open from 10 a.m. to midnight daily through Labor Day.



FINGER PICKIN' GOOD — John Hartford will join Will Geer, Peter Yarrow, Larry Groce and 40 featured acts at the outdoor folk music festival, the KPFK American Folk Fair and Country Crafts Market at Fort MacArthur, San Pedro, Saturday and Sunday.

KPFK to stage folk festival

One of the summer's largest outdoor folk music festivals, KPFK's American Folk Fair and Country Crafts Market, will be held at Fort MacArthur, San Pedro, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and July 24 and 25.

Headlining the activities will be John ("Gentle on My Mind") Hartford; Peter Yarrow, formerly of Peter, Paul & Mary; Larry ("Junk Food Junkie") Groce and country favorite Rose Maddox. Will Geer (Grandpa Walton) and family will present "A Tribute to Woody Guthrie."

On the ocean view site near Marineland festival string band, ballad, bluegrass and country musicians will perform at a bustling crafts and entertainment fair, providing day-long activities for the whole family.

Traditional games, crafting demonstrations, square dancing, clowns, jugglers, mimes, puppeteers, magicians, comedians, Victorian bicycle and tight-rope walking lessons, surround a crafts village with 80 colorful displays. Food and drink for meals or snacks include Buffalo kebobs.

CLOUDY SUNSHINE — Joe Dolan, left, as Al Lewis, and Keith Mills as Willie Clark have a difference of opinion in the Gallery Theater production of "The Sunshine Boys." The Neil Simon comedy has its final performances at 8 o'clock tonight and Saturday. "My Fair Lady" opens at the theater, C Street and Lemon Avenue, Ontario, at 8 p.m. next Friday.

'Equus' stand goes on

"Equus," Peter Shaffer's Tony Award-winning drama, has had its engagement at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood extended through Sept. 5.

The production, which stars Brian Bedford and Dai Bradley, opened on June 20 for a limited six-week engagement through Aug. 1, and is now being extended an additional five weeks.

The performance schedule continues Tuesday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m., Sunday evenings at 7:30, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturdays at 2:30 p.m.

On-stage seats for students with proper identification are available at $6 on Friday and Saturday evenings and $5 for all other performances.

'He is finally a human being'

Buffalo Bill: First superstar

By Murray Olderman

NEW YORK, N.Y. (NEA) — A farcical put-down of Buffalo Bill is now playing at movie theaters. Its historical merit or even its cinematic quality is not for me to argue.

But the roles of two very talented artists, actor Paul Newman and director Robert Altman, in the creation of "Buffalo Bill and the Indians or Sitting Bull's History Lesson" is worth study, particularly since both went on record recently in a joint discussion of the project and their input to it.

William Frederick Cody, called Buffalo Bill, lived from 1846 to 1917, the period of the major settling of the West. He was in the words of the encyclopedia, "part authentic frontier hero and part the creation of myth-making publicists. Buffalo Bill Cody came to symbolize the American West for millions of people around the world."

And so it is startling to see this new iconoclastic portrait of the man — egocentric, drinker, lecher and part fraud.

"Well," said Newman, when asked to define the character of Buffalo Bill, "he's a combination of General Custer, Gable, Redford and me. In that order."

He grew a shade more serious.

"My interpretation is that he was symbolically the FIRST STAR. He was like one of those people in motion pictures who simply cannot live up to their

Newman is a very well preserved quinquagenarian, and on this occasion, when the film was presented in rough form for 136 junketing journalists, he had flown in from location at 3 o'clock in the morning and still looked marvellously fresh, his blue eyes clear.

The actor was asked to probe deeper into the characterization on film, how Buffalo Bill the superstar related to Paul Newman the superstar.

He shrugged.

"Just go out and read any movie magazine. Read the quotes in them. They simply don't exist. The interviews that were supposed to be given and never were given. The conflicts, the joys. You read things about people that really aren't true.

"It's a humbling experience. There is no way that what those people see on celluloid has anything to do with me. That was the aspect I tried to bring to the film. They can say anything they want and he can make whatever statements he wants to make about what he is, but he is finally a human being and that's all he is."

Altman, the director who is queasy about this film because he thinks it'll be juxtaposed with his last ballyhooed effort, "Nashville," provided an overview:

"We were making comparisons to show business as it is today. That was the beginning of show business. Buffalo Bill had the producer, the publicist, the hanger-ons, the stars, the semi-star, the extras.

"We read 15 autobiographies that were totally contradictory. The point that interested me most about this project when we started digging into it, and we researched it very thoroughly, is that by the time a culture is willing to look at its past and try to find out the truths of its origin, the tracks have been so covered up it's impossible to find them. I don't think anybody can dig up the historical behavior of those people. You can only find out about the behavior that was written about them. And that is always false behavior."

The Altman version of Buffalo Bill is loosely historic.

There was no company encampment, which was the central locale for Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show in the film. President Grover Cleveland did not visit the show. But Sitting Bull, the Sioux chief who led the massacre of Lt. Col. George Custer and his troops at Little Bighorn, was brought in to hype up the show.

"Sitting Bull was always seeking an audience with the president," said Altman. "That was true."

And he defended the artistic honesty of his portrait of Buffalo Bill.

"I don't take any joy in shooting holes into heroes," he said, "but I try to reflect my view of what I see. And that's the way Buffalo Bill looks to me.

"There was a point where Sitting Bull got arrested again after he went back to Standing Rock (the Indian agency in South Dakota). People went to Cody and asked him to try and save him, and Cody went. He just didn't make it. He got drunk in St. Louis or some place along the way, and Sitting Bull was shot."

That became the basis for a tormented soliloquy by Buffalo Bill toward the end of the movie, probably its heaviest moment. With a project that was budgeted at over $6 million, Altman was impelled to lay a broad pastiche of humor on the narrative.

"Film is a very precarious art entertainment," he explained, "because it's so expensive. I couldn't do Buffalo Bill with the humor out of it. It would bore me to death."

And so there was Buffalo Bill shooting wildly at the pet canary of his latest divainamorata (in real life he had a passion for Italian actresses).

"To me," said Newman, "the picture is like a canvas. And there are a lot of different colors in it. Some people may choose to linger on the blues. Some on the tans or reds. You may want to linger on the browns."

"I think our strongest audience for this film will be young people," said Altman.

"And the wrestling crowd," retorted Newman.

"It's my first PG," said the director.

"One of the worst things that can ever be said of a movie," noted the star, "is that you walk out and turn to whomever you went to the movie with and say, 'Was that baby sitter supposed to go home at 10:30 or was she supposed to go home at a quarter to 11?'

Even Buffalo Bill would agree.

The Andes

The Andes Mountains are the "backbone" of South America, running the whole length of the continent. In places they are only 100 miles wide, but increase at times to as much as 400 miles across.

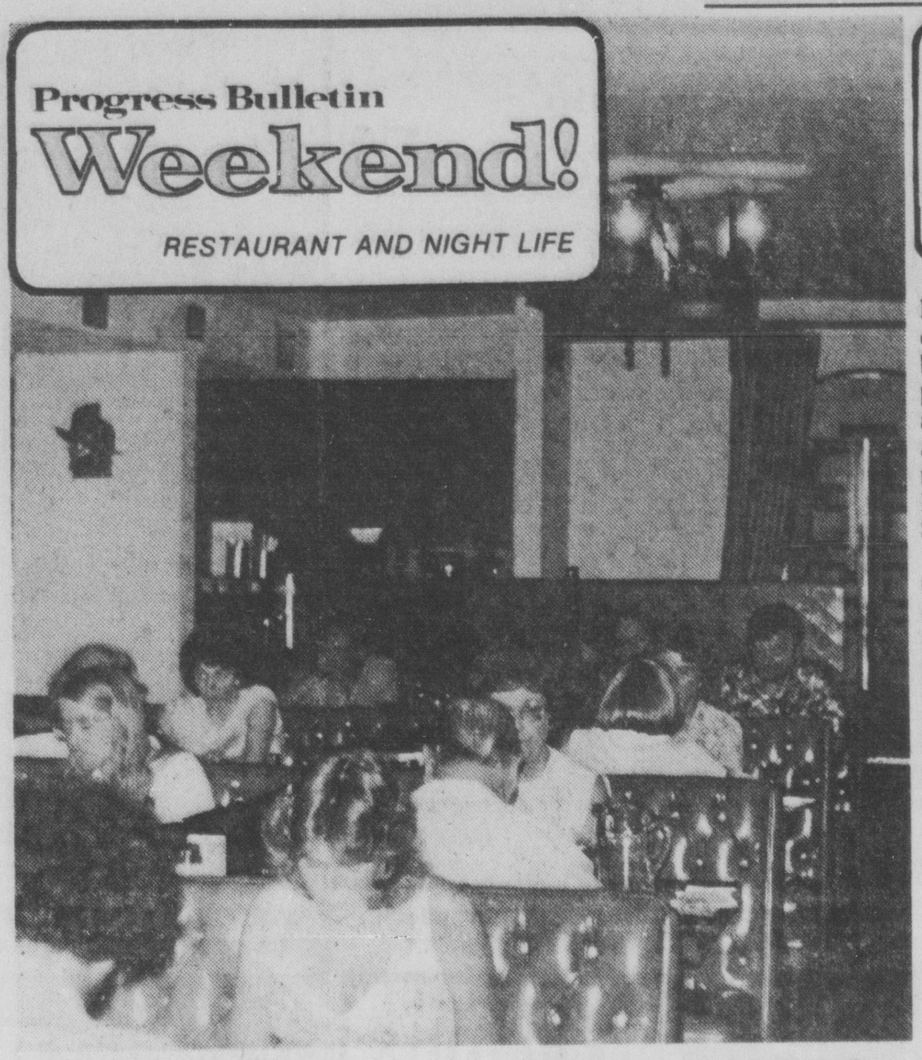
RESTAURANT AND NIGHT LIFE



ESPIAU'S, one of finest Mexican restaurants in area, has completed remodeling, has more seating capacity at 1542 W. Holt location.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

Jim and Lisa Francke's Escrow Closing Party last Sunday evening at The Castle was a blast. The couple reports that business was great. I believe it, because both times I stopped in that evening the place was packed. There has been a growing awareness on my part that more and more people are turning on to The Castle, but never before in my months of restaurant-watching have I seen this Foothill Blvd. restaurant as crowded as it was last Sunday night.

Last Friday night, I decided on Espiau's for dinner and was pleased that the wait wasn't as long as on my last visit. They have remodeled in the meantime, adding two dining rooms and doing away completely with the coffee shop. Trading lounge for dining area, the new, tastefully appointed Fiesta Room is located where the lounge was, and a small, intimate bar, the Cantina, is located west of the new Sombrero Room (former coffee shop.) Whew! Just go see for yourselves. Now, with additional seating, more of us can enjoy Espiau's way with Mexican cooking.

More good news for the under age guys and girls. Ralph Hicks, owner of Pomona's Ponderosa Club, is devoting Friday as well as Wednesday evenings to disco dancing. No alcoholic beverages will be sold on these nights, so under 21s can enjoy dancing to a rock band, right here in Pomona . . . tonight! Also, for those of you looking for something a little different, Ponderosa showcases musicians' jam sessions after hours (2 to 8 am) every Friday and Saturday.

NEWS 'N NOTES

. . .The restaurant at Ontario Motor Speedway is re-opening. Formerly Victory Circle Restaurant, the place will be called Hall of Fame restaurant, with John Bryan as manager. For information on banquets, parties, etc., call John at 984-1221.

. . .Casa de Narod has received a commendation from the California State Legislature, no less! Assemblyman Bill McVittie introduced the resolution, complete with numerous "Whereas's" (and appropriate plaque, suitable for framing), letting it be known that Narod's is a good place to eat.

. . .Donna Broos is opening her new Krispy Kreme Donut shop in Diamond Bar this weekend. She's offering a dozen donuts for $1.00 today and Saturday during her Grand Opening. Donna's is the third Krispy Kreme shop in the family. Her mother and sister run other shops in Orange County. Her shop is located at 327 So. Diamond Bar, in the new Diamond Bar Village center just south of K-Mart.

. . .A dollar and ninety-eight cents isn't bad for all the pizza, chicken and salad you can eat for lunch, but $1.48 is better. That's the special price on Shakeys Bunch-of-lunch starting next week at the Pomona pizza parlor. See details in Shakeys ad in Sunday's Prog.

. . .I get cards and letters from people telling me where to go occasionally . . . out to eat, that is. I don't mind this at all; in fact I welcome all suggestions. But recently I received a card telling me to FIND a natural foods restaurant and/or a restaurant which caters to non-smokers. I know of no such places. Do you? If you do, write me or call.

Coaches parade for Lakers owner

First, the club announced that Bill Sharman had agreed to a multi year contract as an executive with no mention of coaching. The agreement was reached as Sharman's five-year pact as coach was within an hour of expiring.

Thursday it became known that Jerry Tarkanian had spent three hours at the Forum. There were also reports the Lakers were talking with Louisville coach Denny Crum.

The Lakers declined comment. Crum, former UCLA assistant under John Wooden, is "vacationing in California" according to his office at the University of Louisville.

In Las Vegas, Tarkanian confirmed that he had not only met with Lakers' owner Jack Kent Cooke, but had discussed the Laker coaching job.

"I have met with the Lakers, but there has been no contract offered and that is the status of the situation at this time," Tarkanian said.

The UNLV coach added that he had agreed with the Lakers to make no comment.

However, according to a reliable source, Tarkanian intimated he had been offered a three-year contract but wants a five-year pact. It also is rumored that Tarkanian would have to take a CUT in salary to take the Lakers job.

A telephone call to the Lakers publicity dept. brought this statement issued by JKC himself.

"I've met with a number of candidates in the past few weeks and I will continue to do so. Bill Sharman remains very near the top of the list of coaching candidates."

JKC has been busy

According to sources at the Forum, Cooke not only has talked with college coaches and Bill Sharman, but has talked to coaches "with pro experience, some of whose names would prove a great surprise."

Tarkanian recently signed a three-year contract with the Las Vegas school. However, the NCAA, which slapped a penalty on Tark's last school, Long Beach State, has also been investigating UNLV.

Tarkanian reportedly said it ruined his recruiting even though no charges have, as yet, been leveled.

Off their college records, both Tarkanian and Crum are well qualified. Crum's teams posted a 118-30 record the last five years. In that same span, Tarkanian's record is 195-33.

Jerry West's name also keeps popping up. West and Cooke reportedly are close to patching up their differences. West sued Cooke for allegedly breaking his contract after Jerry retired from playing.

The thinking is that if West comes back on the payroll for a big slice of Cooke's money, why not let him coach because Sharman is still in the wings if Jerry's lack of coaching experience proves too much of an obstacle.

Certainly Jerry would be a popular choice with the fans. How good a coach he would be would have to be determined. But the same might be said if Crum or Tarkanian got the job. Coaching in the pros is not the same as coaching in college.

A different slant

HERE 'N THERE — According to stories published in Seattle, the reason the Sonics' number two draft choice, Bayard Forrest, did not sign with the club was NOT because the club refused to meet his demands.

As the story goes, Sonics coach Bill Russell then telephoned Forrest and, after some discussion, offered the 6-10 center $310,000 on a three-year, no-cut contract.

However, when Forrest and his agent met with Seattle owner Sam Schulman (who headquarters in Los Angeles), Schulman wouldn't go along with it.

Forrest claims he even paid $300 airfare for himself and his agent out of his own pocket.

Day by day the feeling grows that O.J. Simpson will be in a Ram uniform this fall.

The Chicago Cubs, in for three games with the Dodgers (two remaining) have been playing such bad ball that owner P.K. Wrigley said they looked like a bunch of clowns.

When the San Diego Padres were in Chicago last week, the Cubbies even had a witch to help them out. The witch, 27-year-old Ruth Ruvzen, applied her "success potion" to the wrists and foreheads of the players.

Baker, Dodgers on upswing

HALL OF FAMER

Peter De Paolo, 1925 Indy 500 winner, stands beside car San Bernardino's Bill Scott raced at Indy this year and will race in Cal 500 Sept. 5. De Paolo was one of guests honored Thursday evening as OMS dedicated its new Auto Racing Writers Drivers' Hall of Fame.

LOS ANGELES—It had been a long time between home runs for Dusty Baker but the Dodgers' centerfielder hopes his long round tripper Thursday night in an indication of what is to come.

Baker, who connected for a home run in his first at-bat in a Dodger uniform on opening day in San Francisco, helped the Dodgers get off to a fast start after the annual All-Star Game break by hitting his second of the season in the sixth inning in a 5-2 win over the Chicago Cubs.

It had been a long 298 at-bats between home runs for Baker, who hit 19 last year for the Atlanta Braves.

"That's the longest I can ever remember going without a home run," Baker said. "I tell you it felt super. Well, at least I can say I hit one home run in each half of the season. No, that's a joke. Don't take that seriously."

Baker obviously feels he will add to his total.

"This home run was encouraging because it appears like I might follow my pattern," he said. "I've always been a better hitter during the second half of the season."

Thanks to Baker plus Doug Rau's five-hit pitching, the Dodgers cut another game off of Cincinnati's lead in the National League West in reducing the margin to five in what the Dodger publicity department calls "the Great Chase".

It came two innings after Baker crashed into the fence trying to catch Jerry Morales' two-run homer off of Rau for the Cubs' only runs.

"My shoulder and arm are sure sore but my head feels a lot better," Baker said in describing his feelings. "I thought I had it. I jumped a split second too soon. And I thought the wall was supposed to give. It didn't, but I sure did."

The Dodgers started in a roar Thursday by scoring four runs in the first inning off of Chicago starter Rick Reuchel, who is now 8-7 for the season.

Reuschel contributed to his own downfall by hitting the first two batters — Davey Lopes and Bill Buckner — with pitches. Reggie Smith singled home the first run with Ron Cey bringing Buckner home on an infield out. Steve Garvey and Baker drove in the final two in the frame with singles.

It was all Rau needed.

The Dodger lefthander (8-6) allowed only one walk and the five hits. Outside of Morales' homer, Rau's only real problem came in the sixth inning when Manny Trillo hit a two-out single and Morales doubled. But Rau got George Mitterwald on a fly to get out of that jam.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (9-8) will pitch tonight against Chicago's Steve Renko (3-4) in the first game of the weekend Helmet Weekend series. Undefeated Rick Rhoden (8-0) goes against Steve Stone (1-1) in Saturday's 5 p.m. contest. Philadelphia completes the weekend in an 1 p.m. game Sunday.

Smith, who had homered in each of the Dodgers' last three games in St. Louis prior to the All-Star break, has scored runs in seven straight games and is hitting .267 for the Dodgers since being traded from the Cardinals. Smith was named Player of the Week by the National League for July 6-11.

OMS brings back memories

Progress Bulletin

Pomona, California ■ Friday, July 16, 1976

A pair of baby shoes more than a half century old rest in a display case with trophies, driving gloves and other mementoes of the golden age of Americanmotor racing.

The display, which is found in the Auto Racing Hall of Fame dedicated Thursday night at Ontario Motor Speedway, brought back tender memories to one of the honored guests at opening ceremonies, Peter De Paolo, 78, of Laguna Hills, Calif.

The shoes belonged to De Paolo's son Tommy, and they played an important role in the success of the oldest living winner of the Indianapolis 500 and the first man (in 1925) ever to win the race at an average speed of 100 miles an hour.

"The first six races I drove after I left Uncle Ralph," De Paolo said, referring to his famed relative and fellow hall of famer, the late Ralph De Palma, "I crashed five times.

"I got to thinking that I ought to do something about this, and somebody suggested I hang one of Tommy's baby shoes on the left front spring as a good luck charm. The first time I raced I looked down and saw that shoe and said to.yself, 'I have to drive well for Tommy.'

"Well, I came in second, and a sportswriter I knew kidded me about it and said if I had both shoes in the car I might have won the race. The next race was the Raisin Day Classic at Fresno, and I hung both shoes, and I won the race."

That was De Paolo's first national championship victory.

"Right then and there I made a vow that ifI ever won at Indianapolis Tommy would never have to buy another pair of shoes again," De Paolo continued.

Tommy De Paolo, now 52, "still sends me the bill every time he buys a pair of shoes," the Indianapolis winner insisted.

De Paolo, now 78 and living in retirement at Laguna Hills, Calif., was the only one of 23 greats of the sport inducted into the Hall of Fame by the American Auto Racing Writers and Broadcasters Association to attend dedication ceremonies.

He was accompanied by his wife of 54 years, Sally.

Four other representing deceased hall of famers were also honored at dedication ceremonies. They were:

— Mrs. Marian de Palma, widow of the 1915 Indy winner and national champion in 1912 and 1915, whose record of leading during 613 laps in the Indianapolis 500 still stands.

— Mrs. Dorothy Mays, widow of two-time national champion Rex Mays (1940-41). — Ernie Olson, 84, of Sherman Oaks, Calif., riding mechanic for Jimmy Murphy, 1922 Indianapolis 500 winner and the first American to win a world championship grand prix, at Le Mans, France, in 1921.

— B. Reaves Dutton, 89, of Santa Susana, riding mechanic for three-time national driving champion Earl Cooper (1913, 1915, and 1917).

Others inducted into the Hall of Fame, which will be opened to the public free of charge on July 27 as a permanent attraction at the speedway were Tony Bettenhausen, Louis Chevrolet, Jimmy Clark, Mark Donohue, Juan Manuel Frangie, A. J. Foyt, Gurney, Ted Horn, Harroun, Louis Meyer, Tommy Milton, Barney Oldfield, Richard Petty, Eddie Rickenbacker, Mauri Rose, Wilbur Shaw, Jackie Stewart and Bill Vukovich Sr.

More furor at Olympics

MONTREAL (AP) — An unidentified individual distributed crudely typed copies of a letter to the president of the International Olympic Committee late Thursday night which called for the exclusion of New Zealand from the Games and hinted at the withdrawal of certain African nations.

None of the signatures or initials on the letter could be deciphered. The copies bore no letterhead. The signatures and initials were scrawled beside the hand-written names of 13 countries.

The official press distribution center of the Olympic Games did not receive copies and the IOC headquarters did not answer their telephone. No African delegations were immediately available for comment.

Olympic cloud clearing

MONTREAL (AP) — The clouds cleared from Montreal today and two facts stood out bright and clear. The Olympic Games will go on and the United States will compete in them.

The Americans abandoned their idea of possibly pulling out in sympathy with the Taiwanese. One of the first to hail the decision was C.M. Yang, coach of the Taiwan team.

"I would have felt terrible if the United States had pulled out, because it would be such a disappointment to all their athletes, and all because of us," Yang said.

The Taiwanese problem still was not finally solved. The International Olympic Committee (IOC) still had to persuade the Taiwanese to drop the name "Republic of China" in the opening parade, though the Canadian government has now backed down and said they can use their flag and anthem.

But the decision by the United States to go ahead and compete removed a fear that the Games might disintegrate.

Philip O. Krumm, of Kenosha, Wis., 69-year-old president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, who has been at the center of the Taiwan crisis all week, announced the decision to keep the team in the Games.

Krumm has been the peacemaker between the idealistic IOC, iron-willed Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the proud Taiwanese delegation. He backed the IOC to the hilt in its defense of the Olympic charter, but tried to persuade the Canadian government and the Taiwanese to give a little.

More than 40 Taiwanese have been held up in the United States, denied entry visas because they would not bow to the Canadian demand to drop their name, flag and anthem.

For two days Krumm thought his mission was heading for failure. Neither the government nor the Taiwanese would give an inch.

But Trudeau, after weeks of refusing to change his position, suddenly gave way Thursday and said the Taiwanese could use their flag and anthem.

Krumm had been holding a club over Trudeau, saying the U.S. team might pull out if the Taiwanese were not allowed to take their place in the Games.

It was a strong weapon. Nobody can picture an Olympic Games without the United States taking part. There were fears that if the Americans pulled out other countries would follow, and the Games, which Montreal has planned for six years at an estimated cost of $1.5 billion could fall apart.

Krumm and Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, were in complete harmony on one point. They thought of the athletes first.

"We feel the athletes, who have given so much time and dedication to preparing themselves for these games, deserved consideration," Krumm said. "We had that in mind in deciding not to withdraw."

Killanin has insisted all along that the 10,000 athletes expected to compete at Montreal are the first consideration. He said that was why the IOC stopped short of cancelling the games, or withdrawing its recognition, in the face of what he has bitterly denounced as political interference by Ottawa.

The IOC hoped the Taiwan affair would be solved Friday. First it had to vote to change its rules and allow the Taiwanese to march in the opening parade as "Taiwan" and not as the Republic of China. A two-thirds majority among the 69 IOC members present is needed.

Then the Taiwanese had to be persuaded to accept the idea. There was

Official tells of merger difficulties

NEW YORK (AP) — Although merger talks "are not going as well as we'd hoped," four American Basketball Association teams have placed $1 million each in escrow accounts as a first step towards admission to the National Basketball Association.

"The merger talks are not going as well as we'd hoped but as well as expected," said Indiana Pacers executive Bill Eason, but he added, "We have met the NBA requirement for the $1 million. That is, it is in the bank."

He said he hoped for a final agreement within a few days.

The deposits Thusday were strictly paper transactions for the New York Nets, Denver Nuggets, San Antonio Spurs and Pacers.

Originally, the money was to have been forwarded from the teams' banks to the NBA's account in a New York bank. But that was changed at the last minute.

"They (NBA attorneys) told us to put it into an account here," Eason said from Indianapolis.

A second payment of $2 million each is due Sept. 15.

There were unconfirmed reports that one of the ABA teams had experienced some problems in raising sufficient funds for the initial payment.

Finalizing of the merger agreement has been slowed because of problems with the settlement with owners of the ABA Kentucky and Utah teams which were disbanded, and the final settlement of the NBA Players Association suit, which still must be signed by both sides.

NBA Deputy Commissioner Simon Gourdine said, "No date has been set for the dispersal draft of former ABA players and we are still waiting for formal signing of the merger agreement and settlement of all court actions that have been blocking the merger."

He indicated that he did not expect the dispersal draft to be held any earlier than July 26.

Women's rowing event canceled

MONTREAL (AP) — The lack of entries has prompted Olympic officials to cancel the semi-finals in the women's rowing competition, scheduled for July 22.

An official of the Olympic organizing committee said Thursday only about half the number of countries expected to participate have sent women's rowing teams.

Chino girl wins 'batboy' contest

Nancy Wahl, a 13-year-old seventh grader at Magnolia Junior High in Chino, will meet her favorite Dodger players next Thursday night prior to the game against San Diego.

Officially, Nancy will be the honorary batboy but that isn't the terminology she prefers.

When asked if she would mind being called a batboy, she replied, "Yes, I mind. I would rather be called a batgirl."

Nancy is a big Dodger fan. She has already attended a few games thanks to her membership in the Dodger Pepsi Fan Club.

"I started to like the Dodgers three years ago when Steve Garvey got to play," she said in also identifying her favorite player.

Why Garvey?

"I play first base on my school team and I just like him," she said.

Nancy earned the right to be the batgirl by winning the essay contest on "If I were the Dodger manager, I would . . ."

In her essay, Nancy wrote, "I would try to do a good job, just as Walt Alston has done in the past years."

"I would keep statistics on all the other players in the National League," she wrote. "I would keep records on their strong points and weak points. I would be aware of all the players in the farm system and whether they are doing extremely well or extremely rotten. I would know all the ballparks, so the players would know what conditions they would be playing under. I would be responsible for the players' condition. With my staff's help, I would get the players to perform to their best ability."

NANCY WAHL

Nancy would also have the players' welfare at heart.

"The main thing would be to have a consistent, healthy team," she wrote. "I would be more concerned about the players' health and condition than a pennant."

The Chino girl will receive a Dodger uniform and autographed ball and will be able to meet the Dodgers — including Garvey — before the game.

Four runners-up will also get to attend the game and receive autographed baseballs.

They are: Allison Sledge, 13, of Claremont; Mark Hansen, 10, of Montclair; John Corrington, 11, of Claremont; and Dan Fish, 14, of Montclair.

Denver hoping for NHL

DENVER (AP) — Sportscaster Bud Palmer says efforts by his small group of investors to purchase the Kansas City franchise of the National Hockey League and move it to Denver are virtually certain to succeed.

"I would definitely say the Scouts are coming to Denver," Palmer said at a news conference on Thursday. "You've got the wrong name of the team, though. Just say the Kansas City franchise."

Palmer, who heads a group of seven investors that includes Denver oilman John A. Vickers and Munson Campbell, a former executive with the NHL's California Golden Seals, said the purchase price would be between $5.8 million and $6 million.

"We'll send the league some earnest money this afternoon, along with our letter-of-intent," he said, although he added there were still a few details to be worked out before the transaction was assured.

He said the two major obstacles, one with league officials and the other with the Denver city government, have been resolved in principle.

Palmer, who lives in Vail, said at the news conference he was "98 per cent certain" the problems could be worked out by the beginning of next week.

The disagreement with city officials stems from negotiations on a rental agreement for the use of McNichols Sports Arena, where the team would play.

Palmer had reportedly sought rent-free space for the team's front office and an agreement calling for $2,500 a game in rental fees.

But the city reportedly turned down the request for free office space and said it had to charge rent of $3,500 a game to break even on operating the municipally-owned arena.

"We still have some polishing up to do on a proposed contract with the city to lease McNichols Arena, but it's an agreement we can live with," Palmer said not disclosing any terms.

The second problem facing Palmer and his investors was a last-minute bid by a part owner of the Scouts, Gene Novarr, to buy out the team and keep it in Kansas City.

"Our posture is that Kansas City has some problems, especially with St. Louis over territorial questions," Vickers said. "The league is concerned with that problem, and we don't intend to get involved in it."

The NHL Board of Governors meeting Thursday, extended the deadline for resolutions of the franchise's future until Monday.

Vickers also pledged to Denver hockey fans, who saw a World Hockey Association team leave in mid-season earlier this year, the new franchise would not be a "fly-by-night deal."

Palmer has been seeking an NHL franchise for Denver for three years.

Jim Palmer applies whitewash to Halos

The 30-year-old Baltimore right-hander a Cy Young Award winner in two of the last three seasons, blanked the California Angels 4-0 on three hits Thursday night to become the first 12-game winner in the American League.

After a slow start, Palmer has won six of seven decisions since June 15, finished all but one of his last eight starts, and lowered his earned run average to 2.89.

Palmer acknowledged criticizing the omission of such pitchers as Gaylord Perry, Doug Bird, Wayne Garland and Dennis Leonard, but denied having said that he should have been picked.

"All I said, was that if you use Catfish Hunter as a criteria, then I should have gone, too," Palmer said of the New York pitcher who took a 10-8 record into the game won by the National League 7-1.

"I didn't knock the players who went," Palmer continued. "But pitching is 50 to 90 per cent of the game and it's ridiculous not to use your best.

"I'm sick and tired of losing to the National League. But it's understandable. They take their best players, and we don't—and it doesn't just apply to pitchers."

Palmer noted that Al Oliver was on the National League squad even though he finished ninth in the voting, while the Americans failed to take such hitters as John Mayberry, George Scott and Sal Bando.

The shutout over the Angels, against whom he has a 16-5 record, was the 39th of Palmer's career. He has a lifetime mark of 164-88, with eight of the losses this season.

The California hits were singles by Dan Briggs in the second, Dave Collins in the third and pinch batter Jerry Remy in the eighth. Briggs and Remy were immediately erased on double play grounders.

Only in the sixth, when Palmer walked Andy Etchebarren and Collins, did the Angels advance a runner beyond first base. But Palmer retired the next three batters.

Reggie Jackson, who has hit .425 since July 2, had three hits for the Orioles and drove in three runs. His 10th homer followed a double by Al Bumbry in the third, and he had an RBI single in the seventh.

Jackson and Bumbry, who scored three runs, each stole two bases. One swipe by Bumbry, who has been successful 20 times in 24 attempts, preceded Lee May's run-scoring single in the opening inning off Gary Ross, 6-11.

"I can't put my finger on it," Jackson said of his recent surge, "but with each good game I have, the more relaxed I feel here."

Rams greet 23 veterans

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams' training camp has filled with veterans as coaches plan to begin drills today.

Defensive tackle Merlin Olsen, the staunch elder statesman of the Ram defense, headed a group of 23 veterans who reported to camp Thursday.

A team spokesman said Olsen, a 15-year veteran, showed up early and worked out in shorts at the Rams' camp Thursday afternoon.

The veterans were due in camp Thursday night, to join the rookies and a sprinkling of other veterans who began arriving Sunday night.

A Ram spokesman said the team was placing Charlie Stukes, a nine-year veteran cornerback on waivers. Stukes was sidelined last season because of knee injuries.

Rookie defensive end Mike Davis, a 6-foot-4, 248-pounder out of Long Beach State, has been signed, the spokesman said.

Sports briefs

The 6-foot-3 teen-ager won medalist honors and posted two easy match victories during reduction of a starting field of 219 to 16 for this morning's play. Quarterfinals are this afternoon.

"I'm coming out every night and checking where they're going to have the cup the next day," Clarke said Thursday after a 6 and 5 victory over Mark Tinder of Pebble Beach. "It really makes a difference, especially on the first five holes."

Pomona National wins thriller

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

Pomona National scored four runs in the home seventh for a thrilling 9-8 victory over Glendora-South Hills while Diamond Bar took a pitchers duel from Ted Greene to highlight action in the Little League Senior Division District 20 tourney at Ralph Welch Park Thursday night.

In the other two games played Thursday, Pomona American downed Pomona Northwest 6-2 and Glendora National beat defending champion La Verne 6-2 in the double-elimination tournament.

Today's lone game pits a victorious Diamond Bar nine and Pomona Southwest in a 6:30 p.m. contest on the Park's north field.

In the winners bracket Saturday, Pomona and Glendora Nationals will square off at 7:30 p.m.

At 5:30 p.m. in the losers bracket La Verne and South Hills will do battle as will Northwest and Ted Greene.

With the score tied at 5-5 in the top of the seventh, South Hills scored three runs, two on Nick Occhiato's triple, to take an 8-5 lead over Pomona National.

National came back with a run on a passed ball and Mark Alba bombed a triple to left with the bases loaded for three more and the win.

Milner also drove in two runs as did teammate Brian Chapple.

American held a slim 3-2 lead through five innings before opening up with two runs in the sixth and a run in the seventh to finish off Northwest.

John Willhite reached second on an error, stole third and scored on Jim O'Toole's single for American's first run in the sixth. Robbie Walters later singled home O'Toole.

Ferny Larez' RBI single scored the first American run. An error and Walters' groundout brought home the fourth inning tallies.

Citizens build forest trail

"This will blow the natives' minds—seeing all these people out walking and carrying paint cans," said Bob Tabor of Culloden, president of the West Virginia Scenic Trails Association.

Five years after he and Nick Lozano of Charleston stood in a freezing parking lot and discovered their mutual idea for a long trail through the beautiful mountains of eastern West Virginia, Tabor was leading a party of adults and boy scouts in marking a section of the trail in the Monongahela National Forest.

The long process of planning and bucking a complicated, resistant state and federal bureaucracy is behind them. Facing the persistent creaters of the Allegheny Trail now is the physical labor of marking and building the hiking route from Blackwater Falls State Park in Tucker County more than 200 miles south to join with the famous Appalachian Trail in Monroe County along the Virginia border.

The process consists mainly of connecting existing U.S. Forest Service dirt roads through three national forests, one state forest and two state parks and gaining permission to cross private land to join the entire trail.

"When we started this, we didn't get a lot of support," said Tabor. "They (federal and state officials) didn't believe citizens could do it. They talked of costs of $2,000 a mile."

"The bureaucrats were surprised that citizens on their own initiative would get involved in a project of this magnitude. They thought we would go away," Lozano said.

Both avid hikers who got hooked 20 years ago along the Appalachian Trail in the Smoky Mountains, Tabor and Lozano started talking about a West Virginia portion to the trail in 1971, following an Izaak Walton League meeting.

"The concept of a trail in West Virginia bugged me—here we had to pack up and go 300 miles (to the Smokies) when West Virginia has the basics for a trail," said Lozano.

At first, the two only wanted a West Virginia access to the Appalachian Trail, which goes over Peters Mountain in Monroe County but which had to be entered through Virginia. Other people joined them, the idea blossomed, and the WVSTA, expanded in focus was formed in 1972.

"It's dedicated to the development and maintenance of hiking trails in West Virginia," said Lozano. "Eventually we want to develop a network of trails throughout the state—around urban areas, historic trails, long-distance hiking.

"We're using the Allegheny Trail as a showcase. What we learn from this, we'll use to show local groups how they can build a trail in their areas," he said.

"We hope this is just the beginning," said Tabor, who worked on the Appalachian Trial when he lived in Roanoke, Va.

"We felt we should have a designated area to hike," he explained. "This is not a wilderness trail like the Appalachian Trail. What they're doing is great, but it doesn't seem practical to tie up that much forest.

"We felt we needed a trail where people could get out and experience nature without fear of trespassing. People tend to crowd into parks. Dispersed recreation is our philosophy."

"The concept of planned recreation is new in West Virginia. Most of the native population grew up with woods and mountains just there, accepted things. If a man went out, he had a gun in his hand," said Lozano.

"We talked to a man whose land we wanted to cross," added Tabor. "He just never could quite understand that there were people who just wanted to come out in the woods and walk."

The group first drew up a prospective trail route, trying to keep it on as much public land as possible, and spent time pouring over maps and surveying. In 1975, the state Department of Natural Resources gave the group permission to cross Blackwater Falls and Cass State parks and Senaca State Forest.

In April of this year, the U.S. Forest Service and the WVSTA signed the Allegheny Trail Cooperative Agreement, granting permission to go through Monogahela, George Washington and Jefferson national forests.

Physical work began on the trail two years ago, when the first section was flagged on Peters Mountain, providing access through Pine Swamp to the Appalachian Trial. The WVSTA had a ceremony on top of the mountain in the summer of 1974.

Last summer, with the permission of the Buckskin Council of the Boy Scouts, the group put in the trail section through the council's Pocahontas County reservation to Seneca. This spring, Seneca was connected to Cass.

This Summer's goal is completion of 50 miles from Cass south to Interstate 64, a distance of 50 miles. The group wants to show off the new trail to the Southern Appalachian Trail Clubs, groups from Virginia to Georgia who are holding their annual meeting over Labor Day Weekend at the boy scout camp.

On the recent trail-blazing party, Tabor and Lozano led the paint-bearing hikers south from the boy scout camp into Monogahela National Forest, the first trail blazing there. The leaders had marked off a tentative trail with blue surveyers ribbons two months before, following deer trails along ridges at the edge of Marlin Mountain, into Thorny Creek Valley and joining with the Forest Service's dirt Marlin Mountain Road. The forest ranger approved the route.

The Appalachian Trail from Maine to Georgia is marked wth white blazes. The route of the Allegheny Trail is designated by bright yellow blazes, two inches by six inches. Two parallel blazes means the trail turns.

"If we have land, we must realize there are hordes of people who don't," said Tabor "So let's share it—with a little path."

Outdoors

Perch biting at Lake Crowley

Only a little more than two weeks remain for some of the best fishing in the Sierras at Lake Crowley, noted for its large trout.

But if you're concentrating on trout to the exclusion of Crowley Lake's other piscatorial prize, you may be making a mistake. Crowley Lake is one of the very few waters in California where Sacramento perch, a native California species of sunfish, can be found in large numbers.

A few trout and a few perch and you have the makings of interesting bouillabaisse, or at least a good fish fry.

But you had better move fast. Crowley Lake closes for the season on July 31, says Edwin "Phil" Pister, Department of Fish and Game fishery biologist.

Reports this week from the lake are encouraging. Large brown trout are being taken by trolling in mid-lake, and Sacramento perch are being taken on small jugs or roostertails in fairly deep water closer to shore than the trout.

The limit for trout is seven, but you can take all the perch you wish. Both trout and perch are excellent deep-fried in a little batter.

The perch are running one to one and a half pounds, according to Fish and Game wildlife biologist Banky Curtis, who tried his hand on Crowley Saturday. He filleted his catch and put it in the freezer for later use.

"We would have caught a lot more," said Curtis, "but we had six kids in the boat."

Curtis said the perch were firm and in excellent condition.

Tule elk tour scheduled for Owens Valley area

Circle Saturday, July 31, on your calendar. It will be your last chance this season to see the tule elk of the Owens Valley in Inyo County.

A Department of Fish and Game sponsored elk tour will begin at 7 a.m. that day at the Wildlife Viewpoint on the eastern side of Highway 395, approximately 15 miles north of Independence. A sign marks the turnoff. The tour guide will be the department's leading authority on the Owens Valley herd, wildlife biologist Banky Curtis of Bishop.

The Owens Valley is one of only two places in the state — or for that matter the world — where tule elk exist in a free-roaming state. Another smaller population roams free in the Cache Creek area of Colusa County.

The elk population in the Owens Valley is estimated at slightly more than 400 animals. The Cache Creek heard numbers about 110.

Curtis said that visitors should bring binoculars and cameras with telephoto lenses, if possible. The tour, which lasts about three hours, will include an informal discussion of the elk's status.

A July 3 tule elk tour was attended by comparatively few people, most of them from the Los Angeles area. Curtis said none of the visitors had ever before seen the elk, but on that day they were able to view a heard of from 60 to 65, with half a dozen large bulls and 8 to 10 calves born in mid-May. The other elks in the herd were "ladies" of the harem.

As the years pass, the skin loses some of its elasticity and your face also shrinks a little as some of the fat disappears from under the skin.

But the skin of the face does not shrink at the same rate. It becomes too loose for the face and little folds, or creases, appear.

The pattern of facial wrinkles depends in part on the way in which the skin has been pulled and stretched for many years.

Our skin forms a protective covering for the body. It helps protect the body from injury and helps keep germs from entering. It helps keep the body from drying out and from becoming too hot or too cold.

In the skin there are some cells that contain a coloring matter called pigment. When only a little pigment is present, the skin is light in color. People who have more pigment have darker skin.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

COZY GAZEBO — Shady, airy gazebo lures young and old on a summer day. Built mostly of western red cedar, this mini-pavilion stands at corner of rear deck, is painted to match house and railing. Eight sides are four feet wide; interior is nine feet across. Designer is Craig Corbett, Laguna Beach.

Old-fashioned romance needs all the encouragement it can muster these days, and cozy little gazebo in a corner of the garden or at the end of a deck, out of earshot from the house, affords a proper setting.

On a languid summer day, cola-sipping young folk are likely to gather there to chat after swimming or tennis. There's the chance, however, they'll find this heaven, cooled by overhead shade and breezes wafting through the open sides, already occupied by their elders, resting after labors in the garden.

A backyard gazebo can take any of a score of shapes and appearances. But the materials nearly always are wood, whether solid lumber, plywood, laths or shingles, and sometimes a blending of all four.

Solid roof garden

Open lattice-work fashioned from wood strips is enjoying renewed popularity for sides and roof of garden structures. But treillage is hard to maintain, and isn't so ideal where rains are frequent.

Octagonal in shape, it has a solid roof that peaks at the center at a moderate pitch. A small cupola, supported on eight wood spindles 12 inches tall, is both decorative and means of ventilation.

Sides mostly open

The eight sides are each four feet wide thus providing a roomy interior about nine feet across. Walls are solid up to little more than table height, clad in eight-inch, tight-knot cedar sidings, put on horizontally the same as on the house.

One side remains open as an entrance. Eight corner posts support the solid roof, which has a 16-inch overhang all around. Boards and moldings fill in the walls for 12 inches just under the eaves; otherwise the walls are open.

Floor is the same as the deck, 2x4s laid flat and spaced slightly.

Synthetics popular in varnish resins

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The natural-resin varnishes so popular over the ages are being replaced fairly rapidly by varnishes containing synthetic resins. If an old-timer tries to tell you that the modern varnishes can't approach those he used years ago, it's probably because he hasn't tried the newer finishes.

Varnishes containing such substances as urethane, alkyd and phenolic, among others, are easier to apply and, in most cases, produce better finishes. One rule, however, has never changed. No varnished surface will have the desired appearance if it wasn't smooth and clean before any finishing material was applied to it. That means sanding the wood until it feels almost like glass when you run the tips of your fingers over it. It also means cleaning the surface with turpentine or mineral spirits to pick up any tiny bits of grit that may have been left behind.

While most modern varnishes dry quicker than the old ones, they do not dry as quickly as some other finishes — shellac and lacquer, for example — and so a constant battle must be waged to keep dust from settling on them before they have begun to harden. Always do your varnishing in a room or workshop which no one will enter for the rest of the day. Be sure the area is as dust-free as possible before you begin, which in some cases means using a vacuum cleaner. Your clothes, too, should be dustfree. Some stores that sell finishing materials carry "pick" sticks so that specks of dust can be removed from a wet varnish surface while you are working on it. If you can't get one, keep a few wood toothpicks handy. As soon as you spot a bit of dust, use the tip of a toothpick to pick it up. Since this must be done while the varnish is wet, the tiny mark left by the toothpick tip will be quickly filled in by the surrounding varnish. You can see, therefore, that while varnishing you will have to step back in the proper light again and again to look for dust specks.

Varnish should be applied in a free, flowing motion. Stroke with the grain, then immediately against the grain. Then, without dipping the brush in the varnish, stroke again with the grain, this time using only the tips of the bristles and stroking lightly.

Whenever possible, try to turn the work so that you are always brushing horizontally. Since this isn't always practical, work very carefully with vertical strokes to avoid dripping.

Houseplants in all sizes—research target

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Do you like house plants? A goal of researchers is to produce small and medium-size potted plants that consumers may buy at attractive prices for informal use at the home and office.

Floriculturists at Cornell University already have developed production methods and crop scheduling for some plants for use by plant growers in New York State. Several kinds of flowering and foliage plants, they determined, could be produced efficiently with a minimum of production cost and time.

"This," Prof. Carl F. Gortzig says, "will enable growers to supply florist shops, plant stores, supermarkets and other outlets with quality potted plants that can be retailed at prices ranging from 99 cents to $1.29 a plant." Considering the soaring consumer demand for smaller size potted plants, Gortzig said, consumers want plants they can enjoy in their every day surroundings — home, office, store or apartment.

Performing well in experiments were clerodendrum, coleus, New Guinea impatiens, marigold, primrose, zinnia, streptocarpus, and polka-dot plant, the researchers said. Clerodendrum, marigold, primrose, zinna and streptocarpus are colorful flowering plants, the first named serving as an attractive foliage vine after frost bloom. The primrose may be set out into the garden if bought in late winter or early spring. Some varieties of the New Guinea impatiens, reported new on the American floricultural scene from the South Pacific — produce flowers. Others are foliage plants, as are coleus and polka-dot.

All of these plants, Gortzig related, had such cost-reducing features as: They need no special or labor-intensive cultural practices such as pinching, disbudding, changes in spacing and special lighting or shading procedures as day-length control; no growth regulators are needed; they are generally free from insect and disease; they can be grown the year-around in succession, four to six weeks in summer and seven to eight weeks in winter.

Seeding and rooting of cuttings are done directly in the (four-inch) container in which the plant will be marketed Gortzig said. Also saving cost are slow-release fertilizers gradually putting nutrients into the soil, and an automatic capillary bench watering system that eliminates daily watering.

The next step at Cornell will be ways to improve market distribution of the plants to help the grower, retailer and consumer, and to identify other plants that can be produced as efficiently.

"If these goals can be met," Gortzig said, "then consumers will be assured of a steady supply of quality plants at highly attractive prices. The consumer's desire to have plants as an integral part of his every day environment for living can be readily served."

Gardeners check list

A good list of vegetables can be planted for fall. Many of them are available as easy-to-transplant starts from nursery flats.

Bare spots in the garden? Tuberous Begonias and Hibiscus both in bloom are at the nursery for your choosing.

Delphiniums which have bloomed should be cut back to six inches, fed and watered — toward a second flush of bloom.

Crab grass a pest? Selective controls are available now to eliminate this problem.

Wash. police con crooks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chicago Bob thought he was fencing stolen goods with crooked employes of a truck repair shop. But the guys behind the counter at H & H Trucking really were on the up and up.

H & H was a police subsidiary.

They're calling it "Got Ya Again." For the second time in four months, scores of persons have been arrested for allegedly fencing stolen goods at a dummy business set up here by local police and FBI agents posing as street toughs.

On Tuesday, authorities began rounding up 140 persons on charges that they sold $1.2 million worth of stolen checks, credit cards, guns, appliances and cars to the undercover officers at the fake garage, which began business seven months ago.

Last Feb. 28 the police and FBI arrested more than 100 suspected thieves who peddled their wares at a warehouse manned by officers who posed as Mafia-type gangsters with aliases like Rico Rigatone.

A series of raids netted 71 of the 140 persons named in the warrants, and authorities were seeking the rest. They got the home addresses of many customers a few weeks ago by selling $10 raffle tickets on a nonexistent Cadillac Eldorado.

The undercover agents at H & H were black. Officials said many customers were heroin addicts who stole to support their habits.

Among those who took the bait was Chicago Bob.

"He would come in and put on an act like, 'Hey man, I know you're the police, but I'm going to deal with you anyway.' He'd put a bag over his head and clown around. And of course we had it all on film," boasted an FBI agent who helped run H & H.

Nine of those arrested Tuesday also were nabbed in February at the warehouse called P.F.F. Inc., which stood for "Police-FBI Fencing Incognito." H & H was smaller than P.F.F. Inc. Both featured cameras in the walls to capture the transactions on videotape.

Israeli women seek equality

By JANE SEE WHITE

NEW YORK (AP) — Tamar Eshel is treading a fine line. One mis-step, she believes, could have cataclysmic effects on her homeland.

Mrs. Eshel is general secretary of the Working Women's Council — the largest women's organization in Israel. And in that role she is trying to assure equality for Israeli women without dividing society over practices that are ruled by Jewish, Christian and Moslem religious laws.

"A people under seige, as we are, can ill afford a cultural campaign that would divide the people," Mrs. Eshel said in an interview here en route to a meeting of the International Council of Women in Vancouver, Canada.

Religious laws govern marriage and divorce practices in Israel and define personal status. For instance, there is still no such thing as a civil marriage ceremony in the state.

"Religious law and personal status are not so important compared with what remains to be done," Mrs. Eshel said. "But we can find a way to make the uses of these laws modern if we cannot change them."

Her group chooses to fight for changes in other areas, she said.

"It is only this year, for example, that we have managed to eliminate different pay scales for men and for women in industry," she said. "The unions have said they will sign no more contracts unless the scales are equal."

Only 34 per cent of the women in Israel are employed, she said, and one reason is that a large proportion are untrained and unskilled.

"We have found that 75 per cent of the women who have academic training do work, and so we are trying to educate and train those who have none," Mrs. Eshel said.

The Working Women's Council — with help from groups like Pioneer Women, the women's labor Zionist organization of America, which Mrs. Eshel was visiting here — is building day care centers, boarding schools for children without homes, providing adult education programs and lobbying for more public schooling.

Israeli public schools close at 1 p.m., she said, and her group is lobbying for longer school hours. "The school doesn't perform as it should," she said.

There are many educational and social problems that the Israeli government — preoccupied with military and economic problems — is unable to confront, she said.

"We are a heterogeneous society and a small country," Mrs. Eshel said. "We cannot afford to postpone social and educational problems — so the voluntary organizations are called upon to do much more than they do in other nations."

Mrs. Eshel, who represented Israel as a member of the permanent mission to the United Nations here in 1955, was accorded rank of ambassador in 1968 when she represented Israel in the General Assembly.

A third generation Israeli, she also represented Israel on the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women and was elected chairman of that body.

Wedding, betrothal forms are available

Engagement and wedding announcement forms may be picked up at the Progress Bulletin office in the Family Section department between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Wedding forms must be printed or typed and may be submitted with a black and white photograph. Only professionally done or high quality 35mm black and white photographs can be accepted for the weddings and they are to be portraits of the bride alone. The Progress Bulletin reserves the right to accept or reject all photographs submitted. Forms and pictures are to be turned in to the department within two weeks after the wedding.

Engagement forms, also printed or typed, are used if turned in at least six weeks prior to the wedding. On occasion, a color photo may be used with an engagement announcement, but no assurance is given that all color photography is suitable for this purpose.

All forms must carry a telephone number where a family member can be contacted during working hours to answer any possible questions relating to the form.

OES club schedules potluck

Past matrons, past patrons and trailers of Pomona Chapter 110, Order of the Eastern Star, will meet for a potluck dinner Sunday afternoon, according to Mrs. Harold Goodpasture, president of the Past Matrons Club.

The dinner is planned at 4:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Weaver, 605 E. McKinley Ave., Pomona. Swimming will precede the dinner and cards will be played afterwards.

Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Victor Soper, 622-2213.

Newcomers invited to coffee

Women who have recently moved into the Diamond Bar or Walnut area are invited to attend a newcomers coffee hour on Tuesday sponsored by the Diamond Bar-Walnut Newcomers' Club.

The club offers both day and couples' night activities. A hay ride, craft classes, bridge, and a family picnic are planned this summer.

Women interested in attending the 8 p.m. meeting may call Beverly Combest at 595-6956.

Kit Miller wed in chapel rites

A former Pomonan, Miss Kit Miller of Glendora, and Steve McCulloch of Covina were married in the Fleur de Lis Wedding Chapel in Hacienda Heights.

MRS. STEVE McCULLOCH

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miller Jr. of Glendora and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Evans were married in a double-ring, candlelight ceremony by the Rev. Paul Farrell.

The maid of honor was Miss Kelly Miller, sister of the bride, of Ontario. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Betsy Moncayo, Ontario. Miss Dawn Reed, Ontario, and Miss Hillary Wills, Glendora.

Standing as best man was Dennis Kincad of Glendora. Ushers were John Bilderain, Claremont, Ron Shewmaker, Covina, and Clint Miller, brother of the bride, Glendora.

A reception at the chapel followed the ceremony. When the couple returns from a wedding trip to San Luis Obispo, the newlyweds will establish a home in San Dimas.

HELEN TESSIER

The Wendy Ward program offers courses for three major groups.

Model Teen classes stress the interests and lifestyles of junior and senior high school girls. Material covered includes visual poise, make-up, hair care, wardrobe and basic modeling.

Crossroads to Charm is a course for girls eight to 12 years of age which helps to bridge the gap between lollipops and lipstick. Emphasis is placed on learning good grooming habits, wardrobe selection and basic modeling.

Sugar and Spice is a course for girls from four to seven dealing with introduction to grooming, visual poise and manners.

All three courses include a graduation fashion show for friends and relatives.

Group rates are available to Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

Once upon a time in lovely, scenic Montclair, there came to pass a man and his wife and their two daughters. The man's thoughts were, "How can I better serve my community?" so he thought and he thought and he decided to buy a car and truck agency and he named the agency ROYCE BARNETT PONTIAC AND GMC TRUCKS. The agency is located at 5200 Holt Blvd., in lovely, scenic Montclair.

There are many facets to this story, and there are many facets to the ROYCE BARNETT agency. The agency prides itself in having a huge stock of beautiful new Pontiacs to sell, as well as fabulous GMC trucks. The agency is also proud of its fine line of previously owned, (because many fine people trade in their cars) low mileage automobiles and trucks.

Why don't you stop by ROYCE BARNETT this very weekend and test drive one of our many fine automobiles and trucks? Our sales staff is kind, courteous and knowledgeable. They are anxious to assist you, whether you are interested in buying or leasing a vehicle. We want you to like our vehicles, and we can help you get the financing you need to have one of our vehicles for your very own. Our expert office manager and her efficient office staff is always on hand to help our customers.

When it comes to service, ROYCE BARNETT is tops. Our staff of highly trained mechanics is anxious to do the best job possible on your automobile. The men in our parts department and the body and fender men are the best to be found. They can take a badly damaged vehicle and repair and repaint it and it will look like a new car.

THIS WEEKEND, and THIS WEEKEND ONLY ..... all of ROYCE BARNETT's small cars will be ON SALE! There will be Astras and Sunbirds to delight your eye, not to mention your pocketbook. Some have 4 cylinder engines and some have V-6 engines. We are also offering all our DEMO CARS FOR ONLY $150.00 OVER INVOICE COST! This sale will end July 18th, so please, make this a truly happy ending by stopping in at • ROYCE BARNETT PONTIAC AND GMC TRUCK CENTER — 5200 Holt Blvd., Montclair. Or call us at ---621-4854.

Like all story endings, this is where the words come to an end. However, this is also where the good guy rides off into the sunset. Shane, Shane ... come back Shane, mommy has a cookie for you....

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Five man-eating piranha — outlawed in Florida — are swimming around in some home fish tanks today. They were mistakenly sold as docile little red pacus to four pet shops.

"I've got three people out now knocking on doors trying to get them back," Jack Lynch, manager of Sunset Aquarium in Clearwater, said Thursday. "I had eight, but I have no idea who bought five of them. I think I remember the other three. I'm doing my damnedest."

Piranha, a vicious flesh-eater known for mass attacks on large animals — including man — are native to tropic South America. They're outlawed in Florida because of the potential danger if they happened to be released in the state's subtropical fresh waters.

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission sent inspectors to the pet stores to warn operators that 23 two-inch piranhas were accidentally delivered in the last couple of weeks.

"They're outlawed here so you really don't look for piranhas," said Lynch. He said young piranha and the pacus are similar in appearance, except for the lower jaw. And the teeth. And the taste for flesh.

Two mayors linked to bookmaking activities

RIVERSIDE (AP) — The mayors of Lake Elsinore and Perris in Riverside County have been named in connection with alleged bookmaking activities in three establishments in the two cities.

A total of four spots in the county have been closed this week for alleged bookmaking offenses.

District Attorney Byron C. Morton received three separate injunctions in Superior Court Tuesday and Wednesday closing the Kool Kove bar in Perris and the Sands Casino and the Sahara Dunes Casino in Lake Elsinore, Morton's office reported Thursday.

Dan's Seed and Feed, an agricultural supply firm in Perris, was closed on Tuesday but allowed to reopen Wednesday after its owner agreed to a permanent injunction against illegal bookmaking or any other form of gambling.

The Sands and Dunes are legalized card gambling casinos. Lake Elsinore Mayor Frank dePasquale was named in the injunction as the owner of the property on which the two casinos are located.

Perris Mayor Robert D. Perry, an employe of Dan's Seed and Feed, was named as a defendant in the injunction against that establishment.

The bar and the two casinos will remain closed for at least 15 days under injunctions served by sheriff's deputies.

Between 200 and 300 employes at the casinos were at least temporarily out of work because of the closings.

Spokesmen for the district attorney's office said the closures were the result of several months investigation.

A hearing on the injunctions was set for July 27 in Riverside County Superior Court.

No clues as search continues for 26 children, bus driver

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — Twenty-six children and the driver of their school bus who vanished on their way home from a swimming outing apparently are the victims of a mass kidnaping, the Madera County sheriff said today.

Deputies and police searched the San Joaquin Valley farmland through a windy, rainy night split by lightning and thunder for some clue to the whereabouts of the children, who ranged in age from 5 to 15.

The bus in which the children had been riding was found in a dry canal Thursday night.

"It appears to be an abduction," At 6:05 a.m., a state highway patrol plane and two Civil Air Patrol planes took off under gray skies.

The sheriff told reporters he felt "something should break today." He said he had a "hunch."

"I find it difficult to see how any one person can abscond with 26 children and one adult bus driver and get away with it," he said.

Bates said his investigators found two sets of tracks superimposed on the bus tracks, suggesting that an abduction "would have to be planned, it seems to me." The tracks showed that "somebody left the area after the bus was parked."

The bus, which was to have returned the children from the Chowchilla fairgrounds, was found abandoned in a dry canal during a search from the air. It was hidden in a heavy stand of bamboo in the flat farmland about 35 miles northwest of Fresno.

The sheriff said he couldn't "think of any other possibility" but a kidnaping. "There's no blood, no evidence of foul play at the bus. I'm at a loss for words about this one. I absolutely can't figure it. We can't find anybody who has a motive."

Bates said the FBI has been called in.

She said the bus driver, 55-year-old Frank Edward Ray Jr., was "very reliable" and had been driving for the school for 28 years.

"You couldn't ask for a nicer guy," Mrs. Hansen said. "He was born and raised here."

Sheriff Bates, who set up a command post at the Chowchilla Police Department, speculated that there were five possibilities: a "deranged guy" who had kidnaped the entire group; a "personal revenge, somebody who wants to make the parents suffer;" a kidnaping "for money;" a "terrorist" plot; or "some older kid on the bus took command by force."

Shortly before dawn Bates discarded as a clue reports that a white van seen the last two days near where the bus lets children off might be involved in the disappearance. The vehicle turned out to be a "dental van" which has been assigned to the area, he said.

The sheriff's office said it received calls from anxious parents beginning about 4:15 p.m. Thursday. At that time, the bus was two hours overdue.

Investigators towed the bus out of the canal and began a search, roping off the area around the bus. At one point, 30 officers from several jurisdictions were assigned, including a force detailed to a door-to-door search south of the town.

Officers recovered two towels and items connected with a childrens' ceramics project, Bates said. The key was missing from the bus's ignition, he said.

The bus had made three stops, letting off three groups of children, but it never made its fourth and last stop, Bates said.

Prior to Bates' announcement that he suspected an abduction, Sam Baretta, the father of Lisa Baretta, 12, one of the missing children, said:

"It seems so damn strange. There must be a logical explanation. I haven't faced reality yet."

Man, woman held in city bank holdup

A Pomona bank was robbed by a lone gunman Thursday afternoon and police booked two suspects in connection with the holdup a couple of hours later.

The robbery was at the United California Bank branch at 321 E. Holt Ave., where the bandit entered shortly before 2 p.m. carrying a camera bag. He handed a note to a teller in which he warned it was a holdup and demanded money. The cash, almost $1,000, was given him and he walked from the bank to a white Cadillac operated by a young woman and was driven away.

Police were given a license number by a witness which was traced to a Pomona man living on Douglas Drive. Investigation disclosed that his car had been loaned to his brother, who recently arrived in Pomona from San Francisco.

Officers waited in the neighborhood and when the brother, William James Broussard, 33, and his female companion, Terri Lynn Randall, 20, arrived, they were arrested by Detectives Elias Valdez and Jerry Western.

A search of the car turned up no weapons or cash, but officers reported that when Broussard was searched in the lockup later they found the loot in his possession.

The two suspects were booked both on state and federal robbery charges. Bank robbery is a federal offense. and the FBI entered the case shortly after the holdup.

TRAGIC SCENE

Neighbors look over the charred frame of a Pomona home where two small boys died Thursday morning. Fire officials blamed the tragedy on the children's play with matches.

2 Pomona boys die in home blaze

The bodies of the two children were found near each other in one of the bedrooms of the home at 1331 Cornelia St. Both were pronounced dead at the scene.

They were identified as Mario Dion Gilliam, 3, and Shawn Lamar Gilliam, 4. They were cousins.

The 3-year-old's mother, Kim Gilliam, 19, was home at the time of the blaze, but was unable to reach the children before being forced from the home by smoke and heat.

Pomona Fire Chief John Fowlkes said the woman told firemen she was awakened at about 10:30 a.m. by the screaming of the children, although unaware the 4-year-old was in the house.

Smoke and heat prevented her from leaving the bedroom she was in, however, and she climbed out the window.

Fowlkes said the woman, plus neighbors and passersby, attempted to enter the home, but were forced back by the rapidly spreading flames.

When the first fire units arrived at the scene, said Fowlkes, the home was almost fully involved in flames and the windows had been blown out by the heat.

He said the firemen extinguished the flames in three or four minutes, and entered the structure to find the children.

Fireman Jerry Nessmith was the first to battle his way into the structure to search for the children, although he expected to find only one boy at the time.

He found the two small boys almost immediately, which was only minutes after arriving at the scene, but he could detect no vital signs of life.

Evidence found at the scene, said Fowlkes, indicated the fire began in the dining area of the four-bedroom, wood and stucco home.

"A large number of matches, both book matches and wooden matches, were scattered in the vicinity of where the fire started," said Fowlkes.

In addition, matches were found on and near the bodies of the children in the bedroom.

Fowlkes said it appeared the children were playing with the matches in the dining area, igniting some unknown material or furniture. The dining area had a high-beamed ceiling which allowed the fire to develop and spread rapidly in the roof toward other parts of the house.

He said the boys probably sought refuge from the flames in the bedroom where their bodies were found.

The mother of the 4-year-old, Perry Lynn Gilliam, 20, was only a block from the home when the fire occurred. She collapsed at the scene from shock and was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Fowlkes said that Fire Capt. William Beck, 51, and Albert Winn, 17, a passerby, suffered cuts from trying to gain access to the home through shattered windows. Neither required hospitalization.

Carter urges big push by fund raisers for November 'victory'

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter told party fund raisers today that his drive to wrest the White House from Republican control and keep his promises depends on a continued strong effort by them during the campaign.

Carter promised to campaign "flat out" and said, "I don't intend to lose a state."

But Carter, headed home to southwest Georgia after his triumph at the Democratic National Convention, warned the fund raisers that the glow of success the party feels now must be fanned continuously.

He urged members of the party's finance committee to contact 100 persons each to finance voter registration and get-out-the-vote campaigns in the fall.

"I can't keep the promises I've made to the American people or will make this fall — and I intend to keep everyone of them — unless I have a solid base of support in both houses of Congress, unless I get a good mandate in the fall, unless we're able to keep a substantial portion of the unity and common purpose that was exhibited last night in a moment of high tension and high emotion and high commitment," he told the fund raisers at a breakfast meeting.

Puzzled parents waiting, hoping

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — "There must be a logical explanation," said Sam Barletta as he sat in the police station while the hours dragged by.

His 12-year-old daughter, Lisa, is one of 26 students who mysteriously disappeared with their bus driver Thursday on the way back from a summer school outing.

Parents, expecting their children home for supper after a day of swimming and playing, started calling authorities late Thursday afternoon. As the evening wore on, they gathered in the police station lounge, sipping coffee as they waited for some word about their sons and daughters.

The mother of a missing 7-year-old girl spent the night at the police station waiting for the search to resume at 6 a.m. She looked repeatedly at the clock and said, "Come on 6 o'clock, hurry and get here.

"I know my daughter. I know she is self reliant," the woman said, asking that her name be withheld. "I know she can take care of herself as long as she doesn't panic."

Bill Parker, a retired forester whose 8-year-old daughter Barbara is missing, came to the police station today in hope of more news.

"It's really kind of getting to my wife. We were up all night waiting for word," Parker said.

Principal Lee Roy Tatom said today was to have been the last day of the session.

"We had a school picnic and talent program in the auditorium planned, and just a whole lot of festivities," Tatom said in an interview. "There was quite a lot of activity planned for today, but now I expect a lot of long faces. We are all dumbfounded."

10 MSAC buildings are unsafe?

A Mt. San Antonio College trustee wants 10 buildings containing more than 50 classrooms demolished because he claims they are "unsafe."

College officials say the replacement cost of the buildings would run well in excess of $10 million.

Trustee Robert Hutchinson says he has been informed that there is considerable dry rot and termite damage in the college's one-story buildings — some nearly 30 years old — and he thinks they ought to be torn down.

The rest of the college trustees have approved his request for a feasibility study on how safe the buildings are and what can be done with them.

But unless the report finds the buildings totally unsafe, Hutchinson's proposal is bound to be rejected.

Trustee Clifford Booth said that if any of those buildings can be used "I personally hate to see them go."

And Trustee William B. Temple declared that he felt tearing down the building would be most unwise.

"There was a time when we needed a building we just went out and bought it," he explained. "Money was rolling in. But times have changed. Construction costs have sky rocketed."

He said that if the buildings had not met standards of the state Division of Architecture, they would have been torn down long ago.

But Hutchinson recalled that there was an agreement 20 years ago that called for the replacement of those buildings with more modern ones as needed.

He reacted sharply to a proposal that the board provide air conditioning in two rooms of those buildings next fall.

"I don't want to spend any more money on these buildings," he declared. "The architect already has said the air conditioning systems in these buildings are not as efficient as the one in the new units."

He asked that the core of the feasibility report include a survey by the college's building inspector as to the condition of the buildings, and a recommendation on how to proceed.

Robbery turns into a great big nothing

LOS ANGELES — The mood was tense. Almost as if something were happening. More than 30 Los Angeles bullet-proofed policemen and a throng of reporters and gawkers thought so too.

It just went to show how something can happen if you think it is.

The police officers, some clad in bulletproof vests and toting shotguns, converged Thursday on a downtown printing firm after a report of an armed robbery, possibly with hostages taken.

"There's two guys holed up in there with some hostages," said a bystander.

But there weren't. But everybody thought so.

Tensed and crouching, dozens of officers from the Special Weapons and Tactics team pressed against the one-story brick walls of the Commercial and Stationery Printing Co., peering cautiously around the corners in anticipation of gunfire. Finally, three policemen burst inside.

"I found him in an aisle in the store, lying face down," said officer Larry McKinley. "He had no gun that I know of."

With one alleged holdup man in custody, police discovered that the two "hostages" were just stationary store employes who had gotten themselves temporarily lost in the confusion. But another intruder remained in the building, they said.

An attempt would be made to flush him out.

The crowd grew. The gaggle of newsmen and photographers swelled to two or three dozen. Helicopters churned overhead as police poised for another run through the building.

After a few tense moments, the officers emerged empty handed, and began to search the grounds for signs of the missing gunman. Suddenly, three or four of the officers whirled away from the building, guns drawn. Again, nothing.

"It was just a tack of wood falling over," someone said.

After searching the building three times, Lt. George Bennett announced that the so-called gunman, whose identity was not available, apparently acted alone. The confusion had arisen from conflicting reports from witnesses and the entire incident was over, he said.

"There was a robbery at a liquor store and at one point they thought there were hostages, then there weren't. What it amounted to was a great big nothing."

Liquor store?

"I thought it was a liquor store," Sgt. Morgan said, "maybe it wasn't."

UC regents propose hike of student fees

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — University of California regents are ignoring Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s objections and preparing to raise student fees throughout the nine-campus system.

A proposal endorsed by a regents' commitee Thursday would raise the fees from the current $600 to $648 in the fall of 1977, and allow each campus to raise them another $45 in the next three years.

The Finance Committee recommended the action to the full board despite a letter from a top Brown aide, Preble Stolz, urging them to limit the increase to campuses that need it.

The same regents' committee approved a proposed conflict-of-interest code for the university after UC President David Saxon said he'd try to drop a provision that would limit the authority of teachers to assign textbooks they'd written.

That provision would have required teachers to forego any profits from using their own books in their classes. The president of a teachers' academic freedom committee said the subject was none of the state's business.

The conflict-of-interest code was criticized on other grounds by the American Federation of Teachers. It said the code wouldn't require the predominantly wealthy regents to disclose their stock holdings or corporate ties.

The $48 increase would meet a deficit in UC's registration fee, which hasn't risen since 1968. The fee supports such student services as health centers, counseling and intramural sports.

A UC official said Stolz, Brown's assistant for programs and policies, wrote that any fee increase "should be on a campus-by-campus basis."

The Brown aide also said campus fee increases should be subject to a regents' vote so students have input, reported UC Vice President Chester McCorkle.

Saxon supported the uniform increase, and also said he was negotiating with Brown for $9 million in additional state aid to avert a further fee increase in the next three years.

Alleged SLA kidnap victims

Two more stories told

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William Harris dangled a pair of broken handcuffs in front of a witness and asked, "Tom, do you remember these?"

"Yes, I see the place where I cut them," young Tom Matthews answered, recalling the night Patricia Hearst held a flashlight while he sawed the cuff off Harris' wrist.

Then Harris, acting as his own attorney, elicited an important admission from the star prosecution witness.

"Tom, did you ever feel you had been kidnaped?" Harris asked.

"No," Matthews said firmly.

"And did you say afterwards that you wouldn't press charges if it was up to you?" asked Harris.

"Yes," said the witness.

At that, the prosecutor who had called Matthews to the stand objected angrily and the answer was stricken from the court record.

But the jurors were allowed to hear the amiable college student tell of his night on the run with the Symbionese Liberation Army — Harris, his wife, Emily, and the famous fugitive Miss Hearst.

He told how a gun-toting Harris commandered his van on May 16, 1974 and took him along, commanding, "Don't do anything flaky."

The 20-year-old Matthews was excited when Harris introduced Miss Hearst.

"I said, 'My friends will never believe me.'"

Matthews' congenial remembrances of the SLA were in sharp contrast to those of a second alleged kidnap victim, Frank Sutter, a middle-aged contractor.

Sutter, the final witness before court recessed for the weekend, told of being forced to lie under a blanket on the back floor of his car while the SLA trio drove around for seven hours.

San Quentin Six trial finally reaches the jury

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — After five years of legal maneuvers and a record-breaking trial that spanned two summers, the murder-conspiracy trial of the San Quentin Six has reached the jury.

The eight-woman, four-man panel began deliberations today as six defendants, five of them already sentenced to life in prison, await the verdict.

The jury is charged with sorting out conflicting, confusing and often gory testimony about the events of Aug. 21, 1971, when black revolutionary George Jackson, three guards and two inmates died in Jackson's abortive bid for freedom.

Demo team huddles with fund raisers

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale, declaring "I've never felt better with less sleep," opened his first full day as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate by huddling with party organizers and top fund raisers.

Mondale, at the side of standard-bearer Jimmy Carter, told a breakfast gathering of the national Democratic Finance Committee that "I've never been through a meeting that was more thrilling and more hopeful, not just for the Democrats, but for the whole country, than I went through last night."

Mondale, 48, confessed that when he stood on Madison Square Garden's podium to give his acceptance speech, he was "just plain scared."

"But I looked out on those faces, and they said, 'You're going to succeed, Mondale, whether you like it or not,'" he said.

Mondale and Carter also stopped briefly at a meeting of the Democratic National Committee, shaking hands and receiving congratulations.

The Carter and Mondale families planned lunch together before Carter headed for Plains, Ga., and Mondale to the nation's capital and thence to his home in Minnesota.

"Nineteen seventy-six will not be a year of politics as usual," Carter told the convention. "It is a year of concern, and of quiet and sober reassessment of our nation's character and purpose — a year when voters have already confounded the political experts.

"It can be a year of inspiration and hope. And I guarantee you it will be the year when we give the government of this country back to the people of this country.

"There is a new mood in America."

Carter said Mondale and his staff would be asked "to put forward their own proposal about what areas of the nation he should visit most, what particular states he would find most compatible with his own campaigning, and to share responsibilities for major events."

Carter said there would be staff meetings following up today's meeting between the two candidates. Presumably, the bulk of the planning will be done in Plains, where Carter is expected to spend most of his time until the campaign against the Republican nominee begins in early September.

The Carter campaign headquarters will remain in Atlanta in keeping with his non-Washington approach to the election. Washington operations will center on the Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Aides said party chairman Robert Strauss, the man generally credited with patching up the party after divisive conventions and campaigns torn by the Vietnam war in 1968 and internal party changes in 1972, would coordinate national connections.

The staff which helped Carter's miraculous climb from political oblivion to 19 presidential primary victories and a nomination sewed up a month ahead of the convention will remain. But it will be expanded to include political specialists who are expert in building national campaigns as opposed to the state-by-state nomination process.

Carter, who was applauded 48 times during the 38-minute speech, said the country and party are suffering a time of trouble but would come through stronger for the experience and "tempered by the fire."

"Guided by lasting and simple moral values, we have emerged idealists without illusions, realists who still know the old dreams of justice and liberty — of country and community," he said.

The speech was perhaps the most comprehensive display yet of Carter's stands on the major political issues, although it generally reflected the party platform which his delegates were instrumental in writing.

Carter said he wanted jobs for all who were able to work, comprehensive tax reform, universal voter registration, a national health program, an end to racial and sex discrimination, firm law enforcement and an end to "the double standard of justice in America.

"I see no reason why big shot crooks should go free while the poor ones go to jail," Carter said.

Carter told reporters later he could accomplish his goals within four years of moving into the White House.

While Carter denounced "the disgrace of Watergate," he did not mention personalities. But Mondale went further by bringing up President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon for Watergate offenses.

On foreign policy, Carter's speech was reminiscent of John F. Kennedy's inaugural address 15 years ago. He called for "a sustained architectural effort to shape an international framework of peace within which our own ideals gradually can become a global reality.

"To our friends and allies I say that what unites us through our common dedication to democracy is more important than that which occasionally divides us on economics or politics.

"To the nations that seek to lift themselves from poverty I say that America shares your aspiration and extends its hand to you.

"To those nation-states which wish to compete with us I say that we neither fear competition nor see it as an obstacle to wider cooperation," Carter said. But the major thrust of the speech came from the Carter themes of compassion and public confidence in government. He said the Democratic party has made mistakes "but ours is a tradition of leadership and compassion and progress.

"In times of need the Democrats have been there. But in recent years, our nation has seen a failure of leadership.

"We have been a nation adrift too long. We have been without leadership too long. We have had divided, deadlocked government too long. We have been governed by veto too long.

"We have suffered enough at the hands of a tired, worn out administration without new ideas, without youth or vitality, without vision, and without the confidence of the American people.

"Our country has lived through a time of torment. It is now a time for healing."

Mondale said the secret of the Carter campaign has been that it addressed "the underlying, intangible issue that is central to this year's campaign — the demand of the people of this nation to once more restore honesty and decency and openness to our government, the demand of our people to once more have a government they can take pride in."

Economy better in '76 —Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration said today that the economy will perform better than originally expected during 1976, providing Americans with about 379,000 more jobs and diminishing the erosion of inflation on peoples' buying power.

"The President believes his economic policies are the major reasons for this improvement," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

Revised administration projections on the nation's unemployment, inflation and production capacity must be sent to Congress later this month under the new budget-making procedures.

The President's top economic and budget advisers released their projections at a briefing. They attributed the estimates of the stronger-than-expected economic performance to developments which already have taken place.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said a crucial factor in the improved economic picture has been greater confidence by consumers and businessmen. Greenspan said the confidence has been gaining even faster than expected and has been translated into faster economic growth.

Nessen said the President is determined to stick to his economic program and get the budget back into balance by 1979, if possible.

The latest projections, released by the Council of Economic Advisers and the Office of Management and Budget, were the first solid economy projection figures since the administration's initial forecast in January.

Europe newspapers see shrewd Carter, but question views

LONDON (AP) — European newspapers today classed Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter as a shrewd politician and campaigner but questioned his position on major issues. Carter's choice of Sen. Walter F. Mondale as his running mate was generally considered a unifying move for the party.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, said the former Georgia governor was a realist who favors detente. But it said his policies are influenced by militarists, reactionary trade unionists and Zionists.

The Times of London said Carter's "economic policies may turn out to be overexpansionist. His foreign policies ... could suffer from his inexperience. His personality could run him into confrontations with Congress, with advisers, or even with foreign countries."

Britain's liberal Guardian praised Mondale as "one of the most decent men in the American Senate" but accused Carter of lack of vision.

"Ambition by itself is not enough," said the Guardian. "For a man to be so dedicated and determined to win power while having no clear conception of what to do when this is achieved, is disturbing."

Amsterdam's De Volksrant said Mondale "has an impeccable reputation as a reasonably progressive senator" and is very well liked within the Washington establishment that Carter has often attacked. It said Carter's choice "confirms that behind his broad smile looms a 'political animal' that thus far has been operating very efficiently."

Norway's biggest newspaper Aftenposten said Carter was strong because he "is not related to the Watergate affair and the whole series of Washington exposures which over the last 12 months shocked and upset the American people" but weak "because his lack of experience and vague election platform may create uncertainity and unease, both in the United States and among the American allies."

Stockholm's Dagens Nyheter said a general wish for party unity had prevented Carter's adversaries and rivals from "exposing his weaknesses and trying to make a real effort to stop him. In spite of all his words about mistrust in Washington and its politicians, Jimmy Carter really is much of a traditional politician and a traditional Democrat himself."

Marshals came before Christ; vigil is over

GRANNIS, Ark. (AP) — For nearly 10 months, they waited for God and the end of the world. Instead, the marshals came today, quitely and quickly evicting them and ending their vigil.

The 30 persons waiting for the Second Coming of Christ were escorted this morning from the three-bedroom house in this tiny southwest Arkansas community where they had waited since last September.

"Everything is all right, everything is all right," said Elizabeth Nance Bard, one of the vigil members. She was trembling, however, as she and 15 other vigil members climbed in a pickup truck and left the house on the outskirts of the town of 177 persons.

Gas station robbed; man held

A 28-year-old man was arrested by Pomona police in the robbery of the Economy self-service station, 1044 W. Mission Blvd. in Ontario of a small amount of money Thursday night.

Leon James Gibson of 1020 Muir St., Pomona, was being held in Pomona jail this morning for Ontario police investigating the robbery. Pomona police are questioning Gibson about another robbery.

Police said the suspect, wearing a Jacket with "Camel" written on it walked into the Ontario service station and simulated holding a gun in his jacket pocket. The suspect ordered attendant Charles Grossey to hand over the cash from the register and his wallet, police said.

Grossey was ordered to the back of the station and the robber fled.

Grossey called Ontario police at 11:50 p.m. to report the robbery.

At 2:30 a.m. a Pomona police officer saw a man wearing a jacket with the word "Camel" on it riding a motorcycle. The officer stopped the man as he was trying to change some quarters at a store.

Man in car robbed

A 64-year-old man complained to ONTARIO police that as he was sleeping in his car, a man got inside and shoved a gun in his side demanding his money Thursday night.

Charles M. Stabe told officers that the gunman took his wallet containing a small amount of cash and then struck him in the chest. The gunman fled on foot.

Stabe said he had fallen asleep in his car at Mira Monte Avenue and Holt Boulevard and the doors were unlocked.

The gunman was described as a black, in his 20's, 6 feet 1, of medium build. He was wearing a gray baseball cap.

3 girls held in assault

Three teenage Ontario girls were arrested Thursday night after allegedly throwing a flattened jagged beer can at an ONTARIO police officer at Maitland Street and Sultana Avenue.

Officer Don McGready said the three girls began yelling at him in Spanish on the street outside of the McGowen Co. as he was questioning a company official about some thefts. He said he broke off his interview with the McGowen official when he heard what sounded like something hitting his police car parked outside.

McGready said as he steped out the door of the company a jagged-edged flattened beer can sailed past his head and hit the brick wall. The three girls turned and fled. McGready called for assistance. A few minutes later the three girls were arrested by Officer Lloyd Sharf and charged with assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

Police said the girls were released to their mothers pending disposition on the charge in juvenile court.

House burglarized

Frank Micastro, 859 N. Mountain Ave., UPLAND, reported to police that burglars broke into his home and stole jewelry, two stereos, a camera, hunting knife, and a pair of skis with a total value of $2,094 Thursday night.

Police said the burglar entered Micastro's home by prying open a balcony screened window.

500 county cars cut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five hundred county cars are being eliminated in the budget crunch, ending free rides to work for 500 county employes.

The cars, among 1,600 autos assigned to county workers, will be called in over the next six months, officials said Thursday. First to feel the pinch will be the staff of Chief Administrative Officer Harry L. Hufford, which often has brought bad news of budget belt-tightening to other county departments.

In the cutback only Hufford will be left with a car in the CAO office.

SAN PEDRO (AP) — A San Pedro Municipal Court judge has dismissed a misdemeanor drunken driving charge against Los Angeles Harbor General Manager Fred B. Crawford.

Crawford was originally due in court Thursday for a hearing on one count of drunk driving filed last April 12 after his arrest in San Pedro four days earlier.

But the case had earlier been advanced to June 29, when Crawford, 48, asked for dismissal after Judge Glenn Wymore granted a motion to suppress the results of a blood alcohol test as prosecution evidence because of a flaw in the method police used to arrest Crawford.

WRONG WAY — Jan Bond, 22, of Denver figured the one-way street sign doesn't apply to kayaks when she went for a ride on a flooded street. A record-equalling three-fourths inch of rain put the city of Alamalosa, Colo., under water. Normally the city only receives 10 inches of precipitation annually.

Despite pleas from three property owners that their land had been reassessed 71 per cent or higher, the Claremont City Council has refused to allow them to retain multiple-family 2,000-square-foot zoning on their land.

With the updating of the Historical Claremont ordinance, the council Tuesday night rezoned all property in the area to RM-4,000.

That means that the lots of William R. Webb, George and Margaret Gibbs, and Oliver Batcheller can be developed at only half the density they have been zoned at for 28 years.

The boundaries of the Historical Claremont District are the properties south of the Foothill Boulevard frontage, then south on College Avenue, west on Seventh Street, south on Harvard Avenue, west on Harrison Avenue, north on Berkeley Avenue, east on Eighth Street, and north on Indian Hill Boulevard to Foothill.

"We are asking for no favors, nor have we been granted any," Gibbs told the council. "All we have asked is to be left alone with our rights of RM 2,000 (the old R3) zoning which we have had the past 28 years."

Gibbs complained that his 71-year-old house has been reassessed 185 per cent, and the property over-all 71 per cent.

Mayor Bertye Smith told Gibbs that rights do not become vested unless used.

"I sympathize with you," she said.

Batcheller, 137 W. Seventh St., complained that his 91-year-old house had gone up 100 per cent in reassessment.

"Our properties account for less than two per cent of the lots in Historical Claremont. Why can't RM 2,000 be grandfathered into the new ordinance?" he asked.

He said that it had been rumored that leaving the property as it is would be spot zoning.

"Under the new law, more than 150 homes are not in compliance as to zoning," Batcheller said.

Ray Fowler told the council that the City Atty. William Bergman should be directed to resolve the issue. "We're faced with serious discrimination against those three property owners."

Mrs. Gibbs said that her property has been reassessed four times in the past 12 years. "The area north of Foothill Boulevard has not been done in 15 years," she said.

Calling the ordinance a compromise, Councilwoman Claire McDonald moved for adoption of the new ordinance, and it passed for first reading.

The ordinance as amended does the following:

— Requires a minimum lot size of 7,500 square feet for all new lots.

— Permits two dwellings on any lots meeting the minimum requirement providing all other standards are met.

— Imposes a height limit of two stories or 30 feet.

— Requires review and approval by the Architectural Commission of plans for any new development or remodeling.

— Requires an outdoor living area as a function of the total square footage of the dwelling rather than on bedrooms.

— Permits multiple family uses as a right on all lots or combinations of lots of 16,000 or more square feet under common ownership when ordinance is adopted.

In other matters, the council took the following actions:

— Accepted a bid of $9,300 from James Booth

Cal Poly, Pacific State Hospital

Street project opposed

A move to condemn property along Pomona Boulevard between Valley Boulevard and Roselawn Avenue for a street improvement project has run into an unexpected snag because of protests from Cal Poly and Pacific State Hospital to the Pomona City Council.

Marilyn Moffitt, an attorney for Cal Poly and Pacific State Hospital, told the council Monday night that neither institution was opposed to the street widening project, but that assessments for the improvements would be protested.

In addition, she said that both institutions were upset over the manner in which the city's Department of Public Works had handled the matter — specifically citing the short notice given administrators at both institutions.

She said the project was only learned about in recent weeks.

Mayor Ray Lepire said there was obviously a breakdown in communications, and urged that consideration of the condemnation action be delayed so that meetings could be held to resolve the issue.

The council approved the delay unanimously.

The project will include widening the unimproved portions of the street, plus the construction of curbs, gutters and street lighting.

Other landowners in the area instituted the project last year by petition.

for purchase of 16,005 square feet of city land between the Thompson Creek channel and the northerly end of Indian Hill Boulevard.

— Confirmed Claremont's commitment of $1,474.48 to finance the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project the coming year.

— Awarded a $26,950 contract to Meisch Bros. Inc. Pomona, for the second phase of the remodeling of city hall, including the accounting, planning and engineering departments.

— Set a public hearing on a Planning Commission recommendation that single-family houses in a residential unit development be allowed to have exterior television antennae. The city code now bans outdoor antennae in RUD districts.

PRAGUE (AP) — A rae discovery of graves containing the skeletons of ancient Moravian men has been reported in the town of Nechvalin.

Swords were found with the skeletons, indicating they are the remains of nobility. Another indication that the dead were members of the Great Moravian Empire's upper class were the "Charon coins" found in the mouths of the skeletons. In Greek mythology, Charon was the man who ferried the souls of the dead over the Styx and Acheron rivers. The graves also include a number of gold and silver earrings.

The Great Moravian Empire was a large kingdom that flourished during the 9th century, in what now is south-central Czechoslovakia.

O-M board dips into reserves to aid budget

The Ontario-Montclair school board Thursday night adopted a publication budget of $19,561,159 for the 1976-77 school year, projecting a tax increase of five cents per $100 assessed valuation. This will bring the district tax rate to $2.93.

The proposed budget presented to the board originally called for a tax increase of 33 cents, but after lengthy discussion the trustees voted to dip into the general reserve fund of $1,723,000 to meet the budget demands rather than accept the 33-cent increase.

Deputy Supt. George Duerr, in presenting the budget, pointed out that the District income is estimated to be higher and the expense lower than noted in the tentative budget adopted last month. Senate Bill 1641 will increase income by some $580,000; assessed valuation of the district has increased 8.57 per cent, instead of the previously estimated 6.95 per cent, and estimated expenditures for 1975-76 are down by $228,035. Expenses in the 1976-77 budget show a $42,490 increase.

As is his custom, board member Sam Di Giovanni was the watchdog on the expenditures.

"I think we should question this 33-cent tax increase," he said. "We still have enough money in the reserves fund to get by another year without increasing taxes. I'd like to try a budget with a no-tax raise."

Supt. Jack Jones warned the trustees that the budget as presented made no allowance for salary increase for teachers and other employes.

The California School Employes Association (for classified employes) and the Ontario-Montclair Teachers Association have presented proposals to the board that total more than $7 million. The only increase included in the publication budget is the annual 2.29 per cent increment.

"Within the budget there is no room for salary increases," Jones said. "Taking funds from the reserves would bring the reserves down to $1 million."

The mention of salary increases brough the board close to the area of wage negotiations, a subject for executive (closed) session.

Referring to the public and press, Di Giovanni said, "Should we be talking in front of the children? Is this family hour, or is it past 9 o'clock?"

Member Rose Kelber insisted that the district pass the five-cent tax increase to pay for earthquake safety, an item which the District is obligated to pay each year. She moved the adoption of the publication budget slashed by $576,556, the amount the 33-cent increase would have generated. The measure was approved, 4-1, with Di Giovanni voting no.

"The cut in the tax increase was not large enough," he said.

Departing city manager projects Chino's future

Chino officials will not allow "anything dire" to happen as a result of the city's burgeoning growth, says City Manager Herman R. "Bob" Fast.

Fast, who is leaving his job today after four years to accept the city manager's position in West Covina, was cautious in an interview before his departure about predicting Chino's future.

He indicated the city will somehow be able to provide enough services to handle an increasing population. "Anything dire could happen if you let it happen, but I don't see how that would occur here."

City and county officials have been working to coordinate proper planning in the area, and the growth hasn't reached a critical point yet, declared Fast.

Financial problems have kept the city from providing certain services to residents, but they are being worked on, he noted. "We really haven't gotten flood control off the ground here, and our regional approach to water and sewage is still in the infancy stage."

Overall, Fast is pleased with his four years in Chino. He is leaving for "personal and professional" reasons.

A former assistant city manager in West Covina, Fast lived there for 18 years. West Covina is a larger city than Chino and may provide some new challenges, he indicated.

His salary at West Covina will be $36,000 a year, plus wages for prior service there. He will also receive moving expenses and a city car. Fast would be making $37,500 if he stayed in Chino.

He will be missed by Chino Mayor Bob McLeod and the City Council. They praise him for his work in obtaining a new Civic Center.

Fast said the Civic Center was "good and fine" but he was also proud of other accomplishments.

"We mobilized capital improvements, such as in our water system. And the council supported the concept of a professional management team."

Looking again to the future, Fast said Chino has a "good opportunity" to balance its residential growth with industrial and commercial development. "This already has begun. I don't feel there will be a tax burden on the residential property owner."

He indicated the state must institute reform legislation for agricultural preserves and open space. "We really need that."

Chino's housing boom should slow down in the next 18 months, he predicted, due to possible legislation and a "lack of raw land." As for growth, the city should "take all it can" in industrial and commercial areas.

Fast said it is "inevitable" that agricultural land in the Chino area -- much of it outside the city limits -- will not remain in its present state. "Traditional land planning has showed that agricultural land has to move and move and move. It can't compete economically with development."

The many dairies in the area will be forced to relocate, he added. "Nothing at the moment is stopping this from happening. They are at the mercy of the state legislature."

Because most dairies are outside the city limits, "there is not much the city can do about it," he noted.

City land is rapidly filling up with development, but with planned industrial and commercial additions, Chino should end up as a well-balanced community, said Fast.

Three valley officials will confront RTD

Officials from Pomona, Claremont and La Verne will confront the Southern California Rapid Transit District's board of directors next Wednesday with a demand that the voters in the three cities be allowed to decide whether to withdraw from the district.

The meeting with the RTD board will be the latest in a lengthy series of maneuvers by local officials, aimed at withdrawal over local charges that RTD spends much of the valley's transportation monies on services elsewhere in the district — principally in downtown Los Angeles.

"I told Mr. Gilstrap that an election would be the best thing for the cities and the district. If the people vote to remain in the district it would be like a vote of confidence for RTD, and if they voted to get out we could find new ways to satisfy our own transportation needs," said Lepire.

The presumption has always been that, at least in Pomona and Claremont's case, the cities would probably link up with the transit system now operating in the West End communities.

Lepire, however, was unwilling to predict that the RTD board would allow the election to be held.

"If the board denies the election request then we will be in a stronger position when legislation is again introduced in Sacramento to allow us to vote on issue," said Lepire.

The cities have already had one bill introduced in the state legislature on their behalf, sponsored by Assemblyman William McVittie, D-65th Dist.

The bill failed early this year, but McVittie, said Lepire, has expressed a willingness to continue the fight for the cities.

The two main points of conflict between the RTD and the cities have historically been the levels of local bus service and control of local bus service.

Information gathered by city staffs has tended to indicate that state transportation funds, which RTD collects in the name of the local cities on a per capita basis, is not always spent in the local area.

RTD has always denied the charge, but never with enough convincing data to end the claim.

Consequently the local cities have generally felt RTD did not provide an adequate level of service.

A HELPING HAND

Paul Lukather, one of the founders of The Brass Ring in Ontario, helps Dorothy Ciecone adjust the reins to control a horse. The Brass Ring, a horsemanship center for the handicapped, will hold its third annual benefit training show July 31, at the Jubilee Stables, beginning at 7 a.m. The show will feature both able-bodied and handicapped riders.

Ontario dial-a-ride service in a month

The West Valley Transit Service Authority approved the expansion of dial-a-ride taxi service in Ontario Thursday, and within a month Ontario residents will enjoy full-city cab service.

Roger Hughbanks, Ontario city manager, presented the recommendation from the WVTSA technical committee to the board Thursday at the Montclair City Council Chambers.

Ontario is currently served by dial-a-ride — less costly than regular taxi service — in the area from Benson Avenue to Mission Boulevard, west of the Ontario International Airport to Grove Avenue, Holt Boulevard to Vineyard Avenue and north to the city limits. Gene Stalians, owner of Paul's Yellow Cab, provides the drivers and dispatch for the 2½ vehicles covering this area on a contract basis with WVTSA.

Stalians reported that two 1975 Plymouth sedans would be purchased to move the service south of Mission and pick up the remainder of the developed areas in the city.

The additional costs total $24,666 which includes $17,503 in actual operating costs for the two new vehicles through January 1977, $7,163 in preparation for purchase and painting the cars in the Omnitrans logo and colors, and a fixed fee of $1,591.

The City of Upland was allowed to expand full dial-a-ride service several weeks ago. The two cities are the pilots for possible extension of the dial-a-ride throughout the West End.

Dial-a-ride remains supplementary to the fixed routes of the Omnitrans mini-buses which still enjoy higher ridership than the cab service.

The regular fare for dial-a-ride is 50 cents and is a quarter for senior citizens and handicapped persons with an Omnitrans pass. Operating hours are Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. There is no weekend service.

The fixed routes run Mondays through Saturdays from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The show will feature able-bodied entries and a demonstration of riding by some of the handicapped riders from the center. The show will begin at 7 a.m. at the Jubilee Stables where the center is located, 12805 S. Euclid Ave., Ontario.

The horses which will be ridden by handicapped participants are specially trained for voice command since some of the riders are blind or partially paralyzed.

Anna Collard will be The Brass Ring's Bicentennial cover girl for the event. She is 97.

Proceeds will be donated to the center.

Stabbed man still critical

An unidentified young man, found beaten and stabbed more than 30 times Tuesday in San Gabriel Canyon, remained in critical condition today in County-USC Medical Center.

The man, 18 to 20, was found in a field east of Highway 39 a few feet off the old San Gabriel Canyon Road. He was conscious, but was unable to speak.

Sheriff's investigators have been unable to learn his identity or the motive for the attack upon him.

Gasoline use sets May mark

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Motorists in California bought more gasoline in May than in any previous May, and almost set a record for any month in history, the state Board of Equalization says.

The 920 million gallons sold during May was second only to the 935 million sold in August, 1973, before the Arab oil embargo, the board said.

This was the sixth consecutive month that California motorists have set monthly records for gasoline use.

Mexican luau is scheduled

A Mexican luau, sponsored by the Chino Hills Senior Citizens' Association, will be held Saturday at 4 p.m. at Descanso and Sierra Vista streets in Los Serranos.

The event, to be held behind the Los Serranos American Legion Building, will feature carnitas and Latin music. Past guest speakers for the group will be honored and new members are to be initiated.

Upland okays its budget

A publication budget of $7,849,295, calling for a tax rate of $2.734 per $100 of assessed valuation, was approved Thursday night by the Upland Elementary School District.

The rate is 2.7 cents higher than the levy set in the tentative budget. Acting Dist. Supt. Glenn Hardy told the school board that the increase is in a permissive levy for summer school.

The budget is about $440,000 higher than the tentative budget submitted last month. Hardy said the new state school aid bill, approved July 2, will raise Upland's allowance by about $350,000. He said that money will go into unallocated reserves.

The superintendent estimated that average daily attendance next fall will reach 6,000, compared with 5,945 last year.

Pomona couple granted separate trials

A Pomona couple, accused of murdering a Pomona man in the desert near Blythe last December, have been granted separate trials with the woman's scheduled to begin Monday.

The pair are charged with murdering Ronald Lee Hunziker, 25, Dec. 5 about 10 miles from Blythe after the victim, of 1175 E. Grand Ave., had agreed to give them and an unidentified 15-year-old Pomona youth a ride to Oklahoma during the Christmas holidays.

Hunziker's dismembered body was discovered in the desert April 10 after inquiries were made to Pomona police about his failure to arrive at his destination in Wisconsin. He had been shot several times with a .22-caliber rifle.

The youth is being held by Riverside County juvenile authorities and is expected to testify during both trials.

The trials are scheduled for Riverside County Superior Court in Indio. Taylor's is to begin Aug. 6. Both defendants were being held in lieu of $250,000 bail each.

The amnesty lobby

The U.S. public hasn't heard much from the amnesty lobby for some time, but it is likely to hear a great deal as the presidential election campaign begins in earnest.

U.S. Rep. John Ashbrook reports that the American Left is "revving up for an all-out drive to bring unconditional amnesty into the 1976 political campaign."

According to Congressman Ashbrook, Amnesty Update, the leading pro-amnesty organization, recently outlined a political action plan for unconditional amnesty and reconstruction aid for Communist Vietnam.

In a speech in Congress June 2, Rep. Ashbrook called the roll of organizations involved in the amnesty drive. These included the American Civil Liberties Union, American Friends Service Committee, Episcopal Peace Fellowship, National Lawyers Guild, War Resisters League, American Deserters Committee, Sweden, and Toronto American Exile Group.

Unquestionably, the amnesty lobby will try to put across the notion that the U.S. government should be "generous." It should be understood, therefore, that the United States always has been very generous with authentic pacifists who base their actions on religious grounds. For decades, the United States has made provision for conscientious objectors. But the war resisters and deserters of the Vietnam era weren't authentic pacifists. They simply opposed fighting the communist regime in Hanoi.

The amnesty lobby wants the next President of the United States to grant blanket amnesty to anyone who refused to serve in the armed forces during the Vietnam War, or who deserted.

The United States already has been extraordinarily generous in its clemency offer to those who refused to perform their military duties. It would be unconscionable to extend blanket amnesty to those who refused to fight for their country, who fled abroad, or who deserted from the armed services. Amnesty, in other words, is an insult to every citizen who served his country in Vietnam.

Congressman Ashbrook rightly said that "While some compromise is always a part of the legislative and executive decision process, some matters of principle should never be the subject of any compromise, and the concept of total amnesty is one of those which should be categorically rejected."

Nothing could be more true. The future security of this country depends on a citizenry aware of its obligation to defend the nation, and ready to do so. A nation that does not impose such a requirement on its citizenry, and that does not uphold the principle of service, is unworthy of nationhood. Indeed, a country that doesn't hold its citizenry to this duty is unlikely to last very long.

Congressman Ashbrook said in his speech that all Americans should find out where the presidential and congressional candidates stand on this vital issue. This is, indeed, an issue on which it is tremendously important for the voters to be fully informed.

Just in jest

Had it not been that my car conked out, thus rendering me temporarily immobile — in other words, an unhappy pedestrian — you probably wouldn't be reading these words of doubtful wisdom. In fact, had not a certain Pomona auto dealership's service manager, who shall remain nameless, reneged on his repair time date and added another half day to my immobilization miseries, this little gem you are now reading certainly wouldn't have been polished to the degree you now find it.

For, as an astute literary critic once pointed out, "The trouble with today's writers is that when they can find nothing better to do, they write." And so, be assured, what you are now about to read is all the fault of that nameless auto dealer's nameless service department manager. For in my role of unhappy pedestrian, I found myself ambling down the street to watch a yard sale in progress.

As a result, I now know that a yard sale is a place where otherwise sane and supposedly intelligent individuals invariably end up paying twice what they are worth for other people's mistakes and castoffs.

The public forum

This is not Rome

Dear Editor:

I hope that your readers can tolerate at least one more comment regarding Bilingual/Bicultural Education, because after reading the July 13th letter by Edla Becker, entitled, "When You Are in Rome," I felt an overwhelming compulsion to speak.

Before I moved to this area a short while ago, I worked as a Curriculum Consultant for the Michigan Education Association's Minority Affairs Division, specializing in Black Studies, so I am very well acquainted with the enormous benefits which can be derived from the effective implementation of a viable multi-ethnic/multi-cultural curriculum in the public schools. I am also quite familiar with the many forms of resistance which often accompany any school district's efforts to institute such equitable reforms — particularly in the area of bilingual education.

Having had the experience of presenting numerous conferences and workshops on multi-ethnic curriculum development for Michigan's educators, I am no longer surprised by remarks and attitudes such as those expressed by Mrs. Becker. They are merely the offspring of misinformation, and should be patiently corrected.

Mrs. Becker's interpretation of the "American Dream" certainly has merit since it is a product of her own experiences, but it cannot be applied to all of the groups which comprise this country, and definitely not to Third World Americans, (Blacks, Latinos, Native Americans and Asian Americans) who, because of our high visibility, have not been able to be assimilated into the majority power structure as easily as the white immigrants, and have become easy victims of racism and discrimination.

Our experiences here are also different in terms of our origins. This is supposedly a nation of immigrants; however, with the exception of the Asian American, Third World Americans did not voluntarily migrate to this country as did the white ethnic groups. It is no historical secret how the Native American and Black became U.S. citizens, (the former had his land stolen and the latter was stolen from his land) but there seems to be some confusion concerning how the Chicano got here. Mrs. Becker's emphatic question, "My God, why do these people live in the U.S. in the first place!" attests to her need for information.

If our history textbooks were not generally so biased, we could clearly see that Chicano "roots" lie right here along with those of the Native American, since what we now know as the United States southwest, was once the Mexican north, inhabited by Mexican citizens who didn't just disappear after their defeat in the Mexican War with the U.S. In fact, under the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, signed by Mexican and U.S. representatives in 1848, those Mexicans who were captured behind the newly established boundary lines were offered full U.S. citizenship and guaranteed the rights to their culture, language, religion, property and other civil rights.

Unfortunately, as was the case with the U.S. treaties with Native American tribes, the terms of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo have also been sorely unfulfilled by the U.S. government. Consequently, in their demands for a bilingual/bicultural education and even "special teachers and special foods in the cafeteria" for their children. Chicano parents are not seeking anything which is not already rightfully theirs. Furthermore, contrary to Becker's belief that "surely you will not experience this being done in any other country," bilingual and even multi-lingual educational programs have been operating in numerous countries for years — Mexico being one of them!

As for the Spanish/English ballots, I can think of no reason other than bigotry or a misplaced sense of self-importance for any person being "insulted" by their use. Bilingual ballots serve a very necessary purpose and are printed according to a regional ethnic makeup. Thus, if there is a large concentration of Spanish-speaking, but not of German-Italian-French, etc.-speaking people in a particular area, there is no need to include those other non-English languages on the ballot, as Mrs. Becker suggests. Of course, not all Chicanos or other Latinos will need or choose to vote in Spanish, but those who do, should have that right.

It may be true, Mrs. Becker, that "when in Rome, you should do as the Romans do," but this is not Rome, nor is this a homogeneous "melting pot." The United States is supposedly a nation which prides itself on the diversity of its racial and cultural groups. To demand, then, that these diverse groups relinquish their uniqueness and conform to a single cultural standard, is presumptuous, to say the least.

Let's educate the educators

Oh, that was funny! But it sure shows you the kind of people who have moved into certain echelons of state government. The California State Board of Education conducted a survey of seventh graders — then berated the youngsters for not knowing better.

But the youngsters proved smarter than the educators who were asking the questions. California State Board of Education sample-surveyed 12,656 seventh graders. One of the multiple-choice questions on the survey was:

"Is the United States a representative democracy, a parliamentary democracy, a direct democracy or a dictatorship?" Now the board published, with a proclamation of chagrin, the results of the survey.

The state educators say they are distressed to learn that "only 43 percent answered correctly that our country is a representative democracy."

Twenty-eight percent has said a "parliamentary democracy." Sixteen percent had said a "direct democracy," and nine percent had said a "dictatorship."

But California State Schools Superintendent Wilson Riles expressed official embarrassment that only 43 per cent had "answered correctly" that "ours is a representative democracy."

Superintendent Riles and his board will be further distressed to learn that the 43 percent were wrong — and the California State Board of Education is wrong.

Ours is not a "representative democracy"; never was. Ours is a "representative republic." You'll not find the word "democracy" in any of our nation's cornerstone documents; not once. Nor is it included in any of our several states' constitutions.

What's happened is that the California State Board of Education allowed its survey to be prepared by some people who grew up believing anything F.D.R. said.

And it was he, with the willing compliance of his partisan compatriots, who adopted the designation "democracy" hoping that it would thereafter be equated with the "Democratic" party.

It was a political embarrassment to F.D.R. to be reminded that our nation is a "republic." This tended to endow the Republican Party with a prior claim which F.D.R. envied.

There are several versions of how he set about to redesignate our country. One version credits Jim Farley with suggesting it but, whoever had the idea first, it was President Roosevelt who carefully included the word "democracy" in most every public utterance.

Webster never did go along withe the fraudulent definition. The dictionary continues to identify "democracy" as what it truly is: "majority rule."

Majority rule, of course, is the same as mob rule. Ours is a "social democracy" perhaps. But politically, our carefully designed tripartite government is a "republic." Another significant inheritance which is being dissipated by disuse:

With the specific exception of the Constitution (which purposely confined itself to civil law) each of our nation's cornerstone documents called upon the guidance and blessing of Almighty God.

If, in the name of separating "Church and State," we also divorce "God and Country" we pervert our founders' most noble purpose.

Think on these things

You are a very special person, but you have to know it in a most unusual way. You must know that you didn't come to this place, at this time, to be just anybody — you came to be yourself — unique and single, the result of many things blended together. Many experiences, many feelings, and confrontations without number have carved you out of time and circumstance.

The past no longer matters, except that it has formed the present. You have the potential of so much that has never been used — fine, rare, qualities that no other person in the world possesses. If you can put down all the weights you believe are tied to you forever, there is a wide-open future where the sky is the limit. Nothing can stop you from being the good, honest, forward-looking person you were intended to be.

Thoughts

And he said to them, "The sabbath was made for man, not man for the sabbath; so the Son of man is lord even of the sabbath." — Mark 2:27,28.

"The longer I live the more highly do I estimate the Christian sabbath, and the more grateful do I feel to those who impress its importance on the community." — Daniel Webster, American orator.

With the loyal thou dost show thyself loyal; with the blameless man thou dost show theyself blameless; with the pure thou does show thyself pure; and with the crooked thou does show thyself perverse. — Psalm 18:25,26.

"There is one element that is worth its weight in gold and that is loyalty. It will cover a multitude of weaknesses." — Philip Armour, American industrialist.

Senate leadership struggle

NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter, looking ahead to the possibility that he may become president in January, has expressed an intense interest in the Senate leadership struggle.

He has questioned a number of senators about the outcome, which is expected to narrow down a choice between Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D.-Minn., and Sen Robert Byrd, D.-W.Va.

Carter's private questions indicate concern that Humphrey, as a national leader with his own following, might use the leadership post to push his own policies.

The Democratic presidential candidate seems less concerned about Byrd who is a political mechanic more interested in running the Senate than in policymaking.

Carter satisfied himself after a 20-minute visit with Byrd that they could work together, our sources say. But at this writing, Carter hadn't spoken to Humphrey about the leadership race except for a brief reference to it on the telephone.

When the late Lyndon Johnson ran the Senate, he dominated its backrooms, wheeling and dealing, suffocating his supporters in his embrace, trampling down his opponents with the finesse of one of his prize bulls. As the Senate Democratic leader, he became almost as powerful as the President.

His successor, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D.-Mont., is as different from Johnson as ginger ale is from a martini. Mansfield relies on friendly persuasion to work his will. He never pressures, never pushes.

Humphrey, if he should now replace Mansfield, would be a more aggressive Senate leader. For that matter, Byrd has also shown an independent streak.

Of the 60 Democrats now in the Senate, Byrd told Carter that 33 had promised to vote for him. Byrd added that he expected to line up another half dozen by January. However, Humphrey has disputed Byrd's arithmetic, claiming that most senators are still uncommitted.

Meanwhile, another contender for the Senate leadership, Sen. Ed Muskie, D.-Me., offered privately to withdraw from the race in Humphrey's favor. Then Humphrey approached Sen. Ernest Hollings, D.-S.C., another contender, about withdrawing. Humphrey mentioned that Muskie had offered to pull out.

This got back to Muskie, who felt Humphrey had violated his confidence. Our sources say Muskie's nose was out of joint. We checked with Humphrey, who acknowledged that Muskie's nose "was bent slightly" over the incident. We couldn't reach Muskie for his comment.

CARTER AND KISSINGER: If the presidential election came down to a choice between Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger would pick the peanut farmer.

Sources close to Kissinger say he would stay out of the campaign if Reagan were nominated and would not speak out against the Republican candidate. Those who have heard Kissinger discuss the candidates privately, however, say he is the least enthusiastic about Reagan.

On the campaign trail, Carter has denounced Kissinger's secretive style and his "one-man policy of international adventure," calling him the "Lone Ranger." But Carter's foreign policy pronouncements don't really differ much from what Kissinger has been saying.

Carter appears to be more friendly toward the underdeveloped nations and more interested in Latin American affairs. But on most other basic issues, Carter and Kissinger seem to share similar opinions.

In speeches around the country and in leaks to selected newsmen, meanwhile, Kissinger has been hammering home his foreign policy views. "He's trying to engrave on stone everything he has ever done," one State Department source confided. "No matter who the next president is, Kissinger wants him locked on the present course."

The Secretary of State began making regular monthly foreign policy speeches across the country in 1974. We could find no evidence that he has stepped up the schedule in recent months.

Carter's foreign policy stands have been produced, under his direction, by an elite group of advisers drawn from an Eastern establishment of lawyers and academics.

The 30-man task force is now writing some 40 "position papers" on every issue from African policy to the world food crisis. Its members include such foreign policy stalwarts as former Deputy Defense Secretary Cyrus Vance, former State Undersecretary George Ball, former Deputy Assistant State Secretary Richard Gardner and Columbia University professor Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The professor heads the team. In the past, he has been more militant than the advisers under him who, for the most part, are noted for their moderate views.

Kissinger and Brzezinski, both foreign-born, both renowned in the academic world, have been rivals. But except for personalities, Kissinger and Carter appear to be of a like mind.

This was admitted by one of Carter's top advisers. "There are some differences in style and emphasis," he told us, "but they do share a number of common views."

Footnote: Kissinger has told friends that if he were to guess, he would expect Carter to choose Vance as his Secretary of State. But the Democrat who is best qualified, Kissinger said, is ex-Sen. William Fulbright D.-Ark.

CIA FOOTNOTE: A group of conservative leaders, led by Rep. Philip Crane, R.-Ill., were entertained and briefed on the wonders of the Thieu regime during a visit to Saigon in 1974. Now it turns out that their sponsors were secretly funded by the Central Intelligence Agency.

The trip was partially financed by the Vietnamese Council on Foreign Relations. The American guests came back parroting the council's line about the glories of South Vietnam. They also denied the existence of the vicious "tiger cages" where Thieu's prisoners were kept.

No mention was made that the council got $170,000 in 1974-75 from the CIA. Not even all the directors and patrons of the council knew about the secret CIA support.

Brass planter pole received

More than two months ago I ordered a brass planter pole and sent a check for $16.20 to Village Square in Emerson, N.J.

To date, I have received nothing, not even the courtesy of a reply to a letter of inquiry sent a month after the order was placed and a certified letter sent later on.

As a rule I shop locally whenever possible but in this instance I couldn't find a nice pole in brass so took my chances on a mail order, much to my distress.

The planter pole was to be a gift for my daughter-in-law. I would appreciate any help you could give me. — Mrs. J. O., Chino.

You hadn't enclosed a copy of your canceled check. At our request you sent it promptly. We wrote to Village Square, enclosing your letter and canceled check. You received your long awaited planter pole, equally promptly.

I had my house mortgaged with the Lincoln Savings and Loan Association in Los Angeles from 1966 through February 1975.

Lincoln transferred the account to the Majestic Savings and Loan Association in Denver.

Majestic increased my house payment from $129 to $148 effective in March 1975. It was explained that I had to pay another escrow on this transaction. Also, no life insurance is included.

When I had my mortgage with Lincoln Savings and Loan the $129 included hazard insurance and life insurance in case of death.

Could you help me to clarify this transaction? — E. A., Montclair.

Clarence M. Hughes, assistant vice president of Majestic, replied to your questions and ours with a different set of facts.

He said that Majestic solicited your business as a convenience, not a requirement, and that if you wish to continue coverage with your former insurance company, you must make your payment directly to that company.

In checking the history of your mortgage with both Lincoln and Majestic, he said, Majestic couldn't find any monthly payment to your account for $129 in two years."

"Perhaps Mr.A- made this payment some time in the past," he stated, "but at the time the loan was transferred in January 1975, his monthly payments were $144.35."

As to your reference regarding escrow, he said Majestic is required by the deed of trust on property to escrow one-twelfth of the taxes, insurance and FHA insurance per month and therefore analyzes each account every year to consider any increases or decreases in these escrowed items. Your account was analyzed in 1975 and 1976.

You were notified at the time the loan was transferred, he said, that Majestic is not equipped to disburse life insurance premiums to the various number of life insurance companies across the country.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be aware of your priorities. Look out for the family and those under your wing at work. You'll find more luck and appreciation in these quarters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Some pesky stumbling blocks can be thrown in your path today. They could deter you unless you keep a positive attitude and overcome them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Prospects for enhancing your well-being are excellent today, but only if you keep Johnny-come-latelys out of the action and your sympathy.

CANCER — (June 21-July 22) A rather unusual day is in store. Goals you thought to be important won't be. Others you thought were insignificant will be of real value.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Without being sneaky, keep your motives to yourself today. People seeking your confidence actually want to feather their own nests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Keep faith with one you're closely associated with. He has your best interest at heart. Another may try to lead you to believe otherwise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though conditions around you may be in a turmoil today, your innate sense of fair play will keep things on an even keel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The intestinal fortitude you display in standing up for co-workers will be remembered if you're ever in the same boat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Taking a flyer will appeal to you today, but don't expect all your long shots to pay off. However, a wisely-calculated risk might.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Though others try to pooh-pooh your innovative ideas, stick to your guns. Are they jealous because they didn't think of them first?

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This day should be a profitable one, but you must keep a close accounting. You could bargain overzealously.

Your Birthday, July 17, 1976

The lofty goals you set for yourself are attainable this coming year. Your only problem could be impatience at moving more slowly than you desire.

Ann Landers

Just have to change scenery

Dear Ann Landers: A few months ago I moved to Kalamazoo, Mich., from Grand Rapids. Although the cities are not far apart, it's like a different world.

I have always been involved with church and club work. In Grand Rapids, I was active in many groups and the women were lovely. I've met some fine women here in Kalamazoo, but they are older and seem to be preoccupied with their illnesses and operations. I attended a lunch meeting this afternoon and the conversation was a rehash of everyone's surgery. One woman told about her ovarian cyst, "the size of a lemon." Another woman described her uterine tumor as "big as a grapefruit." A third lady, not to be outdone, said her fibroid was the largest the doctor had ever seen — "as big as a watermelon."

Such topics are boring and unappetizing. I've tried without success to turn the conversations to more uplifting subjects. What do you suggest? — New In Town

Dear New: I've been to Kalamazoo and I can tell you there are many women there who can talk about something besides their operations.

If you are fed up with "organ recitals" (and who can blame you), find new friends. There are all kinds of women everywhere. People, like water, seek their own level.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the lady who asked if her unemployed husband has the right to ask for sex after 11 at night when she must be at work at 8 in the morning.

It seems to me the lady's problem isn't that her husband wants sex after 11 p.m., but that he is unemployed! How would she feel about his sex drive if he had a job? Would she still be too tired?

If so, she has a third problem — she doesn't want sex ANY time, under ANY conditions. When does she think other working couples make love?

If Mrs. Too Tired really objects to the time of night, she could solve the problem very easily by suggesting that they get cozy the minute she walks in the door after work — or the first thing in the morning. I'll bet he'd be delighted no matter what the hour. — No Timekeeper

Dear N.T.: "Getting cozy" the minute Mrs. Working Wife walks in the door is fine, provided (1) they have no kids, (2) someone has at least started the supper.

Morning makes better sense, assuming, of course, that she is a canary and he is a rooster.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman with a seven-year-old daughter. When she visits her father they sleep in the same bed. I don't like to make waves unless I am sure of my ground, because my ex has a very short temper. When he blows his top, he's like a crazy man.

Do you think this arrangement might be harmful to the child? I won't say anything till I hear from you. What do you say? — Midwestern Mama

Dear Mama: I've said it dozens of times, but I'll say it again. Children should not be permitted to sleep with their parents.

If your ex has an explosive temper, ask your pediatrician to write him a note stating the facts. If the sleeping together continues, see your lawyer about revising your husband's visiting privileges.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Joe Firman

Who does what for whom?

Where do bankers bank? Where do bartenders drink? Where does the doctor turn when he feels ill? What does the lawyer do when his wife sues him for divorce?

It has always puzzled me about these members of our society who perform essential services to society — who performs the essential service for them? I mean, bankers, bartenders and barristers are human beings just like us. If you prick them, do they not bleed? If you tickle them, do they not laugh? If you poison them, do they not die? Who fixes the dentists's teeth? Who buries the mortician?

The popular image of a banker is a chubby chap sitting astride a mound of first mortgages and dabbling his fingers in small heaps of silver dollars piled about his desk. This image is inaccurate. Bankers are not all chubby.

What does the vice president of a bank do when he gets his monthly pay check? Does he tiptoe across the marble hall, press that secret buzzer, and dip into the casher's drawer, or does he have to stand in those long lines like the rest of us, waiting for that open teller's window? "Do you have an account with us?" says the shiney-faced dollybird at the counter. Then she goes to check the ledgers to be sure the bank has enough balance to cover the check.

What happens when the bank v-p overdraws his account? Do they bounce his checks, or do they call him aside and say "Er — Mr. Edwards. About this check for $285. You—uh—you only have $31 in your checking account. Would you like to, um, take out a small loan with us?"

Suppose he's in charge of auto loans and needs a loan to buy an automobile? What if he heads the escrow department and wants a new house? What if he is in charge of negotiable securities and has a home in Buenos Aires?

With bartenders it's a simpler matter. Like the bear in the woods, they drink wherever they want to. In the close fraternity of the mixologists, a brother is welcomed and well-treated at any lodge he happens upon.

In the medical profession it must be more complicated. Can a doctor listen to his own lungs with a stethoscope? Can he take his own blood pressure? Can he look in a mirror, depress his tongue with a tongue-depresser and say to himself, "Say 'Ah'?" Will he then scribble some cabalistic emblems on a prescription blank and say to himself, "Take eight of these three times a day, or three of them eight times a day, whichever comes first, and if I'm not better, call me in the morning."

The next day, seriously ill, he calls his office. The cheery voice of the recorded answering service greets him. "Good morning! Dr. Mal Practice's office. When you hear the bleep, give your symptoms. You have five seconds. Bleep. Sorry about that. Take two aspirin and call again tomorrow if you're still alive."

Where does the shoemaker buy his shoes? Who delivers mail to the home of the mailman? What does a policeman do when he's in an auto accident? Who does the plumber call when his toilet backs up on Sunday? (Toilets only back up on Sundays.)

Well, I for one salute these servants of society and applaud the services they are supplying to urban America. I just hope they are getting better satisfaction than the rest of the country.

Dr. Lamb

Avoid diet fad-frauds

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know something about the 4-in-1 vitamin, containing lecithin, kelp, vitamin B-6 and cider vinegar. Does this in anyway help in dieting? If so, how and how much should you take? I read that you should take two tablets after every meal. That's six a day or 42 tablets a week. Isn't that a lot to take?

DEAR READER — I wish people had as much interest in learning about a sensible diet that would give them a balanced diet and reverse or prevent obesity as they do in every new diet fraud — ooops fad — that comes along.

Lecithin contains choline which is important to your nutrition. You can get plenty of it from lean meat which should be part of your sensible diet. Lecithin that you take as tablets or in food serves no other useful purpose. The choline in a well balanced diet is used by your liver to manufacture your own lecithin.

You will get all the vitamin B-6 you need in a well balanced diet. Taking an excess amount will not cause your body to miraculously start shedding pounds of energy (fat is stored energy).

Kelp is a seaweed that contains iodine, which you can also get from iodized salt. It also provides some bulk in its natural state when used as a major component of the diet as it is in Japan. The additional iodine will not help. The excess will be eliminated. Those who are sensitive to iodine may develop an iodine reaction. Those who have small thyroid glands, because of surgical removal or because part of the thyroid has been destroyed by an infection, may have further damage to the thyroid and develop an advanced state of a low or absent thyroid function called Myxedema.

People lose weight because the body uses more calories than they consume. It is that simple. Your body uses energy to maintain itself, heat itslef and cool itself as well as in many complex chemical reactions. It also uses energy for physical activity at work or play. When this total exceeds the number of calories you are taking in you will lose weight. Sickness will cause you to lose fat because the illness causes the body to use far more calories. So the only benefit you get out of that diet you are talking about is an associated decrease in calorie intake that goes with the pills.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, to give you the basis for building your own balanced weight control diet. The trick is losing fat and staying slender is to learn how to eat properly. That is what a reducing diet should teach you. With that knowledge you can then stay on the kind of program that fits your life style and keeps you healthy as well as slim and beautiful.

People on crash diets end up failing, or slipping back to the old patterns that caused the obesity in the first place.

I'd like to emphasize again that crash diets may cause you to lose muscle mass. After the diet is over you will have to eat less every day than you should because you have lost vital muscle mass.

Mae West says she's unchanged

My dear, would you accept $25,000 to pose nude for a magazine centerfold? Nevermind, too personal. Merely ask preliminary to the report that Mae West,84, is said to have turned down such an offer from a publication called "Hustler." Claiming she hasn't changed since 1931, she offered instead a nude portrait of herself painted then.

West's three-heart bid was correct because he trusted both his partner and his opponents. He trusted that his partner wouldn't suddenly decide to go on and bid four hearts. This wasn't too much trust. If East had any interest in playing four hearts, he would have bid three hearts over North's two spades.

As for trust in his opponents, West knew that they had stopped at two spades and neither one was going to decide to go to game after that first decision.

What other chance did West take? He might get doubled but who was going to double? He, West, had good trumps and his partner had bid the suit first.

What could West gain? He could get his opponents to three spades and maybe beat that contract one trick.

South really should have passed and watched three hearts get set, but he did bid three spades. He also might have made three spades, but he managed to lose one spade, two hearts, a club and a diamond so West's three-heart bid really paid off.

Body's energy may power pacemaker

By John Hammarley
Associated Press Writer

Conventional cardiac pacemakers, which depend on batteries for their energy, someday may be replaced by a permanent model, powered by the body's own energy.

Scientists at the University of Missouri-Columbia and Massachusetts General Hospital say the new system, if perfected, would eliminate the need for repeated and often costly surgery to replace the standard artificial batteries.

The new device is expected to cost no more than a conventional pacemaker, about $1,500, and would weigh about half as much.

Allen Hahn, a biomedical engineer at Missouri, says although the model probably won't be ready for human experimentation for another five years, animal tests have proven successful.

"I would say probably another set of long-term animal experiments is needed before human transplantation can be considered," Hahn said in a recent interview.

About 300,000 persons in the world are being kept alive by artificial pacemakers attached to the walls of their hearts, statistics show. The vast majority of those using pacemakers require additional surgery to replace the worn out batteries.

The new device, called a hybrid biogalvanic cell, would eliminate the need for the second and sometimes third operation for battery replacement, Hahn said.

The principle behind the new pacemaker turns the body into a human battery. Two electrodes, one zinc and the other platinum, create a chemical reaction within the body.

The platinum reacts with the body's natural chemicals, which in turn causes oxygen to move from one electrode to the other. That movement creates electrical current.

Everyone has a natural pacemaker, an area of tissue in the upper right portion of the heart. When it fails to send impulses at consistent intervals and at sufficiently powerful levels, an artificial pacemaker is needed.

The current created by the chemical reaction in the new device imitates nature's pacemaker and sends new, regular impulses to the heart through tiny wires.

New developments in longerlasting batteries and the advent of nuclear pacemakers have taken some of the edge off the biogalvanic cell, Hahn said. However, the nuclear-driven pacemakers have the drawback of being expensive; they can cost up to $20,000.

Hahn believes the cost of his device and its weight, two ounces compared to the four of the conventional pacemaker, will help its acceptance.

"Two or four ounces isn't all that much, but when you're talking about a device hanging on the wall of your heart, everything counts," Hahn said.

New treatments for victims of psoriasis

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — New treatments hold hope of relief for six million Americans suffering the itchy and scaly psoriasis, a leading researcher says.

The treatments can bring relief for even the most seriously afflicted, said Dr. Eugene M. Farber, an psoriasis authority and head of the Second International Symposium on Psoriasis held this week at Stanford University.

But the relief is temporary and the new innovations in treatment must be continued — they are not cures, he said.

Thousands of psoriasis sufferers have the disease so extensively they must be hospitalized as the thick plates of dry skin spread over up to 90 per cent of their bodies, Farber said.

Psoriasis most commonly begins between the ages of 15 and 25, although it can begin at any time. The first signs are itching or scaling at elbows or scalp, but it can rapidly spread and become disfiguring, Farber said.

Most promising is the PUVA treatment, which combines long-wave ultraviolet light and a drug called 8-methoxypsoralen, a medication used by the ancient Egyptians, he said.

"Studies have shown that by using the treatment twice a week for 10 minutes for 15 to 20 treatments, 90 per cent of the patients clear up without the use of ointments," Farber said.

"Maintenance treatments are needed once a week or once every two weeks. About half the patients studied were controlled with just the minimum."

Another promising treatment, Farber said, involves swimming in Israel's Dead Sea and sunbathing for long periods. "The water is 38 per cent salt, and at 300 meters below sea level there is a lot of long-wave ultraviolet light while most of the burning rays are filtered out," Farber said.

"After three or four weeks the patients are remarkably improved, although about half relapse in three to four months. But for some European governments who are paying the cost of the patient's stay, (sending the patient to Israel) it is cheaper than hospitalizing the individual."

Construction era over

State highway plans stress maintenance

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $5.6 billion, six-year highway program placing more emphasis on maintenance, safety and congestion-cutting has been proposed by the state transportation department director.

The plan unveiled Wednesday by department director Adriana Gianturco marked another step by the state away from the era of massive highway construction of the 1950s and '60s.

A department spokesman said the proposal calls for construction of only about 100 miles of new roadway by the state during the fiscal years between 1977 and 1983, most of it in one Southern California project.

That compares with 700 miles built between 1971 and the current fiscal year.

Department officials planned to present the plan today to the State Highway Commission, which must approve the proposal before it can take effect.

Mrs. Gianturco called the program "realistic and workable" and said it followed four priorities she had established for an era of limited highway funds and changing transportation needs.

Those priorities call for maintaining existing roadways, developing projects designed to limit congestion and closing gaps in the system first and then building new roadways.

Department spokesman Jeff Rupp said the dollar total in the plan is about equal to what was spent during similar periods in the heyday of highway building.

But when an inflation is considered, "it's a smaller program," he added. "It buys much less."

There is "very little" new highway construction, he said. "The longest stretch I can think of is Interstate 15 in Southern California, which is 77 miles. The rest of it is small stuff."

The bulk of the $5.6 billion — 57 per cent — would go for maintenance, rehabilitation and new construction under the plan.

Sixteen per cent will be used to "make the system more safe and efficient," department officials said. And another 16 per cent will go to local governments for regional construction projects.

The remainder is earmarked for mass transit and administrative costs.

Major new projects in the proposal include:

— Construction of I-15 between Corona and Escondido.

— Closing the gaps on two other Southern California freeways, the Artesia and Simi.

— Converting 13 miles of two-lane road in Humboldt and Mendocino counties to expressway and freeway.

Rupp said that another major project, the completion of Interstate 5 between Sacramento and Stockton, has already been budgeted by the department.

Rupp said the department is looking at several possible ways that it feels congestion and air pollution can be cut on urban highways by encouraging motorists to use buses or car pools.

The first is construction of additional freeway bus lanes like the one now in use on the San Bernardino Freeway in Los Angeles. The second is the controversial diamond lanes used on the Santa Monica Freeway.

Third is the type of diamond lane program planned for Los Angeles' San Diego Freeway and the fourth is a freeway on-ramp stop light system that would give preferential treatment for car pools.

Critics contend that the Santa Monica diamond lane program, which limits traffic on the freeway's left lanes to buses and car pools during rush hours, has increased congestion.

The San Diego Freeway diamond lane will be a new lane carved out of the freeway center section.

Rupp said the department is studying the systems now "Assuming that all or some of them turn out to be successful, there are plans to expand that," he said.

"I can't tell you what we'll do right now because we don't know what the results of the tests will be."

Other new major new highway programs include in the plan are:

— Closure of a gap on Route 4 just west of Route 680 in Concord.

— Construction of some projects to complete the routes 680-280-101 interchange in San Jose.

— Work on gaps in Route 580 near Hayward and the Grove-Shafter Freeway in Oakland.

— Work on the Century Freeway in Los Angeles.

— Widening Interstate 5 in San Clemente.

— Approaches to the Napa River Bridge on Route 29.

— Ramps to 4th Street and the Embarcadero from Route 280 in San Francisco.

— The Delhi Freeway on Route 99.

— Twelfth Avenue Interchange on Route 198 in Hanford.

Black nation in U.S. urged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Blacks who outnumber whites in five southern states should establish an independent Republic of New Africa based on the principal of "majority rule," says the president of the "provisional government" of the proposed country.

Imari Abubakari Obadele 1, formerly known as Richard B. Henry, told newsmen on Wednesday that Southern states Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississipi and South Carolina — where blacks collectively outnumber whites — would make up the RNA.

The socialist nation would be set up by the "massive transfer of capital to blacks, the transfer of billions of dollars We want to uplift blacks. We do not want blacks on welfare," said Obadele.

The RNA is headquartered in Jackson, Miss. It was at the headquarters in August 1971 that FBI agents arrested Obadele and other RNA members after a gunfight which left one police lieutenant dead and other law enforcement officers injured.

Obadele is currently free on $25,000 bail pending appeal of his 12-year sentence in connection with the incident.

But even if his appeal is turned down by the U.S. Supreme Court, said Obadele, he would argue that the high court has no jurisdiction to convict him, since he is the head of a soon-to-be-sovereign nation.

The RNA chief said that blacks "have been brainwashed into thinking we're Americans."

He said he hopes to change that on Sept. 25, when the RNA will hold "municipal elections" in Mississippi to select a shadow government which will one day be the legal government in that area.

Mockingbird can sing constantly

WASHINGTON (AP)— A mockingbird can sing all day and all night if the mood strikes him, often to the dismay of those who must listen to his seemingly limitless repertoire, says the National Geographic Society.

According to one ornithologist, the bird — whose favorite season is spring — "borrows songs for no other purpose than to have something to sing. He weaves together and repeats song motifs of his own invention and others that he hears."

Mockingbirds can imitate other sounds too. A Dallas radio amateur traced odd messages to a mockingbird sending his own Morse code messages. A Washington mocker was known for his ability to sing along with the National Symphony Orchestra during outdoor concerts.

Brown to inspect Health Dept. thoroughly

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will personally inspect the troubled state Health Department and "go through every division and section and program," a top aide says.

One of the issues the Democratic governor will face is a recommendation by the Assembly Health Committee chairman to fire four Health Department officials.

Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, said Tuesday the officials should be fired for laxity in the investigation of a prepaid health plan, Omni-Rx Health Care, Inc., of Hawthorne. Keene called the investigation "a sham."

State Health and Welfare Secretary Mario Obledo made plans Tuesday for Brown's Health Department visit, his second since taking office. Obledo said it may take place next week after Brown returns from the Democratic Convention.

The department's problems cover not only prepaid health plans, but also Medi-Cal, nursing homes, state hospitals, and the question of whether the merger that created the huge department in Gov. Ronald Reagan's last years should be undone.

"He's going to learn all about it, question everybody," Obledo said. He said he'd told department staffers at a meeting Monday: "You'd better be prepared to answer his questions."

Keene, who headed a subcommittee investigating Omni-Rx, had harsher words for several Health Department officials, recommending the firing of:

—Robert Ledbetter, program compliance chief of the division of alternative health systems, who supervised the investigation of Omni-Rx's complex finances. His salary is $26,000.

—James Harrell, chief auditor of prepaid health plans, who ran the Omni-Rx financial audit and testified he talked with a company official about a job before leaving the audit team. He earns $18,000.

—Evilio Ruiz, contract manager in charge of overseeing Omni-Rx's operations for the department. He makes $15,000.

In addition, Keene recommended the transfer of Victor Boisseree, the state's top prepaid health official, "for possible laxity in conducting the Omni-Rx investigation," and reprimanding of four auditors.

Prepaid health plans are paid by the state for providing care for Medi-Cal patients at a fixed monthly fee.

Omni-Rx has been accused of making excessive profits, violating subcontracting rules and providing poor care.

Keene contended department officials voluntarily limited their investigation to the dealings of the nonprofit health plan, even though the allegations involved affiliated profit-making companies. He said Omni-Rx was allowed to defy the department for months.

He was hardest on Ledbetter, saying the veteran official had caved in to Omni-Rx demands for limits on the department's audit. He said Ledbetter should have taken the first steps toward cancelling the state's contract when the company blocked the audit.

"The investigation of Omni-Rx was a sham and he was largely responsible," Keene said.

But Ledbetter denied that he'd ordered a limited audit. He said he'd demanded full access to the books, and told company officials, "If they didn't provide this information, I was going to take them to court."

He said current law blocks the state from inquiring fully into prepaid health plans' finances as long as health care is adequate.

But Keene disagreed, saying a court probably would have forced Omni-Rx to open its books.

He also said Harrell had "compromised" himself in discussing a job with an Omni-Rx official, and the action reflected on Ledbetter. But Ledbetter said he took Harrell off the audit as soon as he learned of the conversation. Keene said Goodman's study of Omni-Rx's health care relied on "selfserving information" from the company itself. He said the study listed the company's overall care as adequate, despite defects in dentistry and other fields.

Apricot growers awarded $140,000

MERCED (AP) — A jury has awarded $140,000 to 18 San Joaquin Valley apricot growers who contended their fruit was damaged by a fungicide sprayed on their orchards.

The Merced County Superior Court jury ruled that the plaintiffs were entitled to 90 per cent of the actual damage they claimed was caused by Benlate, manufactured by Dupont Chemical Co.

The growers themselves were to blame for the remaining 10 per cent of the damage, the jury ruled after a five-week trial.

The jurors denied $1 million punitive damages that had been sought for each grower.

Deaths of 50 wild horses laid to stress, lack of water

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Stress and subsequent shock, brought on by unknown factors and involving lack of water for an extended period, killed the 50 wild horses found dead earlier this month at Dugway Proving Ground, government investigators say.

They said they did not know what caused the stress and why the horses did not drink water when there was adequate supply. Some human activity, record heat and drought or a combination of factors may have put the animals under stress and caused them to stay away from their normal water sources, the investigators said.

They said their investigation is continuing.

Robert C. McCandless, a Washington, D.C., attorney who attended the news conference held by investigators recently, said that unless more complete answers are forthcoming the American Horse Protection Association, which he represents, will seek them in court.

"They've got to stop allowing this type of thing to happen, or they've got to explain it better than this," he told reporters.

The government said the first dead horses were discovered July 4 during a routine overflight of the Western Utah military proving ground, known in the past for the testing of chemical warfare agents.

But the investigators emphasized at the news conference that tests showed no chemical poisoning in the horses and that there has been no open air chemical testing at Dugway since 1969. And they insisted there was no chance other military activity such as artillery maneuvers by the Wyoming National Guard last month played a role.

WHEN JIM DANDY took the stand to witness for "God and Jesus Christ, his only son" in the same southern preacher style he often uses to exhort his audiences as the lead singer for BLACK OAK ARKANSAS, you knew Brother J.D. Tedder was in for a long day in Boone County Circuit Court.

It was Tedder who tried to stop a BOA benefit concert in Harrison, Arkansas, last year, blasting BOA as a "mongrel group of satanic origins that is promoting drugs, sex and revolution." Dandy and company promptly sued the preacher, charging slander.

At the trial, Dandy tesified that it hurt him when the group's children asked him "if God is mad at us" after Tedder said Black Oak was "acting like devils." The group denied they were for revolution, guardedly admitted they weren't against sex, and played their radio and TV spots warning their fans away from hard drugs.

The middle-aged jurors were apparently impressed — they voted unanimously to clear the band's name, sticking Rev. Tedder with the $100 court costs. Later, Dandy sermonized, "Lies should not be hidden beneath the cloth."

STAN KENTON STARTED IT. In an editorial in last fall's Creative World, a quarterly he sends to his fans, the jazz great called country western music a "national disgrace . . . ignorant, perverted . . . full of self-righteousness and self-pity."

CHARLIE DANIELS took issue in an interview with writer AL COOLEY, portions of which were published in "Texas Music." Daniels said the reason Kenton and earlier critic BUDDY RICH slammed country music is that, "It's human-being music and they're not human beings . . . National disgrace? He's (Kenton's) a — national disgrace!" In the interview, Daniels bet either Kenton or Rich $10,000 that they couldn't cut one "decent" country record.

Daniels hadn't done his homework on Kenton. In 1962, Kenton recorded an album with Tex Ritter; the same year he cut a single called 'Mama Sang a Song' that BILL ANDERSON also recorded. Kenton sent Daniels a copy of the Kenton-Ritter album with a bill for $10,000.

In June, Daniels wrote back, telling Kenton: "I've just been too busy playing music to argue about music." He didn't mention the $10,000.

"I'm not satisfied (with his response)," Kenton told us. "I think he got in a little over his head."

JAN AND DEAN REUNITED for two songs at a surf oldies show at North Hollywood's Palamino recently. It was the first time in 10 years — since JAN BERRY was nearly killed in a car crash in 1966 — that the pair had performed together. For a man who had to learn to walk and talk again, Berry seemed in good shape as he and DEAN TORRENCE sang "Little Old Lady from Pasadena" and "Dead Man's Curve."

Later, Dean said he'd like to record and perform again (he's headed Kittyhawk Graphics, an album design firm, the last eight years), but it won't be with Jan. "We're still extremely good friends and we could have gotten together on a full-time basis again, but I'm afraid it wouldn't be as good as it should be," he said, adding that he's guiding a San Jose-based surf band called PAPA DOO RUN RUN.

ROXY MUSIC'S BRYAN FERRY has announced his engagement to model JERRY HALL, who posed as a nymph from the deep on the "Siren" album cover. Ferry celebrated by releasing his version of WILBERT HARRISON'S "Let's Work Together," in England. He's changed the title to "Let's Stick Together," and has written in such lines as "The marriage vow is very sacred" and "let's stick together for the children's sake."

CHAPEL CHATTER: JACKIE DeSHANNON has married RANDY EDELMAN, and BEACH BOY DENNIS WILSON has said vows with KAREN LAMM (ex of Chicago's BOBBY LAMM). Dennis, by the way, is thinking of setting up his own record company. We hear he wants to do a solo album and produce others.

Soviet maestro booked

The distinguished Russian conductor Gennady Rozhdestvensky will direct the Los Angeles Philharmonic in concerts at the Hollywood Bowl at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday and July 24.

Rozhdestvensky is making his Hollywood Bowl debut after his highly successful appearances with the orchestra at the Los Angeles Music Center in February.

On Tuesday he will conduct an all-Prokofieff program consisting of the cantata "Alexander Nevsky," with the Los Angeles Master Chorale and mezzo-soprano Florence Quivar as soloist; Piano Concerto No. 1, with Viktoria Postnikova (Mrs. Rozhdestvensky) as soloist, and "Sycthian Suite."

The Thursday concert will be made up of Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3; Symphony No. 3 by Saint-Saens, and Bruch's Violin Concerto No. 1, with Sylvia Marcovici as soloist.

Pianist Van Cliburn will be soloist in Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2 in the Saturday night concert. The program will also include Glinka's overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" and "Scheherazade" by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Tickets to the concerts are on sale at the box office and at Mutual, Liberty and Wallichs Music City agencies.

D'land slates Dorsey band

The Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, conducted by Murray McEachern, opens a week-long engagement at Disneyland Sunday. Also performing at the Anaheim amusement center will be The Four Tops.

Evening showings of "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks and twice daily performances of the Bicentennial pageant "America on Parade" are also featured.

Appearing on stage in front of Fantasyland's "It's a Small World" attraction, The Four Tops will offer their soulful sounds during 9:15 and 11:15 p.m. shows Sunday through next Friday.

For guests preferring the big band era of music, the Dorsey orchestra will entertain Sunday through July 24 at Main Street's Plaza Gardens from 8:15 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Offering still another brand of music, the All-American College Singers and the All-American College Marching Band will perform at various locations. Composed of talented college students from all over the United States, these musical groups will entertain Disneyland guests throughout the summer.

Tinker Bell's sparkle touches off "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks each evening at 9 p.m.

Park hours are 8 a.m. to 1 a.m. daily throughout the week.

TV shows win awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prizes totaling $50,000 have been awarded by the Human Family Institute to the television shows "Farewell to Manzanar," "MASH" and "Family."

The Humanitas Prizes, funded by the Lilly Endowment of Indianapolis, are presented to TV programs "which most fully communicate those values which enrich the human person."

"Farewell to Manzanar," written by Jeanne Wkatsuki, James D. Houston and John Korty, showed the closeness of a Japanese family during wartime internment. "Family," by Jay Presson Allen, explored contemporary living. Larry Gelbart of "MASH" was chosen for his show's indictment of war.

Film signups

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie castings:

DYING MONARCH — Helen Ryan as Queen Alexandra watches at the bedside of King Edward VII (Timothy West) in the British-made television serial, "Edward VII," which has been bought by CBS-TV. It is one of the many British imports that threaten America's position as the world's leading exporter of television.

The British are coming!

A threat to U.S. TV

By Jeff Bradley

LONDON (AP) — The madcap antics of "Monty Python's Flying Circus" on American television screens is one of the more recent milestones in a spectacular British TV invasion.

America's Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) is even being called the "purely British service" because of the influx of British TV programs.

"Upstairs, Downstairs," "No Honestly," "The Goodies," "Coronation Street," and "The Pallisers" are just some of the shows making big profits for Britain on the small screen abroad.

"For once we're doing all right," said Denis Scuse, head of program sales at Yorkshire-Tyne Tees Television, one of the "big five" independent TV companies that together with the publicly-financed British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) are grossing an estimated 32 million pounds ($59 million) a year in sales around the world.

The British say they won't be satisfied until they surpass the $100 million in sales chalked up by U.S. TV makers annually.

The big British push began in 1969 when America's 250-station PBS network showed the BBC's gripping serial "The Forsyte Saga."

Since then Americans, Europeans, Australians, New Zealanders, Japanese, South Africans and Canadians have been entertained and informed by British programs such as Alastair Cooke's "America," Kenneth Clark's "Civilization," and Keith Mitchell in "The Six Wives of Henry VIII."

"The Forsyte Saga" has now been sold by the BBC to 90 countries, and BBC documentaries and dramas are a big hit with Russian viewers, one of the newest markets to open to the British TV invasion.

Sweden's most popular program is Granada TV's "Family at War," shown this year for the third time in that country.

The five big commercial TV companies in Britain are Yorkshire, Granada, Thames, London Weekend and Sir Lew Grade's ATV (Associated Television). ATV surpasses the others, including the BBC, in sales.

ATV hopes to earn 20 million pounds ($37 million) in overseas sales this year alone.

"Americans can beat us at making glossy action features such as 'Kojak,' 'Hawaii Five-O,' and 'Ironside,' but they can't match us at anything else," Sir Lew said in an interview.

The most adventurous inroads into the overseas market, however, come from Thames Television, which has announced that it is taking over WOR-TV in New York for a week in September.

The plan is to show New Yorkers what a typical night's viewing is like here, complete with commercials for British-made products available in the States. Viewers will see shows like "Sweeney," a tough police drama, and the recently introduced "Rock Follies," about a trio of girl singers, written by a 33-year-old expatriate New Yorker, Howard Schumann.

The BBC grossed over 5 million pounds ($9.25 million) in sales last year, selling about 9,000 hours of programs abroad. Shaun Sutton, a BBC executive, explained the success this way: "At the BBC we can experiment with drama, and we even fail occasionally. We also produce some dramas which we know won't appeal to big audience. The Americans could never do that. Everything is geared to profits."

As a means of getting profitable distribution rights to new series, U.S. film and TV companies have invested 1.5 million pounds ($2.5 million) in coproductions with the BBC. These include a 10-part serialization of Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina," and dramatizations of "Lorna Doone" and the Dickens novel "Nicholas Nickleby."

Granada TV has signed a coproduction deal with NBC for a series of plays under the banner "Salute to America," to be produced by Sir Laurence Olivier.

There's a final spin-off for British TV: shows not bought outright are being adapted. The Americans, for instance, bought rights to Britain's "Till Death Us Do Part" and turned it into the big hit "All in the Family." "Steptoe and Son" became "Sanford and Son," and most recently, the prison comedy series "Porridge" was screened in the states as "On the Rocks."

'The Robber Bridegroom'

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

If you think you would enjoy a noisy, fast-paced, hilarious musical, replete with country music and foot-stompin' square dances, in which a robber carries his brother's head around in a trunk and the blonde heroine strips to the buff and scampers around the stage for several minutes, don't miss "The Robber Bridegroom," which opened Thursday night at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center.

"The Robber Bridegroom" is a bawdy, boisterous comedy adapted from a novella of Eudora Welty, who in turn drew on Grimms' fairy tales and the history of the lower Mississippi during the early 1800's. The pungent book and lyrics are by Alfred Uhry, the hoe-down music and river ballads by Robert Waldman — now robust and rollicking, now bittersweet and introspective.

Rhonda Coullet is Rosamund, the nymphet enamored of the gentleman brigand, and she offers a persuasive portrayal of a loving daughter with only one thing on her mind, a wistful maid with the same thing on her mind and a frantically funny comedienne — with one thing on her mind. She is a pure delight. When the mysterious "forest bandit" takes her dress, petticoat, knickers and the rest of her clothes, she says plaintively, "Arent' you going to take anything else?" (He says, "Yeah — give me your gold hairpins.")

Barry Bostwick, twice nominated for Tony Awards, is the rough, romantic stud, a skilled actor who projects a virile character of limited aspirations — gold and the girl, in that order. Bostwick lacks the flavor of coarse humor that permeates the rest of the cast, but he does his Douglas Fairbanks thing with aplomb.

Also outstanding in the Hee-Haw cast are Stephen Vinovich as Rosamund's father and Barbara Lang as the Wicked Stepmother. They are comics of the first water, tight-roping the frail line between high comedy and caricature and never tripping. Miss Lang is especially notable for her malignant buffoonery — at one point she offers her wayward stepdaughter a shiny red apple.

Stealing most of the kudos for comedy is round-faced Trip Plymale as Goat, a simpleton. This young man is a superb comedian from pratfalls to witty subtlety, riotous and ingratiating.

Among the others who contribute richly to the pervading insanity are Lawrence Moss as Little Harp, a robber; bearded Ernie Sabella as Big Harp, the talkative head carried in a trunk; Susan Berger as Goat's mother; and Carolyn McCurry as a raven. (Don't ask me to explain it — go see the show.)

The production values of "The Robber Bridegroom" are excellent. The stage is all beams and timbers, kegs and barrels, plank floor and open frame attic, the tasteful work of Douglas Schmidt. Donald Saddler's choreography is vigorous and imaginative. (Who choreographed the constant movement and change of the furniture and stage props? A work of art.) Jeanne Button's costumes are inventive and spritely, and the lighting by David Segal is very effective.

The music, subtle or blasting as the occasion demands, is provided by the McVoutie River Volunteers, directed by Tony Trischka, a vital contribution to the performance.

"The Robber Bridegroom" is given smooth, fast-tempo direction by Gerald Freedman. The play is presented in association with John Houseman, Michael Kapon and Margot Harley, by arrangement with the Acting Company of New York City.

Folksinger set for Redlands

Guitarist Sam Hinton, internationally known folksinger and scientist, will present a program at the Redlands Bowl at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday. Admission is by free will donation.

Born in Oklahoma, Hinton grew up there and in Texas, singing folksongs with his sisters. He didn't start playing the guitar until college days, when he and his sisters formed a trio and eventually appeared on Major Bowes Amateur Hour.

Hinton has wide array of talents and interests, one of the earliest being natural history, specifically turtles, snakes and lizards, which he collected for museums while still in high school. This led to extracting and selling venom from water moccasins to pharmaceutical firms, and also to doing scientific illustration.

BIRD IN THE HAND — Bird trainer Barbara Firestone checks some of her performing cockatoos that are featured in "The Good Old Days Are Here" at Busch Gardens in Van Nuys. They appear at the new floating theater where they ride unicycles and merry-go-rounds and enact scenes from the turn-of-the-century. The amusement park is open from 10 a.m. to midnight daily through Labor Day.

FINGER PICKIN' GOOD — John Hartford will join Will Geer, Peter Yarrow, Larry Groce and 40 featured acts at the outdoor folk music festival, the KPFK American Folk Fair and Country Crafts Market at Fort MacArthur, San Pedro, Saturday and Sunday.

KPFK to stage folk festival

One of the summer's largest outdoor folk music festivals, KPFK's American Folk Fair and Country Crafts Market, will be held at Fort MacArthur, San Pedro, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and July 24 and 25.

Headlining the activities will be John ("Gentle on My Mind") Hartford; Peter Yarrow, formerly of Peter, Paul & Mary; Larry ("Junk Food Junkie") Groce and country favorite Rose Maddox. Will Geer (Grandpa Walton) and family will present "A Tribute to Woody Guthrie."

On the ocean view site near Marineland festival string band, ballad, bluegrass and country musicians will perform at a bustling crafts and entertainment fair, providing day-long activities for the whole family.

Traditional games, crafting demonstrations, square dancing, clowns, jugglers, mimes, puppeteers, magicians, comedians, Victorian bicycle and tight-rope walking lessons, surround a crafts village with 80 colorful displays. Food and drink for meals or snacks include Buffalo kebobs.

CLOUDY SUNSHINE — Joe Dolan, left, as Al Lewis, and Keith Mills as Willie Clark have a difference of opinion in the Gallery Theater production of "The Sunshine Boys." The Neil Simon comedy has its final performances at 8 o'clock tonight and Saturday. "My Fair Lady" opens at the theater, C Street and Lemon Avenue, Ontario, at 8 p.m. next Friday.

The production, which stars Brian Bedford and Dai Bradley, opened on June 20 for a limited six-week engagement through Aug. 1, and is now being extended an additional five weeks.

The performance schedule continues Tuesday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m., Sunday evenings at 7:30, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturdays at 2:30 p.m.

On-stage seats for students with proper identification are available at $6 on Friday and Saturday evenings and $5 for all other performances.

'He is finally a human being'

Buffalo Bill: First superstar

By Murray Olderman

NEW YORK, N.Y. (NEA) — A farcical putdown of Buffalo Bill is now playing at movie theaters. Its historical merit or even its cinematic quality is not for me to argue.

But the roles of two very talented artists, actor Paul Newman and director Robert Altman, in the creation of "Buffalo Bill and the Indians or Sitting Bull's History Lesson" is worth study, particularly since both went on record recently in a joint discussion of the project and their input to it.

William Frederick Cody, called Buffalo Bill, lived from 1846 to 1917, the period of the major settling of the West. He was in the words of the encyclopedia, "part authentic frontier hero and part the creation of myth-making publicists. Buffalo Bill Cody came to symbolize the American West for millions of people around the world."

And so it is startling to see this new iconoclastic portrait of the man — egocentric, drinker, lecher and part fraud.

"Well," said Newman, when asked to define the character of Buffalo Bill, "he's a combination of General Custer, Gable, Redford and me. In that order."

He grew a shade more serious.

"My interpretation is that he was symbolically the FIRST STAR. He was like one of those people in motion pictures who simply cannot live up to their

Newman is a very well preserved quinquagenarian, and on this occasion, when the film was presented in rough form for 136 junketing journalists, he had flown in from location at 3 o'clock in the morning and still looked marvellously fresh, his blue eyes clear.

He shrugged.

"Just go out and read any movie magazine. Read the quotes in them. They simply don't exist. The interviews that were supposed to be given and never were given. The conflicts, the joys. You read things about people that really aren't true.

"It's a humbling experience. There is no way that what those people see on celluloid has anything to do with me. That was the aspect I tried to bring to the film. They can say anything they want and he can make whatever statements he wants to make about what he is, but he is finally a human being and that's all he is."

Altman, the director who is queasy about this film because he thinks it'll be juxtaposed with his last ballyhooed effort, "Nashville," provided an overview:

"We were making comparisons to show business as it is today. That was the beginning of show business. Buffalo Bill had the producer, the publicist, the hanger-ons, the stars, the semi-star, the extras.

"We read 15 autobiographies that were totally contradictory. The point that interested me most about this project when we started digging into it, and we researched it very thoroughly, is that by the time a culture is willing to look at its past and try to find out the truths of its origin, the tracks have been so covered up it's impossible to find them. I don't think anybody can dig up the historical behavior of those people. You can only find out about the behavior that was written about them. And that is always false behavior."

The Altman version of Buffalo Bill is loosely historic.

There was no company encampment, which was the central locale for Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show in the film. President Grover Cleveland did not visit the show. But Sitting Bull, the Sioux chief who led the massacre of Lt. Col. George Custer and his troops at Little Bighorn, was brought in to hype up the show.

"Sitting Bull was always seeking an audience with the president," said Altman. "That was true."

"I don't take any joy in shooting holes into heroes," he said, "but I try to reflect my view of what I see. And that's the way Buffalo Bill looks to me.

"There was a point where Sitting Bull got arrested again after he went back to Standing Rock (the Indian agency in South Dakota). People went to Cody and asked him to try and save him, and Cody went. He just didn't make it. He got drunk in St. Louis or some place along the way, and Sitting Bull was shot."

That became the basis for a tormented soliloquy by Buffalo Bill toward the end of the movie, probably its heaviest moment. With a project that was budgeted at over $6 million, Altman was impelled to lay a broad pastiche of humor on the narrative.

"Film is a very precarious art entertainment," he explained, "because it's so expensive. I couldn't do Buffalo Bill with the humor out of it. It would bore me to death."

And so there was Buffalo Bill shooting wildly at the pet canary of his latest divainamorata (in real life he had a passion for Italian actresses).

"To me," said Newman, "the picture is like a canvas. And there are a lot of different colors in it. Some people may choose to linger on the blues. Some on the tans or reds. You may want to linger on the browns."

"I think our strongest audience for this film will be young people," said Altman.

"And the wrestling crowd," retorted Newman.

"It's my first PG," said the director.

"One of the worst things that can ever be said of a movie," noted the star, "is that you walk out and turn to whomever you went to the movie with and say, 'Was that baby sitter supposed to go home at 10:30 or was she supposed to go home at a quarter to 11?'

Even Buffalo Bill would agree.

The Andes

The Andes Mountains are the "backbone" of South America, running the whole length of the continent. In places they are only 100 miles wide, but increase at times to as much as 400 miles across.

FOLK ROCK is presented by "Scooter Canyon" at the Boiler Room in Claremont. Group plays Tuesdays thru Saturdays.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

Jim and Lisa Francke's Escrow Closing Party last Sunday evening at The Castle was a blast. The couple reports that business was great. I believe it, because both times I stopped in that evening the place was packed. There has been a growing awareness on my part that more and more people are turning on to The Castle, but never before in my months of restaurant-watching have I seen this Foothill Blvd. restaurant as crowded as it was last Sunday night.

Last Friday night, I decided on Espiau's for dinner and was pleased that the wait wasn't as long as on my last visit. They have remodeled in the meantime, adding two dining rooms and doing away completely with the coffee shop. Trading lounge for dining area, the new, tastefully appointed Fiesta Room is located where the lounge was, and a small, intimate bar, the Cantina, is located west of the new Sombrero Room (former coffee shop.) Whew! Just go see for yourselves. Now, with additional seating, more of us can enjoy Espiau's way with Mexican cooking.

More good news for the under age guys and girls. Ralph Hicks, owner of Pomona's Ponderosa Club, is devoting Friday as well as Wednesday evenings to disco dancing. No alcoholic beverages will be sold on these nights, so under 21s can enjoy dancing to a rock band, right here in Pomona . . . tonight! Also, for those of you looking for something a little different, Ponderosa showcases musicians' jam sessions after hours (2 to 8 am) every Friday and Saturday.

NEWS 'N NOTES

. . .The restaurant at Ontario Motor Speedway is re-opening. Formerly Victory Circle Restaurant, the place will be called Hall of Fame restaurant, with John Bryan as manager. For information on banquets, parties, etc., call John at 984-1221.

. . .Casa de Narod has received a commendation from the California State Legislature, no less! Assemblyman Bill McVittie introduced the resolution, complete with numerous "Whereas's" (and appropriate plaque, suitable for framing), letting it be known that Narod's is a good place to eat.

. . .Donna Broos is opening her new Krispy Kreme Donut shop in Diamond Bar this weekend. She's offering a dozen donuts for $1.00 today and Saturday during her Grand Opening. Donna's is the third Krispy Kreme shop in the family. Her mother and sister run other shops in Orange County. Her shop is located at 327 So. Diamond Bar, in the new Diamond Bar Village center just south of K-Mart.

. . .A dollar and ninety-eight cents isn't bad for all the pizza, chicken and salad you can eat for lunch, but $1.48 is better. That's the special price on Shakeys Bunch-of-lunch starting next week at the Pomona pizza parlor. See details in Shakeys ad in Sunday's Prog.

. . .I get cards and letters from people telling me where to go occasionally . . . out to eat, that is. I don't mind this at all; in fact I welcome all suggestions. But recently I received a card telling me to FIND a natural foods restaurant and/or a restaurant which caters to non-smokers. I know of no such places. Do you? If you do, write me or call.

Coaches parade for Lakers owner

First, the club announced that Bill Sharman had agreed to a multi year contract as an executive with no mention of coaching. The agreement was reached as Sharman's five-year pact as coach was within an hour of expiring.

Thursday it became known that Jerry Tarkanian had spent three hours at the Forum. There were also reports the Lakers were talking with Louisville coach Denny Crum.

The Lakers declined comment. Crum, former UCLA assistant under John Wooden, is "vacationing in California" according to his office at the University of Louisville.

In Las Vegas, Tarkanian confirmed that he had not only met with Lakers' owner Jack Kent Cooke, but had discussed the Laker coaching job.

"I have met with the Lakers, but there has been no contract offered and that is the status of the situation at this time," Tarkanian said.

The UNLV coach added that he had agreed with the Lakers to make no comment.

However, according to a reliable source, Tarkanian intimated he had been offered a three-year contract but wants a five-year pact. It also is rumored that Tarkanian would have to take a CUT in salary to take the Lakers job.

A telephone call to the Lakers publicity dept. brought this statement issued by JKC himself.

"I've met with a number of candidates in the past few weeks and I will continue to do so. Bill Sharman remains very near the top of the list of coaching candidates."

JKC has been busy

According to sources at the Forum, Cooke not only has talked with college coaches and Bill Sharman, but has talked to coaches "with pro experience, some of whose names would prove a great surprise."

Tarkanian recently signed a three-year contract with the Las Vegas school. However, the NCAA, which slapped a penalty on Tark's last school, Long Beach State, has also been investigating UNLV.

Tarkanian reportedly said it ruined his recruiting even though no charges have, as yet, been leveled.

Off their college records, both Tarkanian and Crum are well qualified. Crum's teams posted a 118-30 record the last five years. In that same span, Tarkanian's record is 195-33.

Jerry West's name also keeps popping up. West and Cooke reportedly are close to patching up their differences. West sued Cooke for allegedly breaking his contract after Jerry retired from playing.

The thinking is that if West comes back on the payroll for a big slice of Cooke's money, why not let him coach because Sharman is still in the wings if Jerry's lack of coaching experience proves too much of an obstacle.

Certainly Jerry would be a popular choice with the fans. How good a coach he would be would have to be determined. But the same might be said if Crum or Tarkanian got the job. Coaching in the pros is not the same as coaching in college.

A different slant

HERE 'N THERE — According to stories published in Seattle, the reason the Sonics' number two draft choice, Bayard Forrest, did not sign with the club was NOT because the club refused to meet his demands.

As the story goes, Sonics coach Bill Russell then telephoned Forrest and, after some discussion, offered the 6-10 center $310,000 on a three-year, no-cut contract.

However, when Forrest and his agent met with Seattle owner Sam Schulman (who headquarters in Los Angeles), Schulman wouldn't go along with it.

Forrest claims he even paid $300 airfare for himself and his agent out of his own pocket.

Day by day the feeling grows that O.J. Simpson will be in a Ram uniform this fall.

The Chicago Cubs, in for three games with the Dodgers (two remaining) have been playing such bad ball that owner P.K. Wrigley said they looked like a bunch of clowns.

When the San Diego Padres were in Chicago last week, the Cubbies even had a witch to help them out. The witch, 27-year-old Ruth Ruvzen, applied her "success potion" to the wrists and foreheads of the players.

Baker, Dodgers on upswing

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES—It had been a long time between home runs for Dusty Baker but the Dodgers' centerfielder hopes his long round tripper Thursday night in an indication of what is to come.

Baker, who connected for a home run in his first at-bat in a Dodger uniform on opening day in San Francisco, helped the Dodgers get off to a fast start after the annual All-Star Game break by hitting his second of the season in the sixth inning in a 5-2 win over the Chicago Cubs.

It had been a long 298 at-bats between home runs for Baker, who hit 19 last year for the Atlanta Braves.

"That's the longest I can ever remember going without a home run," Baker said. "I tell you it felt super. Well, at least I can say I hit one home run in each half of the season. No, that's a joke. Don't take that seriously."

Baker obviously feels he will add to his total.

"This home run was encouraging because it appears like I might follow my pattern," he said. "I've always been a better hitter during the second half of the season."

Thanks to Baker plus Doug Rau's five-hit pitching, the Dodgers cut another game off of Cincinnati's lead in the National League West in reducing the margin to five in what the Dodger publicity department calls "the Great Chase".

It came two innings after Baker crashed into the fence trying to catch Jerry Morales' two-run homer off of Rau for the Cubs' only runs.

"My shoulder and arm are sure sore but my head feels a lot better," Baker said in describing his feelings. "I thought I had it. I jumped a split second too soon. And I thought the wall was supposed to give. It didn't, but I sure did."

The Dodgers started in a roar Thursday by scoring four runs in the first inning off of Chicago starter Rick Reuchel, who is now 8-7 for the season.

Reuschel contributed to his own downfall by hitting the first two batters — Davey Lopes and Bill Buckner — with pitches. Reggie Smith singled home the first run with Ron Cey bringing Buckner home on an infield out. Steve Garvey and Baker drove in the final two in the frame with singles.

It was all Rau needed.

The Dodger lefthander (8-6) allowed only one walk and the five hits. Outside of Morales' homer, Rau's only real problem came in the sixth inning when Manny Trillo hit a two-out single and Morales doubled. But Rau got George Mitterwald on a fly to get out of that jam.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (9-8) will pitch tonight against Chicago's Steve Renko (3-4) in the first game of the weekend Helmet Weekend series. Undefeated Rick Rhoden (8-0) goes against Steve Stone (1-1) in Saturday's 5 p.m. contest. Philadelphia completes the weekend in an 1 p.m. game Sunday.

Smith, who had homered in each of the Dodgers' last three games in St. Louis prior to the All-Star break, has scored runs in seven straight games and is hitting .267 for the Dodgers since being traded from the Cardinals. Smith was named Player of the Week by the National League for July 6-11.

HALL OF FAMER

Peter De Paolo, 1925 Indy 500 winner, stands beside car San Bernardino's Bill Scott raced at Indy this year and will race in Cal 500 Sept. 5. De Paolo was one of guests honored Thursday evening as OMS dedicated its new Auto Racing Writers Drivers' Hall of Fame.

OMS brings back memories

A pair of baby shoes more than a half century old rest in a display case with trophies, driving gloves and other mementoes of the golden age of Americanmotor racing.

The display, which is found in the Auto Racing Hall of Fame dedicated Thursday night at Ontario Motor Speedway, brought back tender memories to one of the honored guests at opening ceremonies, Peter De Paolo, 78, of Laguna Hills, Calif.

The shoes belonged to De Paolo's son Tommy, and they played an important role in the success of the oldest living winner of the Indianapolis 500 and the first man (in 1925) ever to win the race at an average speed of 100 miles an hour.

"The first six races I drove after I left Uncle Ralph," De Paolo said, referring to his famed relative and fellow hall of famer, the late Ralph De Palma, "I crashed five times.

"I got to thinking that I ought to do something about this, and somebody suggested I hang one of Tommy's baby shoes on the left front spring as a good luck charm. The first time I raced I looked down and saw that shoe and said to.yself, 'I have to drive well for Tommy.'

"Well, I came in second, and a sportswriter I knew kidded me about it and said if I had both shoes in the car I might have won the race. The next race was the Raisin Day Classic at Fresno, and I hung both shoes, and I won the race."

That was De Paolo's first national championship victory.

"Right then and there I made a vow that ifI ever won at Indianapolis Tommy would never have to buy another pair of shoes again," De Paolo continued.

Tommy De Paolo, now 52, "still sends me the bill every time he buys a pair of shoes," the Indianapolis winner insisted.

De Paolo, now 78 and living in retirement at Laguna Hills, Calif., was the only one of 23 greats of the sport inducted into the Hall of Fame by the American Auto Racing Writers and Broadcasters Association to attend dedication ceremonies.

He was accompanied by his wife of 54 years, Sally.

Four other representing deceased hall of famers were also honored at dedication ceremonies. They were:

— Mrs. Marian de Palma, widow of the 1915 Indy winner and national champion in 1912 and 1915, whose record of leading during 613 laps in the Indianapolis 500 still stands.

— Mrs. Dorothy Mays, widow of two-time national champion Rex Mays (1940-41). — Ernie Olson, 84, of Sherman Oaks, Calif., riding mechanic for Jimmy Murphy, 1922 Indianapolis 500 winner and the first American to win a world championship grand prix, at Le Mans, France, in 1921.

— B. Reaves Dutton, 89, of Santa Susana, riding mechanic for three-time national driving champion Earl Cooper (1913, 1915, and 1917).

Others inducted into the Hall of Fame, which will be opened to the public free of charge on July 27 as a permanent attraction at the speedway were Tony Bettenhausen, Louis Chevrolet, Jimmy Clark, Mark Donohue, Juan Manuel Frangie, A. J. Foyt, Gurney, Ted Horn, Harroun, Louis Meyer, Tommy Milton, Barney Oldfield, Richard Petty, Eddie Rickenbacker, Mauri Rose, Wilbur Shaw, Jackie Stewart and Bill Vukovich Sr.

Olympic cloud clearing

MONTREAL (AP) — The clouds cleared from Montreal today and two facts stood out bright and clear. The Olympic Games will go on and the United States will compete in them.

The Americans abandoned their idea of possibly pulling out in sympathy with the Taiwanese. One of the first to hail the decision was C.M. Yang, coach of the Taiwan team.

"I would have felt terrible if the United States had pulled out, because it would be such a disappointment to all their athletes, and all because of us," Yang said.

The Taiwanese problem still was not finally solved. The International Olympic Committee (IOC) still had to persuade the Taiwanese to drop the name "Republic of China" in the opening parade, though the Canadian government has now backed down and said they can use their flag and anthem.

But the decision by the United States to go ahead and compete removed a fear that the Games might disintegrate.

Philip O. Krumm, of Kenosha, Wis., 69-year-old president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, who has been at the center of the Taiwan crisis all week, announced the decision to keep the team in the Games.

Krumm has been the peacemaker between the idealistic IOC, iron-willed Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the proud Taiwanese delegation. He backed the IOC to the hilt in its defense of the Olympic charter, but tried to persuade the Canadian government and the Taiwanese to give a little.

More than 40 Taiwanese have been held up in the United States, denied entry visas because they would not bow to the Canadian demand to drop their name, flag and anthem.

For two days Krumm thought his mission was heading for failure. Neither the government nor the Taiwanese would give an inch.

But Trudeau, after weeks of refusing to change his position, suddenly gave way Thursday and said the Taiwanese could use their flag and anthem.

Krumm had been holding a club over Trudeau, saying the U.S. team might pull out if the Taiwanese were not allowed to take their place in the Games.

It was a strong weapon. Nobody can picture an Olympic Games without the United States taking part. There were fears that if the Americans pulled out other countries would follow, and the Games, which Montreal has planned for six years at an estimated cost of $1.5 billion could fall apart.

Krumm and Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, were in complete harmony on one point. They thought of the athletes first.

"We feel the athletes, who have given so much time and dedication to preparing themselves for these games, deserved consideration," Krumm said. "We had that in mind in deciding not to withdraw."

Killanin has insisted all along that the 10,000 athletes expected to compete at Montreal are the first consideration. He said that was why the IOC stopped short of cancelling the games, or withdrawing its recognition, in the face of what he has bitterly denounced as political interference by Ottawa.

The IOC hoped the Taiwan affair would be solved Friday. First it had to vote to change its rules and allow the Taiwanese to march in the opening parade as "Taiwan" and not as the Republic of China. A two-thirds majority among the 69 IOC members present is needed.

Then the Taiwanese had to be persuaded to accept the idea. There was

More furor at Olympics

MONTREAL (AP) — An unidentified individual distributed crudely typed copies of a letter to the president of the International Olympic Committee late Thursday night which called for the exclusion of New Zealand from the Games and hinted at the withdrawal of certain African nations.

None of the signatures or initials on the letter could be deciphered. The copies bore no letterhead. The signatures and initials were scrawled beside the hand-written names of 13 countries.

The official press distribution center of the Olympic Games did not receive copies and the IOC headquarters did not answer their telephone. No African delegations were immediately available for comment.

Official tells of merger difficulties

NEW YORK (AP) — Although merger talks "are not going as well as we'd hoped," four American Basketball Association teams have placed $1 million each in escrow accounts as a first step towards admission to the National Basketball Association.

"The merger talks are not going as well as we'd hoped but as well as expected," said Indiana Pacers executive Bill Eason, but he added, "We have met the NBA requirement for the $1 million. That is, it is in the bank."

He said he hoped for a final agreement within a few days.

The deposits Thusday were strictly paper transactions for the New York Nets, Denver Nuggets, San Antonio Spurs and Pacers.

Originally, the money was to have been forwarded from the teams' banks to the NBA's account in a New York bank. But that was changed at the last minute.

"They (NBA attorneys) told us to put it into an account here," Eason said from Indianapolis.

A second payment of $2 million each is due Sept. 15.

There were unconfirmed reports that one of the ABA teams had experienced some problems in raising sufficient funds for the initial payment.

Finalizing of the merger agreement has been slowed because of problems with the settlement with owners of the ABA Kentucky and Utah teams which were disbanded, and the final settlement of the NBA Players Association suit, which still must be signed by both sides.

NBA Deputy Commissioner Simon Gourdine said, "No date has been set for the dispersal draft of former ABA players and we are still waiting for formal signing of the merger agreement and settlement of all court actions that have been blocking the merger."

He indicated that he did not expect the dispersal draft to be held any earlier than July 26.

Women's rowing event canceled

MONTREAL (AP) — The lack of entries has prompted Olympic officials to cancel the semi-finals in the women's rowing competition, scheduled for July 22.

An official of the Olympic organizing committee said Thursday only about half the number of countries expected to participate have sent women's rowing teams.

Chino girl wins 'batboy' contest

Nancy Wahl, a 13-year-old seventh grader at Magnolia Junior High in Chino, will meet her favorite Dodger players next Thursday night prior to the game against San Diego.

Officially, Nancy will be the honorary batboy but that isn't the terminology she prefers.

When asked if she would mind being called a batboy, she replied, "Yes, I mind. I would rather be called a batgirl."

Nancy is a big Dodger fan. She has already attended a few games thanks to her membership in the Dodger Pepsi Fan Club.

"I started to like the Dodgers three years ago when Steve Garvey got to play," she said in also identifying her favorite player.

Why Garvey?

"I play first base on my school team and I just like him," she said.

Nancy earned the right to be the batgirl by winning the essay contest on "If I were the Dodger manager, I would . . ."

In her essay, Nancy wrote, "I would try to do a good job, just as Walt Alston has done in the past years."

"I would keep statistics on all the other players in the National League," she wrote. "I would keep records on their strong points and weak points. I would be aware of all the players in the farm system and whether they are doing extremely well or extremely rotten. I would know all the ballparks, so the players would know what conditions they would be playing under. I would be responsible for the players' condition. With my staff's help, I would get the players to perform to their best ability."

NANCY WAHL

Nancy would also have the players' welfare at heart.

"The main thing would be to have a consistent, healthy team," she wrote. "I would be more concerned about the players' health and condition than a pennant."

The Chino girl will receive a Dodger uniform and autographed ball and will be able to meet the Dodgers — including Garvey — before the game.

Four runners-up will also get to attend the game and receive autographed baseballs.

They are: Allison Sledge, 13, of Claremont; Mark Hansen, 10, of Montclair; John Corrington, 11, of Claremont; and Dan Fish, 14, of Montclair.

Denver hoping for NHL

DENVER (AP) — Sportscaster Bud Palmer says efforts by his small group of investors to purchase the Kansas City franchise of the National Hockey League and move it to Denver are virtually certain to succeed.

"I would definitely say the Scouts are coming to Denver," Palmer said at a news conference on Thursday. "You've got the wrong name of the team, though. Just say the Kansas City franchise."

Palmer, who heads a group of seven investors that includes Denver oilman John A. Vickers and Munson Campbell, a former executive with the NHL's California Golden Seals, said the purchase price would be between $5.8 million and $6 million.

"We'll send the league some earnest money this afternoon, along with our letter-of-intent," he said, although he added there were still a few details to be worked out before the transaction was assured.

He said the two major obstacles, one with league officials and the other with the Denver city government, have been resolved in principle.

Palmer, who lives in Vail, said at the news conference he was "98 per cent certain" the problems could be worked out by the beginning of next week.

The disagreement with city officials stems from negotiations on a rental agreement for the use of McNichols Sports Arena, where the team would play.

But the city reportedly turned down the request for free office space and said it had to charge rent of $3,500 a game to break even on operating the municipally-owned arena.

"We still have some polishing up to do on a proposed contract with the city to lease McNichols Arena, but it's an agreement we can live with," Palmer said not disclosing any terms.

The second problem facing Palmer and his investors was a last-minute bid by a part owner of the Scouts, Gene Novarr, to buy out the team and keep it in Kansas City.

"Our posture is that Kansas City has some problems, especially with St. Louis over territorial questions," Vickers said. "The league is concerned with that problem, and we don't intend to get involved in it."

The NHL Board of Governors meeting Thursday, extended the deadline for resolutions of the franchise's future until Monday.

Vickers also pledged to Denver hockey fans, who saw a World Hockey Association team leave in mid-season earlier this year, the new franchise would not be a "fly-by-night deal."

Palmer has been seeking an NHL franchise for Denver for three years.

The 30-year-old Baltimore right-hander a Cy Young Award winner in two of the last three seasons, blanked the California Angels 4-0 on three hits Thursday night to become the first 12-game winner in the American League.

After a slow start, Palmer has won six of seven decisions since June 15, finished all but one of his last eight starts, and lowered his earned run average to 2.89.

Palmer acknowledged criticizing the omission of such pitchers as Gaylord Perry, Doug Bird, Wayne Garland and Dennis Leonard, but denied having said that he should have been picked.

"All I said, was that if you use Catfish Hunter as a criteria, then I should have gone, too," Palmer said of the New York pitcher who took a 10-8 record into the game won by the National League 7-1.

"I didn't knock the players who went," Palmer continued. "But pitching is 50 to 90 per cent of the game and it's ridiculous not to use your best.

"I'm sick and tired of losing to the National League. But it's understandable. They take their best players, and we don't—and it doesn't just apply to pitchers."

Palmer noted that Al Oliver was on the National League squad even though he finished ninth in the voting, while the Americans failed to take such hitters as John Mayberry, George Scott and Sal Bando.

The shutout over the Angels, against whom he has a 16-5 record, was the 39th of Palmer's career. He has a lifetime mark of 164-88, with eight of the losses this season.

The California hits were singles by Dan Briggs in the second, Dave Collins in the third and pinch batter Jerry Remy in the eighth. Briggs and Remy were immediately erased on double play grounders.

Only in the sixth, when Palmer walked Andy Etchebarren and Collins, did the Angels advance a runner beyond first base. But Palmer retired the next three batters.

Reggie Jackson, who has hit .425 since July 2, had three hits for the Orioles and drove in three runs. His 10th homer followed a double by Al Bumbry in the third, and he had an RBI single in the seventh.

Jackson and Bumbry, who scored three runs, each stole two bases. One swipe by Bumbry, who has been successful 20 times in 24 attempts, preceded Lee May's run-scoring single in the opening inning off Gary Ross, 6-11.

"I can't put my finger on it," Jackson said of his recent surge, "but with each good game I have, the more relaxed I feel here."

Rams greet 23 veterans

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams' training camp has filled with veterans as coaches plan to begin drills today.

Defensive tackle Merlin Olsen, the staunch elder statesman of the Ram defense, headed a group of 23 veterans who reported to camp Thursday.

A team spokesman said Olsen, a 15-year veteran, showed up early and worked out in shorts at the Rams' camp Thursday afternoon.

The veterans were due in camp Thursday night, to join the rookies and a sprinkling of other veterans who began arriving Sunday night.

A Ram spokesman said the team was placing Charlie Stukes, a nine-year veteran cornerback on waivers. Stukes was sidelined last season because of knee injuries.

Rookie defensive end Mike Davis, a 6-foot-4, 248-pounder out of Long Beach State, has been signed, the spokesman said.

Today's game

Diamond Bar vs. Pomona Southwest at Ralph Welch Park's north field, 6:30 p.m.

In the other two games played Thursday, Pomona American downed Pomona Northwest 6-2 and Glendora National beat defending champion La Verne 6-2 in the double-elimination tournament.

Today's lone game pits a victorious Diamond Bar nine and Pomona Southwest in a 6:30 p.m. contest on the Park's north field.

In the winners bracket Saturday, Pomona and Glendora Nationals will square off at 7:30 p.m.

At 5:30 p.m. in the losers bracket La Verne and South Hills will do battle as will Northwest and Ted Greene.

With the score tied at 5-5 in the top of the seventh, South Hills scored three runs, two on Nick Occhiato's triple, to take an 8-5 lead over Pomona National.

National came back with a run on a passed ball and Mark Alba bombed a triple to left with the bases loaded for three more and the win.

Milner also drove in two runs as did teammate Brian Chapple.

American held a slim 3-2 lead through five innings before opening up with two runs in the sixth and a run in the seventh to finish off Northwest.

Citizens build forest trail

"This will blow the natives' minds—seeing all these people out walking and carrying paint cans," said Bob Tabor of Culloden, president of the West Virginia Scenic Trails Association.

Five years after he and Nick Lozano of Charleston stood in a freezing parking lot and discovered their mutual idea for a long trail through the beautiful mountains of eastern West Virginia, Tabor was leading a party of adults and boy scouts in marking a section of the trail in the Monongahela National Forest.

The long process of planning and bucking a complicated, resistant state and federal bureaucracy is behind them. Facing the persistent creaters of the Allegheny Trail now is the physical labor of marking and building the hiking route from Blackwater Falls State Park in Tucker County more than 200 miles south to join with the famous Appalachian Trail in Monroe County along the Virginia border.

The process consists mainly of connecting existing U.S. Forest Service dirt roads through three national forests, one state forest and two state parks and gaining permission to cross private land to join the entire trail.

"When we started this, we didn't get a lot of support," said Tabor. "They (federal and state officials) didn't believe citizens could do it. They talked of costs of $2,000 a mile."

"The bureaucrats were surprised that citizens on their own initiative would get involved in a project of this magnitude. They thought we would go away," Lozano said.

Both avid hikers who got hooked 20 years ago along the Appalachian Trail in the Smoky Mountains, Tabor and Lozano started talking about a West Virginia portion to the trail in 1971, following an Izaak Walton League meeting.

"The concept of a trail in West Virginia bugged me—here we had to pack up and go 300 miles (to the Smokies) when West Virginia has the basics for a trail," said Lozano.

At first, the two only wanted a West Virginia access to the Appalachian Trail, which goes over Peters Mountain in Monroe County but which had to be entered through Virginia. Other people joined them, the idea blossomed, and the WVSTA, expanded in focus was formed in 1972.

"It's dedicated to the development and maintenance of hiking trails in West Virginia," said Lozano. "Eventually we want to develop a network of trails throughout the state—around urban areas, historic trails, long-distance hiking.

"We're using the Allegheny Trail as a showcase. What we learn from this, we'll use to show local groups how they can build a trail in their areas," he said.

"We hope this is just the beginning," said Tabor, who worked on the Appalachian Trial when he lived in Roanoke, Va.

"We felt we should have a designated area to hike," he explained. "This is not a wilderness trail like the Appalachian Trail. What they're doing is great, but it doesn't seem practical to tie up that much forest.

"We felt we needed a trail where people could get out and experience nature without fear of trespassing. People tend to crowd into parks. Dispersed recreation is our philosophy."

"The concept of planned recreation is new in West Virginia. Most of the native population grew up with woods and mountains just there, accepted things. If a man went out, he had a gun in his hand," said Lozano.

"We talked to a man whose land we wanted to cross," added Tabor. "He just never could quite understand that there were people who just wanted to come out in the woods and walk."

The group first drew up a prospective trail route, trying to keep it on as much public land as possible, and spent time pouring over maps and surveying. In 1975, the state Department of Natural Resources gave the group permission to cross Blackwater Falls and Cass State parks and Senaca State Forest.

In April of this year, the U.S. Forest Service and the WVSTA signed the Allegheny Trail Cooperative Agreement, granting permission to go through Monogahela, George Washington and Jefferson national forests.

Physical work began on the trail two years ago, when the first section was flagged on Peters Mountain, providing access through Pine Swamp to the Appalachian Trial. The WVSTA had a ceremony on top of the mountain in the summer of 1974.

Last summer, with the permission of the Buckskin Council of the Boy Scouts, the group put in the trail section through the council's Pocahontas County reservation to Seneca. This spring, Seneca was connected to Cass.

This Summer's goal is completion of 50 miles from Cass south to Interstate 64, a distance of 50 miles. The group wants to show off the new trail to the Southern Appalachian Trail Clubs, groups from Virginia to Georgia who are holding their annual meeting over Labor Day Weekend at the boy scout camp.

On the recent trail-blazing party, Tabor and Lozano led the paint-bearing hikers south from the boy scout camp into Monogahela National Forest, the first trail blazing there. The leaders had marked off a tentative trail with blue surveyers ribbons two months before, following deer trails along ridges at the edge of Marlin Mountain, into Thorny Creek Valley and joining with the Forest Service's dirt Marlin Mountain Road. The forest ranger approved the route.

The Appalachian Trail from Maine to Georgia is marked wth white blazes. The route of the Allegheny Trail is designated by bright yellow blazes, two inches by six inches. Two parallel blazes means the trail turns.

"If we have land, we must realize there are hordes of people who don't," said Tabor "So let's share it—with a little path."

Perch biting at Lake Crowley

Only a little more than two weeks remain for some of the best fishing in the Sierras at Lake Crowley, noted for its large trout.

But if you're concentrating on trout to the exclusion of Crowley Lake's other piscatorial prize, you may be making a mistake. Crowley Lake is one of the very few waters in California where Sacramento perch, a native California species of sunfish, can be found in large numbers.

A few trout and a few perch and you have the makings of interesting bouillabaisse, or at least a good fish fry.

But you had better move fast. Crowley Lake closes for the season on July 31, says Edwin "Phil" Pister, Department of Fish and Game fishery biologist.

Reports this week from the lake are encouraging. Large brown trout are being taken by trolling in mid-lake, and Sacramento perch are being taken on small jugs or roostertails in fairly deep water closer to shore than the trout.

The limit for trout is seven, but you can take all the perch you wish. Both trout and perch are excellent deep-fried in a little batter.

The perch are running one to one and a half pounds, according to Fish and Game wildlife biologist Banky Curtis, who tried his hand on Crowley Saturday. He filleted his catch and put it in the freezer for later use.

"We would have caught a lot more," said Curtis, "but we had six kids in the boat."

Curtis said the perch were firm and in excellent condition.

Tule elk tour scheduled for Owens Valley area

Circle Saturday, July 31, on your calendar. It will be your last chance this season to see the tule elk of the Owens Valley in Inyo County.

A Department of Fish and Game sponsored elk tour will begin at 7 a.m. that day at the Wildlife Viewpoint on the eastern side of Highway 395, approximately 15 miles north of Independence. A sign marks the turnoff. The tour guide will be the department's leading authority on the Owens Valley herd, wildlife biologist Banky Curtis of Bishop.

The Owens Valley is one of only two places in the state — or for that matter the world — where tule elk exist in a free-roaming state. Another smaller population roams free in the Cache Creek area of Colusa County.

The elk population in the Owens Valley is estimated at slightly more than 400 animals. The Cache Creek heard numbers about 110.

Curtis said that visitors should bring binoculars and cameras with telephoto lenses, if possible. The tour, which lasts about three hours, will include an informal discussion of the elk's status.

A July 3 tule elk tour was attended by comparatively few people, most of them from the Los Angeles area. Curtis said none of the visitors had ever before seen the elk, but on that day they were able to view a heard of from 60 to 65, with half a dozen large bulls and 8 to 10 calves born in mid-May. The other elks in the herd were "ladies" of the harem.

As the years pass, the skin loses some of its elasticity and your face also shrinks a little as some of the fat disappears from under the skin.

But the skin of the face does not shrink at the same rate. It becomes too loose for the face and little folds, or creases, appear.

The pattern of facial wrinkles depends in part on the way in which the skin has been pulled and stretched for many years.

Our skin forms a protective covering for the body. It helps protect the body from injury and helps keep germs from entering. It helps keep the body from drying out and from becoming too hot or too cold.

In the skin there are some cells that contain a coloring matter called pigment. When only a little pigment is present, the skin is light in color. People who have more pigment have darker skin.

COZY GAZEBO — Shady, airy gazebo lures young and old on a summer day. Built mostly of western red cedar, this mini-pavilion stands at corner of rear deck, is painted to match house and railing. Eight sides are four feet wide; interior is nine feet across. Designer is Craig Corbett, Laguna Beach.

Old-fashioned romance needs all the encouragement it can muster these days, and cozy little gazebo in a corner of the garden or at the end of a deck, out of earshot from the house, affords a proper setting.

On a languid summer day, cola-sipping young folk are likely to gather there to chat after swimming or tennis. There's the chance, however, they'll find this heaven, cooled by overhead shade and breezes wafting through the open sides, already occupied by their elders, resting after labors in the garden.

A backyard gazebo can take any of a score of shapes and appearances. But the materials nearly always are wood, whether solid lumber, plywood, laths or shingles, and sometimes a blending of all four.

Solid roof garden

Open lattice-work fashioned from wood strips is enjoying renewed popularity for sides and roof of garden structures. But treillage is hard to maintain, and isn't so ideal where rains are frequent.

Octagonal in shape, it has a solid roof that peaks at the center at a moderate pitch. A small cupola, supported on eight wood spindles 12 inches tall, is both decorative and means of ventilation.

Sides mostly open

The eight sides are each four feet wide thus providing a roomy interior about nine feet across. Walls are solid up to little more than table height, clad in eight-inch, tight-knot cedar sidings, put on horizontally the same as on the house.

One side remains open as an entrance. Eight corner posts support the solid roof, which has a 16-inch overhang all around. Boards and moldings fill in the walls for 12 inches just under the eaves; otherwise the walls are open.

Up from the 2x6-inch sill or railings, the posts, framing and ceiling are painted white, which matches the decorative railings across the deck.

Floor is the same as the deck, 2x4s laid flat and spaced slightly.

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The natural-resin varnishes so popular over the ages are being replaced fairly rapidly by varnishes containing synthetic resins. If an old-timer tries to tell you that the modern varnishes can't approach those he used years ago, it's probably because he hasn't tried the newer finishes.

Varnishes containing such substances as urethane, alkyd and phenolic, among others, are easier to apply and, in most cases, produce better finishes. One rule, however, has never changed. No varnished surface will have the desired appearance if it wasn't smooth and clean before any finishing material was applied to it. That means sanding the wood until it feels almost like glass when you run the tips of your fingers over it. It also means cleaning the surface with turpentine or mineral spirits to pick up any tiny bits of grit that may have been left behind.

While most modern varnishes dry quicker than the old ones, they do not dry as quickly as some other finishes — shellac and lacquer, for example — and so a constant battle must be waged to keep dust from settling on them before they have begun to harden. Always do your varnishing in a room or workshop which no one will enter for the rest of the day. Be sure the area is as dust-free as possible before you begin, which in some cases means using a vacuum cleaner. Your clothes, too, should be dustfree. Some stores that sell finishing materials carry "pick" sticks so that specks of dust can be removed from a wet varnish surface while you are working on it. If you can't get one, keep a few wood toothpicks handy. As soon as you spot a bit of dust, use the tip of a toothpick to pick it up. Since this must be done while the varnish is wet, the tiny mark left by the toothpick tip will be quickly filled in by the surrounding varnish. You can see, therefore, that while varnishing you will have to step back in the proper light again and again to look for dust specks.

Varnish should be applied in a free, flowing motion. Stroke with the grain, then immediately against the grain. Then, without dipping the brush in the varnish, stroke again with the grain, this time using only the tips of the bristles and stroking lightly.

Whenever possible, try to turn the work so that you are always brushing horizontally. Since this isn't always practical, work very carefully with vertical strokes to avoid dripping.

Houseplants in all sizes—research target

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Do you like house plants? A goal of researchers is to produce small and medium-size potted plants that consumers may buy at attractive prices for informal use at the home and office.

Floriculturists at Cornell University already have developed production methods and crop scheduling for some plants for use by plant growers in New York State. Several kinds of flowering and foliage plants, they determined, could be produced efficiently with a minimum of production cost and time.

"This," Prof. Carl F. Gortzig says, "will enable growers to supply florist shops, plant stores, supermarkets and other outlets with quality potted plants that can be retailed at prices ranging from 99 cents to $1.29 a plant." Considering the soaring consumer demand for smaller size potted plants, Gortzig said, consumers want plants they can enjoy in their every day surroundings — home, office, store or apartment.

Performing well in experiments were clerodendrum, coleus, New Guinea impatiens, marigold, primrose, zinnia, streptocarpus, and polka-dot plant, the researchers said. Clerodendrum, marigold, primrose, zinna and streptocarpus are colorful flowering plants, the first named serving as an attractive foliage vine after frost bloom. The primrose may be set out into the garden if bought in late winter or early spring. Some varieties of the New Guinea impatiens, reported new on the American floricultural scene from the South Pacific — produce flowers. Others are foliage plants, as are coleus and polka-dot.

All of these plants, Gortzig related, had such cost-reducing features as: They need no special or labor-intensive cultural practices such as pinching, disbudding, changes in spacing and special lighting or shading procedures as day-length control; no growth regulators are needed; they are generally free from insect and disease; they can be grown the year-around in succession, four to six weeks in summer and seven to eight weeks in winter.

Seeding and rooting of cuttings are done directly in the (four-inch) container in which the plant will be marketed Gortzig said. Also saving cost are slow-release fertilizers gradually putting nutrients into the soil, and an automatic capillary bench watering system that eliminates daily watering.

The next step at Cornell will be ways to improve market distribution of the plants to help the grower, retailer and consumer, and to identify other plants that can be produced as efficiently.

"If these goals can be met," Gortzig said, "then consumers will be assured of a steady supply of quality plants at highly attractive prices. The consumer's desire to have plants as an integral part of his every day environment for living can be readily served."

Gardeners check list

A good list of vegetables can be planted for fall. Many of them are available as easy-to-transplant starts from nursery flats.

Bare spots in the garden? Tuberous Begonias and Hibiscus both in bloom are at the nursery for your choosing.

Delphiniums which have bloomed should be cut back to six inches, fed and watered — toward a second flush of bloom.

Crab grass a pest? Selective controls are available now to eliminate this problem.

Still time to plant Zinnias, Salvia, Marigolds, Periwinkle, and other annuals for continuous summer color.

Wash. police con crooks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chicago Bob thought he was fencing stolen goods with crooked employes of a truck repair shop. But the guys behind the counter at H & H Trucking really were on the up and up.

H & H was a police subsidiary.

They're calling it "Got Ya Again." For the second time in four months, scores of persons have been arrested for allegedly fencing stolen goods at a dummy business set up here by local police and FBI agents posing as street toughs.

On Tuesday, authorities began rounding up 140 persons on charges that they sold $1.2 million worth of stolen checks, credit cards, guns, appliances and cars to the undercover officers at the fake garage, which began business seven months ago.

Last Feb. 28 the police and FBI arrested more than 100 suspected thieves who peddled their wares at a warehouse manned by officers who posed as Mafia-type gangsters with aliases like Rico Rigatone.

A series of raids netted 71 of the 140 persons named in the warrants, and authorities were seeking the rest. They got the home addresses of many customers a few weeks ago by selling $10 raffle tickets on a nonexistent Cadillac Eldorado.

The undercover agents at H & H were black. Officials said many customers were heroin addicts who stole to support their habits.

Among those who took the bait was Chicago Bob.

"He would come in and put on an act like, 'Hey man, I know you're the police, but I'm going to deal with you anyway.' He'd put a bag over his head and clown around. And of course we had it all on film," boasted an FBI agent who helped run H & H.

Nine of those arrested Tuesday also were nabbed in February at the warehouse called P.F.F. Inc., which stood for "Police-FBI Fencing Incognito." H & H was smaller than P.F.F. Inc. Both featured cameras in the walls to capture the transactions on videotape.

Israeli women seek equality

By JANE SEE WHITE

NEW YORK (AP) — Tamar Eshel is treading a fine line. One mis-step, she believes, could have cataclysmic effects on her homeland.

Mrs. Eshel is general secretary of the Working Women's Council — the largest women's organization in Israel. And in that role she is trying to assure equality for Israeli women without dividing society over practices that are ruled by Jewish, Christian and Moslem religious laws.

"A people under seige, as we are, can ill afford a cultural campaign that would divide the people," Mrs. Eshel said in an interview here en route to a meeting of the International Council of Women in Vancouver, Canada.

Religious laws govern marriage and divorce practices in Israel and define personal status. For instance, there is still no such thing as a civil marriage ceremony in the state.

"Religious law and personal status are not so important compared with what remains to be done," Mrs. Eshel said. "But we can find a way to make the uses of these laws modern if we cannot change them."

Her group chooses to fight for changes in other areas, she said.

"It is only this year, for example, that we have managed to eliminate different pay scales for men and for women in industry," she said. "The unions have said they will sign no more contracts unless the scales are equal."

Only 34 per cent of the women in Israel are employed, she said, and one reason is that a large proportion are untrained and unskilled.

"We have found that 75 per cent of the women who have academic training do work, and so we are trying to educate and train those who have none," Mrs. Eshel said.

The Working Women's Council — with help from groups like Pioneer Women, the women's labor Zionist organization of America, which Mrs. Eshel was visiting here — is building day care centers, boarding schools for children without homes, providing adult education programs and lobbying for more public schooling.

Israeli public schools close at 1 p.m., she said, and her group is lobbying for longer school hours. "The school doesn't perform as it should," she said.

There are many educational and social problems that the Israeli government — preoccupied with military and economic problems — is unable to confront, she said.

"We are a heterogeneous society and a small country," Mrs. Eshel said. "We cannot afford to postpone social and educational problems — so the voluntary organizations are called upon to do much more than they do in other nations."

Mrs. Eshel, who represented Israel as a member of the permanent mission to the United Nations here in 1955, was accorded rank of ambassador in 1968 when she represented Israel in the General Assembly.

A third generation Israeli, she also represented Israel on the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women and was elected chairman of that body.

Wedding, betrothal forms are available

Engagement and wedding announcement forms may be picked up at the Progress Bulletin office in the Family Section department between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Wedding forms must be printed or typed and may be submitted with a black and white photograph. Only professionally done or high quality 35mm black and white photographs can be accepted for the weddings and they are to be portraits of the bride alone. The Progress Bulletin reserves the right to accept or reject all photographs submitted. Forms and pictures are to be turned in to the department within two weeks after the wedding.

Engagement forms, also printed or typed, are used if turned in at least six weeks prior to the wedding. On occasion, a color photo may be used with an engagement announcement, but no assurance is given that all color photography is suitable for this purpose.

All forms must carry a telephone number where a family member can be contacted during working hours to answer any possible questions relating to the form.

Kit Miller wed in chapel rites

MRS. STEVE McCULLOCH

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miller Jr. of Glendora and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Evans were married in a double-ring, candlelight ceremony by the Rev. Paul Farrell.

The maid of honor was Miss Kelly Miller, sister of the bride, of Ontario. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Betsy Moncayo, Ontario. Miss Dawn Reed, Ontario, and Miss Hillary Wills, Glendora.

Standing as best man was Dennis Kincad of Glendora. Ushers were John Bilderain, Claremont, Ron Shewmaker, Covina, and Clint Miller, brother of the bride, Glendora.

A reception at the chapel followed the ceremony. When the couple returns from a wedding trip to San Luis Obispo, the newlyweds will establish a home in San Dimas.

The Wendy Ward program offers courses for three major groups.

Model Teen classes stress the interests and lifestyles of junior and senior high school girls. Material covered includes visual poise, make-up, hair care, wardrobe and basic modeling.

Crossroads to Charm is a course for girls eight to 12 years of age which helps to bridge the gap between lollipops and lipstick. Emphasis is placed on learning good grooming habits, wardrobe selection and basic modeling.

Sugar and Spice is a course for girls from four to seven dealing with introduction to grooming, visual poise and manners.

All three courses include a graduation fashion show for friends and relatives.

Group rates are available to Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

The enrollment fee includes a textbook. Classes start Wednesday. Additional information may be obtained by calling 621-3054, ext. 295.

Once upon a time in lovely, scenic Montclair, there came to pass a man and his wife and their two daughters. The man's thoughts were, "How can I better serve my community?" so he thought and he thought and he decided to buy a car and truck agency and he named the agency ROYCE BARNETT PONTIAC AND GMC TRUCKS. The agency is located at 5200 Holt Blvd., in lovely, scenic Montclair.

There are many facets to this story, and there are many facets to the ROYCE BARNETT agency. The agency prides itself in having a huge stock of beautiful new Pontiacs to sell, as well as fabulous GMC trucks. The agency is also proud of its fine line of previously owned, (because many fine people trade in their cars) low mileage automobiles and trucks.

Why don't you stop by ROYCE BARNETT this very weekend and test drive one of our many fine automobiles and trucks? Our sales staff is kind, courteous and knowledgeable. They are anxious to assist you, whether you are interested in buying or leasing a vehicle. We want you to like our vehicles, and we can help you get the financing you need to have one of our vehicles for your very own. Our expert office manager and her efficient office staff is always on hand to help our customers.

When it comes to service, ROYCE BARNETT is tops. Our staff of highly trained mechanics is anxious to do the best job possible on your automobile. The men in our parts department and the body and fender men are the best to be found. They can take a badly damaged vehicle and repair and repaint it and it will look like a new car.

THIS WEEKEND, and THIS WEEKEND ONLY ..... all of ROYCE BARNETT's small cars will be ON SALE! There will be Astras and Sunbirds to delight your eye, not to mention your pocketbook. Some have 4 cylinder engines and some have V-6 engines. We are also offering all our DEMO CARS FOR ONLY $150.00 OVER INVOICE COST! This sale will end July 18th, so please, make this a truly happy ending by stopping in at • ROYCE BARNETT PONTIAC AND GMC TRUCK CENTER — 5200 Holt Blvd., Montclair. Or call us at ---621-4854.

Like all story endings, this is where the words come to an end. However, this is also where the good guy rides off into the sunset. Shane, Shane ... come back Shane, mommy has a cookie for you....
